There is no truth in the report that the people of Harney county are indignant at the action of Judge Lewis in admitting Edward Oliver, the man who shot Peter French, to bail, or that the bond is a straw one. As the prosecution presented a weak case, no other action was possible. The bondsmen are among the best business men and leading stockmen of the country, who could raise the amount of the bond at any time or short notice.

No club member should fail to be in attendance at the meeting in the club rooms this evening, as matters of grave importance will be considered which will interest everyone. We hope that there is no member of the club who has so little interest in our city and the community at large as to allow himself to be kept away by anything that is not purely unavoidable. Mr. Judson comes without solicitation, and there is no doubt that he will speak on matters of value to this community.

As an outfitting point for the Klondike The Dalles cannot be excelled. This has been proven in a number of instances. The latest is that of one of our citizens who is about to start a hotel in the Klondike and who naturally supposing he could fit himself out to better advantage in Portland, made a trip to the metropolis for that purpose. As he purchased a large bill of goods from Pease & Mays this morning, one item of which was sixty-one pairs of blankets and comforters, the conclusion is apparent.

The ladies of the Good Intent Society had a very pleasant meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. A. Kirby. About twenty ladies were present, and as it was the anniversary of the hostesses' birth, the meeting took upon itself the form of a party. The society presented Mrs. Kirby with a very pretty birthday gift as a token of their appreciation of her faithfulness in the work. During the afternoon a surprise in the way of a tempting luncheon was served to the guests, and the best of good will prevailed throughout the entire meeting.

This morning James Thrall of this place, met one of his old schoolmates, Alex Bruce, of Woodstock, Ontario, as he was passing through, on his way to Portland. Mr. Bruce's object in going is to join the Alaska relief expedition which will start in a short time. It has been years since Mr. Thrall had seen his old friend, but at a glance they recognized each other, and it is unnecessary to say that the short space of time the train stopped in this city was not sufficient for them to begin to tell a fraction of what each had to say after these years of separation.

A challenge has been received by The Dalles foot-ball team from the Willamette Amateur Athletic Club for a match game to be played on Washington's birthday, January 22d. The terms offered by the visiting team are very reasonable, and a good game would certainly be played. There is but one thing required, and that is an assurance that the game will be sufficiently patronized to pay all expenses. In order to do this a committee should take the matter in hand and investigate the same, and we are certain that a guarantee can be given to the boys, and if this is done the game will come off. As the town is very dull at present, a little excitement of this kind would liven up things, and we are sure that everyone would appreciate a foot-ball game very much.

The war in Cuba has not prevented S. F. Fouts from securing a choice lot of Havana tobacco, which he manufactures into Prize Medal and Guarantee cigars. 20-1f Unknown Body Identified.

At Hood River on the 10th day of last October an inquest was held over a body that floated up from the Columbia river and lodged on the beach just below town. The body had been in the water for some time, and for that reason was buried near the place where the inquest was held. The circumstances had been almost forgotten. However, a young man from Hood River was visiting at the home of Mrs. Frederick Foster in Portland a short time ago and learned that the husband and father had not been heard from since the 27th of last September, at which time he was in Pendleton and about to start home. The young man told the family that something must have happened to him, and then thought of the body that had been buried at Hood River without being identified. When he returned home a picture of Mr. Foster was brought with him, and the men who composed the coroner's jury thought it the missing man.

Last Monday Mrs. Foster came up from Portland to have the body exhumed. All day Tuesday and until 11 o'clock Wednesday was put in searching for the body before it was found, the water being high and the grave not distinctly marked. Mrs. Foster identified the body as that of her husband by his clothing.

The remains were taken charge of by the Masons, of which order he was a member, and given proper burial in Idlewilde cemetery yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Foster returned to Portland today, where she will no longer listen for the footstep that is never to come.

Mr. Foster owned an interest in a mine near Baker City, and had been there doing the assessment work on the same.

Prospect of a Mine Here.

A bulletin received from Portland today states that a rich coal strike has been made near this place. This may all be, but the people of this place are unconscious of any such good fortune, and we believe that the originator of the report was mistaken at least, and in all probability suffering from a more serious malady.

It is true that for a number of years some of our business men have been prospecting near Chenoweth creek, and that they are having the farmers in that section grant them the rights and privileges to any mineral claim that they may locate. The company that is doing the prospecting does not own the land, and it is no more than right that they who spend money in this venture should benefit by it, and that the propertyowners should grant them the right. If this is done a shaft will be sunk, and if coal mines, or mines of any description, are to be found, they will be opened up as soon as possible, and it will prove a great help to our city, as well as the community at large.

It lies in the power of some of our citizens to help this project along, and we hope they will not be slow in so doing.

Death of D. L. De Wolfe.

Daniel L. De Wolfe, a former resident of this place, died at Newhall, Cal., yesterday afternoon. Jess Crandall received a dispatch to this effect last night which stated further that the remains would be sent here for interment, and requested him to meet them in Portland tonight.

While in The Dalles Mr. De Wolfe was engaged in the business of a carpenter and builder. A few years ago his health began to fail and he and his family moved to California in the hope that the mild climate of that state would help him. The change did not seem to improve him and he continued to grow weaker, until yesterday the dread consumption claimed its victim.

He was about 35 years of age and was a member of the Workmen and Woodmen lodges of this place. He leaves a wife and one child, a mother and a sister to mourn his loss. As yet the time for the funeral has not been definitely set, but it will in all probability take place Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Workmen and Woodmen orders.

NEWS NOTES.

England is hurrying her warships from British Columbia to the Chinese waters. This looks very much like war.

A report received this morning states that Gladstone is nearing the end, and that it is not likely that he will see England again.

A special bulletin was received from Portland this morning stating that coal has been discovered near The Dalles, and that it is of great value. It is strange that Portland should be so excited over this matter, to which our people pay so little attention, and know less.

Such information as the state department has received as to the situation in Havana is confirmatory of the unofficial dispatches, and shows that quiet reigns in the city, and that the impression of the officials at Washington that the riotous excitement had either exhausted itself for the time being, or had been completely suppressed by the strong hand of the government, is justified.

During Tuesday's session of the Nicaragua canal convention at Kansas City, resolutions were adopted urging on congress the necessity of legislation to secure the permanent construction of the canal. The resolutions recite that the opening of such a waterway will greatly increase the nation's commerce, stimulate activity in shipyards, and double the effective value of the United States navy. A committee was appointed to visit Washington and personally urge the necessary legislation.

Special Meeting of D. C. & A. Club.

There will be a special meeting of the Dalles Commercial and Athletic Club tomorrow evening, at which Mr. R. C. Judson, industrial agent of the O. R. & N. Co., will be present. All members
