REMOVAL OF THE MAINE.

The objection raised by Spain to the removal of the wreck of the Maine from Havana harbor are simply vexatious and untenable in law, state or international. The right of an owner to remove the wreck of a sunken ship is limited only by his ability to perform the work of removal, says the Tribune. The right exists whether the owner is a government or an individual.

Because it is lying in British waters, the British Columbia local authorities recently attempted to prevent the owners of the Corona from raising its sunken hull. The minister of the interior overruled their action and the owners were allowed to continue the work on the wreck. The acquiescence of our government to the objections of Spain is to remove further contention the Spanish government might raise in regard to the controversy connected with the Maine disaster. That our government does not exercise its right to remove our sunken warship is no conclusion against the existence of the right.

Spain's objections can be waived for the present. We have methods by which our wrecked warship will find itself once again under the flag it, living, carried so bravely, or, if it remain where it is, futurity knows that the bottom of Havana harbor will be a part of the soil of the United States.

While the country is disposed to be patient and give to the president necessary time in which to try all peaceable methods in settling our troubles with Spain, yet this uncertainty cannot go on much longer. Many believe we have temporized too much as it is, and have allowed the suffering and murder in Cuba to continue till part of the crime can be laid at our doors. Spain has done enough to warrant her being swept from the roster of the nations, and the United States has reasons sufficient to justify decisive action. We trust that President McKinley, in his great desire to avoid the horrors of war, will not delay much longer. The patience of the people may soon become exhausted, and then it will be hard to prevent them from resorting to measures more stringent than are wise.

It is stated that the Oregonian, which is publishing a series of letters by one Wallace McCammant, a youth not altogether unknown to fame, upon the political situation in Multnomah county, has refused to publish answers to the same written by opponents of Mr. McCammant and his political godfather, Mr. Simon. If such be the case, the Oregonian is not fulfilling its claims as an independent journal, which is not the organ of any man or faction. The people want the truth, and when evidence is suppressed by one side, it is regarded as indicating that if the evidence were produced it would be against the party wishing to suppress it. If the Oregonian be wholly right in its views of local politics, it should not be afraid of anything the Anti-Simon people may say.

Joseph Simon will make a desperate struggle for political existence at the Republican convention in Astoria. If he and his candidates are beaten, Simon will soon pass from off the political stage and a new dispensation will begin in the Republican party. The reports from the primary elections held in the different counties indicate that the anti-Simon sentiment is very strong. If the Simon-Sect combine is defeated in the district convention, Judge Northrup should get his running harness on again, as there will likely be another bolt.

Governor Lord has but little time left in which to call an extra session. If he refuse it will be but carrying out the trade which Simon made with the Populists at the legislative hold-up a year ago.

Rev. E. Edwards, pastor of the English Baptist Church at Minersville, Pa., when suffering with rheumatism, was advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says: "A few applications of this liniment proved of great service to me. It subdued the inflammation and relieved the pain. Should any suffer profit by giving Pain Balm a trial it will please me." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

Foutz' cigars are on sale at the following places: Snipes-Kinersly, Clark & Falk and M. Z. Donnell, druggists; Commission Co., Geo. Ruch, Fred Fisher and Chas.
