FARO WAS KING.

It was the rage in Washington during Buchanan's term. Faro was king at the national capital during James Buchanan's term. The most pretentious gambler of them all was Joe Hall, whose midnight suppers Lucullus would have made haste to envy could he have tasted the canvas-back duck stuffed with chestnuts, and the side dish of Virginia hominy done brown, in butter garnished with bacon from Aecomac, fed on acorns. Silver goblets like "motel" were the only "wear" for champagne, says a Washington correspondent.

There were no clubhouses, so called, in ante-bellum days in Washington. And here, up to the fall of Sumter, the south and north, no matter how acrid the day's debate in congress, when the members met before Joe Hall's or George Pendleton's green baize table, on Pennsylvania avenue, all on pleasure bent, they "let silence like a poultice fall and heal the blows" of political strife and sound!

Joe Hall, who died very poor, in Baltimore during the war, was in the last generation the most magnificent and most continuously successful "high-roller" among the "gamboliers" of America. His horses, with gold-tipped harness, were the cynosure of all eyes.

In Philadelphia he ran a gambling house on Walnut, above Eleventh, north side, from 1856 till the war broke out. Here Thaddeus Stevens, the great commoner of Pennsylvania, hobnobbed with James A. Bayard, of Delaware, and the handsome Ellis Schnable, who, with "Bill" Witte, of Philadelphia, made two of the best all-round stump orators of whom the Keystone democracy ever boasted.

ARE WE MICROBES?

A Theory That Human Beings and All Life Are Aggregations of Them.

M. Paris, who succeeded to the seat of the great Pasteur in the French academy, referred in his inaugural address to the interesting theory that human beings and all life are aggregations of microbes, says the New York Journal.

"The microbes," he said, "were known before Pasteur, but the part which they played in nature was not clearly discerned. They penetrate into the tissues of the human body and produce infectious disease; they people the air; they fill the water; they saturate the soil; dwell in animals and plants; they develop us, serve our purposes and threaten us from all sides.

"Nay, they are, perhaps, ourselves. The life of superior beings appears to science as the result of myriads of these elementary existences. Their colonies, more and more populous and differentiated, composed from the merest insect to the rose, the cedar, the eagle, the whale, the man, the immense and dazzling network in the meshes of which they ceaselessly circulate, destroyed and yet renewed, ever since there has been produced and without doubt produced by them on this globe of ours the mysterious dawning of life. This, therefore, is what the study of microbes has revealed to amazed humanity."

HIS HORSES AND DOGS KILLED.

Carrying Out the Strange Provisions of an Animal Lover's Will.

At Bridgeport, Conn., a provision in the will of Francis Ives was lately carried out, his fine horses and well-bred dogs having been put to death, says the New York World. Mr. Ives was a distinguished member of the Fairfield county bar and a rich old bachelor. Rumor had it that when he was a young man he fell in love with the beautiful Miss Julia Jones, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Henry Jones and granddaughter of Noah Webster. Mr. Ives proposed to Miss Jones and she rejected him. Afterwards she married Rev. Thomas Beecher, brother of Henry Ward Beecher. From the time of her marriage Mr. Ives separated himself from the society of women. He owned a fine stable of thoroughbred trotters. Two of them, Prince and Gypsy, were his greatest favorites, and as he speeded them he seemed to be forgetful for the moment and happy. He owned a kennel of pedigreed pointers and setters, and he was an enthusiastic hunter. Mr. Ives died last winter, leaving a large estate. His will made his life-long friend, George Hayes, his executor, and, outside of a few small bequests, left his whole estate to his sister, Mrs. Whiting, of New Haven. But the eighteenth clause of his will betrayed Mr. Ives' intense affection for his horses and dogs—an affection which, necessarily diverted from its first object, had centered itself on them. In this clause Mr. Ives directed his executor, Mr. Hayes, to chloroform to death all the animals that he might own at the time of his death in the month of June first following that event. In explanation of this act of seeming cruelty Mr. Ives wrote in his will:

"I fear lest my dogs and horses will fall into the hands of some one who will not treat them kindly."

Mr. Ives was well known to be a humane and kind-hearted man. His executor considered his order binding upon him.
