Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Always Proves Effectual. There are no better medicines on the market than Chamberlain's. We have used the Cough Remedy when all others failed, and in every instance it proved effectual.

Consul at Singapore, says: "While at Des Moines I became acquainted with a liniment known as Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I found excellent against rheumatism as well as against soreness of the throat and chest (giving me much easier breathing). I had a touch of pneumonia early this week, and two applications freely applied to the throat and chest relieved me of it at once. I would not be without it for anything." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

STAYED: Came to my place January 23d, a dark bay mare, about 15 hands high, white spot in face, one white hind foot; branded A on left shoulder; shoe on left front foot. Owner can have same by paying all charges. J. T. REYNOLDS, feb 4 1m The Dalles, Or.

Frank Sherwood was down town today, the first time since he had his tussle with cholera morbus. He says he drove miles after he was taken sick, and never came so near dying in his life. After this when he goes out in the country he will take a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with him.—Missouri Valley (Iowa) Times. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

Money Struck by Lightning. Fragments of a two-dollar treasury note were presented at the subtreasury for redemption lately by a resident in one of the counties of Maryland, says the Baltimore Sun.

"This was struck by lightning," he said, as he exhibited the two pieces of the note. The note had apparently been burned lengthwise through the middle, leaving the top and bottom margins. The burned portion that was missing was from a half to one and a half inches wide. The edges of the remaining parts were charred. The man said his home in the country was recently struck by lightning, that the note was in a cupboard at the time, and that the lightning entered the cupboard, burning the note as described. The number and seal on the parts of the note were legible and genuine, and consequently the note was redeemed.

There was rejoicing in the village at the killing of a pig. Being dead, it was cut up; a neighbor's cat stole secretly into the larder, and annexed a piece of pork, which she brought in triumph to her mistress. Next day the clergyman of the parish visited the old woman, who recounted to him the remarkable sagacity of the beast. "It was quite beautiful, sir," she said piously, "to see the way the sweet creature brought me the piece of pork, it brought to my mind what we read in the Bible about Elijah and the ravens."—The Realm.

RAILWAY CONDUCTORS IN DIXIE

A Great Change Noticeable to Travelers from North of the Potomac. If you travel much in this country you will be struck with the difference in the manners of a railway conductor.

At the north and in the west he is as uncommunicative an official as a policeman. He never smiles or relaxes for a moment when on duty. He knows no one in the discharge of his duty, which he goes through with military exactness. On rare occasions, says the Washington Post, he will nod to a commuter, but the nod is not to be taken as any evidence of relaxation of official routine. He is addressed as "Conductor," and seems to have no name beside that. He is a human number, in short. The moment you cross the Potomac everything is different. The conductor is called "Captain," he knows everybody, has something pleasant to say, and is a railway knight errant, ever ready to succor a distressed maiden or an old lady in difficulty. He will stop the train between stations, if he catches sight of an old lady driving down the road, suspected of wishing to board the train, and will help her out of the carriage, bundles and all, and say: "This way, grandma, to the ladies' car," find her a comfortable seat, and inquire about the health of her entire family. Then he jerks the bell for the train to move on. He knows every inmate of every farm or plantation on his run. He calls the respectable-looking old-time darkeys "uncle" and "mammy," and cracks a joke with them about being a runaway couple. The "generals," "judges," "colonels," and "squires" receive particular attention, and are for him when there is any promotion in the company to a man. Often he is an old soldier, and runs up against an old comrade, and then dire threats are made about putting him off the train if he don't "hand out that ticket right away." He will pop down alongside the prettiest girl on the train and commence talking about the next picnic or county fair; always friendly, pleasant, and provincial, but never vulgar, he is a terror to the occasional tough or drummer who gets noisy or loud, and is not afraid of anything that wears clothes. If there is a washout and a delay he knows where there is good fishing and offers to pilot the passengers to the perch. If there is an accident he has nerve, sense and forethought, and comes out uncommonly strong as an emergency man. He has no cast-iron rules about tickets, providing no fraud is evident, but he is as smart as a whip in detecting the free rider. Take him all in all, he is a dandy as a conductor, and makes more friends for the road in one trip than the other kind do in a year.

JUST REVERSED.

How Bridget Interpreted the Dream That Went by Contraries. An old Irishwoman who has received many benefits at the hands of a benevolent minister and his wife, is so shiftless that occasionally the large-hearted couple lose all patience with her; but she has such a sense of humor, and such a beguiling tongue that she never fails to amuse them and finally to win them back. At one time when money was given her to buy warm underclothing with, she wasted it upon a large photograph album. The minister spoke to her with considerable severity, as did also his wife, and for some time Bridget received no calls from either of them. One afternoon, however, the minister relented and stopped at Bridget's door on his way to see a sick woman. "Shure, and it's meself that dreamed about you last night, Mither Williams," said Bridget, with a beaming smile. "O'dreamed that you and Missus Williams came here to see me, and says you: 'How are you off for tay and coffee, Bridget?' and O! says: 'It's niver a drop of ayther O've got in the house, Mither Williams!' And thin you presinted me wid a pound of tay, and Missus Williams wid a pound of coffee on the spot! Yis, sorr, that was me dream."

GOVERNMENTAL ECONOMY.

Thrifty Traditions of the British Government Curiously Revealed. A paragraph in the "Life of Gen. Sir Hope Grant," who did great service for England as a military commander in India and in China, throws a curious side-light upon some of the thrifty traditions of the British government.

After Gen. Grant's return from China to England, he received at the hand of the queen at Buckingham palace the Grand Cross of the Bath. He was proud of the decoration, but his biographer adds that such honors are not without expense to the receiver. He finds among Sir Hope's papers a bill vouchered for by "Albert Woods, Lancaster Herald," to the amount of eighty-four pounds, four shillings, for "fees, charges and disbursements for the matriculation of your arras, etc., as G. C. B."

Older still was a document from the same "Albert Woods, Lancaster Herald," calling upon Sir Hope Grant to send back the insignia of his former lower order, K. C. B.—Knight Commander of the Bath—for the use of her majesty's government! It is a good old rule, for governments as for men: "Take care of the pennies, and the pounds will take care of themselves."

RAILWAY GLEANINGS.

BALLAST of burned black-wax soil is being tried on the Texas Midland railroad, the soil being burned in the same way as clay for the same purpose. A RESOLUTION imposing a fine of ten dollars on trolley car conductors for every failure to announce the name of a street or avenue has been introduced in the city council of Minneapolis. A BILL is before the New Jersey legislature providing that cities of that state above a certain population may require the elevation of railway tracks in their territory and the abolition of grade crossings.

At Logansport, Ind., a man was badly beaten by a number of railroad employes because he was suspected of being a detective, who had been going around the saloons with a kodak photographing railroad employes in the act of drinking. GENERAL PASSENGER AGENT J. J. BYRNE, of the Southern California railway, says that the fruit crops of southern California are the finest in years. Five thousand car loads of oranges will be shipped east, of which one thousand have already gone forward.

Clean plaster of paris ornaments with wet starch. Brush off when dry. A few drops of benzoin placed on cotton and put in or around a tooth that is aching will almost instantly stop the pain. Raisins can be easily seeded if put in hot water and allowed to stand 15 minutes before beginning to seed. Clear, black coffee diluted with water and containing a little ammonia will clean and restore black clothes.

HARD TO MANAGE.

Cats Give Animal Trainers a Great Deal of Trouble. An English exhibitor of trained animals, Mr. Leoni Clarke, is reported as saying that, though he has educated all sorts of animals, from lions downward, he has found that the most difficult of them all is the cat. He has to treat these creatures with extraordinary care. A dog is sensible, a monkey accommodating, and a rat either forgives or forgets—but a cat! She is a hopeless bundle of sensibilities. Strike her once, if only by accident, and she will never perform again. Kindness is not only politic, it is absolutely necessary, in the training of cats.

Although thirty cats are sufficient for his entertainment, he has sixty or more with him, for cats are very skittish creatures, and when they take the whim into their heads it is useless to take them on the stage. When Mr. Clarke enters the stable the meowing is prodigious and he is instantly buried in a moving mantle of cats. It took him four years to train some of his animals before he could put them upon the stage. A parachute cat, which climbs up a rope to the roof of the theater, and flies down by parachute, is the second which has done the trick. The first became too fat, and fell into bad ways. It is now Jim Corbett, and boxes Mitchell nightly. A curious feature of the show is the way in which the cats walk over a rope of rats and mice and canaries, stepping gingerly between the little fluttering bodies. This mighty forbearance is brought about by training up the cats from kittens in the same cage as the rats and birds. There are only six of the cats that Mr. Clarke dare trust among the rats. The rats and mice come from Java.

And thin you presinted me wid a pound of tay, and Missus Williams wid a pound of coffee on the spot! Yis, sorr, that was me dream."

"Well, Bridget," said the minister, striving not to smile, "you know dreams are said to go by contraries." "Shure, and that's fwhat O! said to meself," exclaimed Bridget, triumphantly. "Said O!, 'Mither Williams is the wan that'll be giving me the coffee and Missus Williams the tay!' Thin was my very thoughts, sorr."

Rash Declarations. "I never heard a young girl say, as young girls are often fond of saying," observed an old lady on the summer boarding-house piazza, "what sort of a man she will marry and what sort only, that I do not think of certain speeches to which I myself have listened from pretty lips before this. A school friend of mine so held New Jersey in detestation that she tore its map from her geography. She used to say that nothing would induce her to marry a man who was a widower, or wore a wig, or lived in New Jersey. And the man of her choice was guilty of all three of these enormities. I used to talk over my future with two cousins. I would not marry a business man, I said. Kate would not think of a clergyman, or Carry of a farmer. And we married respectively, a business man, a clergyman and a farmer. It is all like a smart young American 'help' in my grandmother's kitchen, who was wont to declaim to us children on the scorn in which she held all men, always winding up her denunciations of the sex by: 'No, I wouldn't marry any man that walks on two legs.' And she didn't. She married a one-legged man!"—N. Y. Times.
