A very pleasant surprise party was given Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bell at the Mt. Hood Hotel Tuesday evening at Hood River. The dining-room was cleared and dancing indulged in until 12 o'clock, when an elegant lunch was served. There was a large number of friends present and a very enjoyable time was had. The party was a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Bell.

A PROBABLE CLEW.

It is believed that he hailed from The Dalles.

The Evening Telegram of yesterday says:

Owing to the temporary incapacitation of Dr. George F. Koehler, county coroner, who is confined to his home with la grippe, no inquest has yet been held on the remains of the man named "Stump," who was found dead in the kitchen of the Skandia lodging-house in Portland a few days ago. There are circumstances surrounding the case that strengthen the belief that the man's identity is yet unknown. "Stump" is believed to have been an assumed name, his real name having been withheld for reasons that have not yet come to light. That there is some mystery about the man was indicated by his extreme reticence. He made no confidants, and although he stopped at the Scandia house off and on for several months, no one ever learned anything of his history or business. He was in the habit of leaving as quietly as he came. He always registered under the name of "Stump," never prefixing his given name or initials, and that is the only name he was known by.

Dr. Koehler yesterday received a letter from a man named L. McClelland, of The Dalles, who expresses the opinion that "Stump" was a man who went by the name of George Muller in that city, and had reasons for disappearing some months ago. The description of Muller answers that of the man who now lies in the morgue under the name of "Stump," and should the identification prove correct an interesting story may develop.

Dr. Koehler has written to McClelland for further information, and expects a reply tomorrow. No inquest will be held until this clue regarding the identity of the man has been run down.

The CHRONICLE reporter endeavored to hunt up and interview the man McClelland of which the Telegram spoke, but no such man could be found, and we are inclined to believe that there is some mistake about the whole matter.

THE SEUFERT CASE.

Rulings of the United States Court in the Case.

Reports from Portland state that in all probability the Seufert case will be finished today.

Wednesday afternoon but little progress was made as a number of points had to be argued. Mr. Hostetler, cashier of French & Co.'s bank of this place, was called to testify to the deposits that Seufert Bros. had made in that bank during the last eight years, and in this pay give and idea as to the value of Seufert Bros.' property. This testimony was objected to by the prosecution and the court ruled it out, the argument on this point being that the money deposited did not show the profit made by the defendants. Reports show that the trial looked more favorable for Seufert Bros. yesterday than on the previous day, and in all probability a verdict will be brought in tomorrow.

In Olden Times.

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects, and were satisfied with transient action; but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently overcome habitual constipations, well informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.
