STRIKE WHILE THE IRON IS HOT.

The Dalles will be talked about for some time to come in various portions of the country. The delegates and visitors to the late wool convention have departed deeply impressed with the commercial possibilities of the city, and it would be strange if a great deal of profitable advertisement was not in this way secured. The Commercial Club, which has achieved such an enviable standing all over the Northwest, is now in a splendid situation to accomplish great benefits for the city.

Now is the time for beginning active work to secure a woolen mill at The Dalles. It is useless to spend words or paper stating the need for such an institution or the benefits The Dalles would derive. A woolen mill with a pay roll supporting fifty or a hundred men would do more towards maintaining the commercial status of The Dalles than the building of railroads in whatever direction they may be projected. A like industry at Pendleton has given that city a decided impetus, and the same result would be obtained here even in a greater degree.

The papers of this city have long called the attention of the people to the need for a woolen mill, and will continue so to do as long as the necessity exists. The time is ripe for action, and we believe that should the Commercial Club once take hold of the matter in the same vigorous manner as it has done other propositions, the time would not be long until this boon could be secured. There exists already a committee on manufactories, in connection with the Commercial Club, and if this committee should confine its attention to this one matter and place itself in correspondence with men possessing capital, there need be little difficulty in convincing them that The Dalles is the most profitable field they can find for investment.

The copperhead is abroad in the land now as he was in 1861, or at least a species very nearly resembling him is making an appearance. Although the present war scare has not been of long duration, yet a class of individuals seems to have sprung up who declare that under no circumstances should America clash with Spain since it would be a strong nation oppressing a weaker one. While war, at present, seems improbable because the Spanish government is confessedly unable to raise sufficient funds for such an undertaking, yet the duty of the administration is plainly to make every preparation for any contingency which might arise. The opposition which has arisen in some quarters to the proposal of providing two additional artillery regiments for insuring the coast defenses is highly discreditable. The present trouble with Spain shows how easy at any time foreign entanglements may occur, and not to be ready whenever such an event should happen is the height of folly. There are going to be wars and rumors of war until the end of time, and the nation which is not fully prepared some day will bitterly regret its lack of foresight.

The Oregonian has discovered a man whom it can safely abuse to its heart's content. This individual is State Senator George C. Brownell, of Clackamas county. We do not know Mr. Brownell, but from all reports the halo around his head is not of magnified size. The Oregonian, however, states only its side of the matter, and has nothing to say about the time when the managers of Dolph's senatorial campaign offered Brownell $2000 to place Dolph in nomination and to support him. According to the Oregonian the "other fellows" are always the rascals, and its friends are altogether holy. If, as Joe Simon says, Brownell offered to sell out to him for $3000, the fact cannot be substantiated by Simon's testimony alone. According to the laws of this state, a conviction cannot be supported upon the unsupported testimony of an accomplice. The legislature of Oregon seems to have been a rather scaly affair, but we hardly think Simon would care to see all the dirty linen aired.

The Klondike relief expedition has turned out as everybody expected it would, a huge fake. If the government really wants to be of service to the people of Alaska, let it send steamers to bring the surplus population of Skaguay home, and lessen the victims in that fever-stricken community.

Whooping cough is the most distressing malady; but its duration can be cut short by the use of One Minute Cough Cure, which is also the best known remedy for croup and all lung and bronchial trouble.

STRANGE STORY OF CRIME.

Trustworthy Servant Turns Murderer—Husband to the Rescue.

One of the most remarkable stories of thwarted crime comes from India. A lady with her two children, who were both young, was going in her own ekka from Rannagar to a place in the center of the Bar tract.

The driver was an old servant of the family and was thought to be trustworthy. For this reason the lady did not think it necessary to leave her jewelry behind her. At a lonely part of the road the trustworthy servant stopped and ordered his mistress to pass her gewgaws along. She did so, not unnaturally, and then the man proceeded to bind her, preparatory to killing her.

At her request he agreed to kill the infants after he had dispatched their mother. He lifted the ax to strike the blow, but the head flew off and disappeared in the brushwood some yards away. By this time the lady was unconscious.

When she came to she found her husband leaning over her and undoing her fastenings. He explained that he had felt a dread as of some impending calamity, and so had followed her. In the thicket the trustworthy servant was found dead, his body already blue, putrid and bloated. He had been stung by a Khagi snake, whose bite paralyzes the victim on the instant and decomposes him in an hour.

PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS.

—Mollie—"Do you like trolley parties?" Dollie—"I just love 'em. You know I'm engaged to one; he's a motorman."—Yonkers Statesman.

—After the Summer.—Hinks—"Where did you spend your vacation?" Binks—"I didn't spend it. My wife and daughter spent everything else I had, and I thought I'd better save something."—Detroit Free Press.

—Bellevue—I say that the laws ought to be made stronger." Bloomfield—"I don't know that I quite comprehend your meaning." "Well, as the laws now stand, even comparatively weak people can break them."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

To Cure a Cold in One Day.

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if they fail to cure. 25c.

There are three little things which do more work than any other three little things created—they are the ant, the bee and DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the last being the famous little pills for stomach and liver troubles.

Don't annoy others by your coughing, and risk your life by neglecting a cold. One Minute Cough Cure cures coughs, colds, croup, grippe and all throat and lung troubles.
