THE COMING CONVENTION.

All reports confirm the success of the recent cattleman's convention at The attendance was Pendleton. large and representative, while the proceedings were of a kind to elicit much interest. This is a good forerunner of what the coming meeting of wool-growers in The Dalles will be. The committee is assured that many visitors will attend from our sister states, and that the men identi- day, the first time since he had his tusfied with the wool-growing industry sie with choiera morbus. He says he of Eastern Oregon will be present to drove miles after he was taken sick, and swell the number. This is the first After this when he goes out in the counconvention of the kind ever held in try he will take a bottle of Chamberlain's 175 Second Street. Eastern Oregon, and it should be Colic, Cholers and Diarrhoea Remedy made a fitting pattern for the others with him.-Missouri Valley (Iowa)

As far as possible every citizen should constitute himself a member of the committee on invitation and entertainment. By private letters and words our business men can make the impression that this convention will be a gathering that those interested in wool-growing cannot afford to miss, and the work of the general committee will be, in a great degree, advanced by the inter est taken on the part of our citizens.

The committees on arrangement report very satisfactory progress, and every circumstance indicates a most successful gathering. This has been a great year for the wool-growing industry of Oregon. Favorable legislation and a propitious winter have brought renewed hope to the hearts of the wool-growers, and where four years ago this industry was in severe circumstances, it is now regaining its former time prosperity.

This is the time to celebrate the growing good condition of the wool industry, upon which, more than any other factor, The Dalles depends for its commercial prosperity.

The citizens of The Dalles hope for a large attendance at the coming convention, and makes the assurance that there is room and welcome for everyone.

The country will await the report from the investigation of the Maine's disaster with the deepest solicitude. It is hard, under the sorrowful circumstances, to withhold an opinion, and there are many that will be unable to do so; but until the matter has been officially reported in greater detail, this government cannot take more decisive action. The theory that the accident was unintentional, does not seem tenable, and it will take more than sweet-worded condolences on the part of Spain to convince this country that there was not a Spanish trick in connection with the explosion.

New York's associated banks, in increasing their loans to the extent of almost $6,000,000 in the past five days, have furnished a good indication of the strength and persistence of the trade improvement. The activity of the stock and other speculative markets is accountable, of course, for some of the increased demand for money; but this activity, in its present phase, is in itself an evidence af business expansion and general financial confidence.

De Lome's letter lifts the curtain on a system of falsity. In that respect it is a clear demonstration. The politeness of the Spanish minister was the merest veneer. That his mind is essentially coarse was proved by his book of twenty years ago disparaging even the women of this country. He referred to that publication as a youthful mistake, but he has spoken of the president in similar terms, not only disclosing an evil nature, but a lack of capacity to understand an upright president earnestly striving to solve the Cuban problem by peaceful means. Spain is under deep obligations to President McKinley for the considerate patience he has exercised and his calming influence upon congress and upon the people. He has sought to extend to Spain the strictest justice. and nowhere in his treatment of the most difficult situation has there been the slightest trace of the disingenuous. Whatever of friendly service has been offered to Spain was in good faith and intended to avert war. When De Lome speaks contemptuously of the president and his political ability and associations ke discredits himself as a man and as a diplomatist.-Globe-Democrat.
