WHAT MUST BE DONE.

For many years the problem of transportation was a troublesome one for The Dalles. Depending entirely upon a single line of railroad, our merchants were compelled to pay freight rates greatly in excess of what they should have been. This condition was ameliorated only through persistent agitation and the efforts of our citizens, which resulted in an independent line of steamers being placed upon the river. This brought freight rates to their proper level. With the advent of competing transportation, the business of this city received a great impetus, and attention was directed to this place because of the recognized advantages which The Dalles held over other Eastern Oregon towns. No other factor has done so much toward the upbuilding of this city as the starting and maintaining of the boat line.

The completion of the Cascade Locks has removed forever any possibility of the merchants of The Dalles becoming the prey of foreign monopoly. Low freight rates are permanently secured, and the benefit can hardly be overestimated.

Some are making the mistake, however, of supposing that this alone provides for the permanent prosperity and growth of The Dalles. This is hardly the case, notwithstanding it is a great aid in such a direction. Other means must be provided to continue and increase the trade now coming to this point, so that compensation may be had for the loss of territory which may be tapped by the building of railroads from other places.

There are two propositions which must be kept ever in view by those who have at heart the city's welfare. One is that a better system of roads leading into the interior must be devised; and the other is that the manifest destiny of The Dalles, if properly worked out, is to become a manufacturing center. The arguments in favor of these contentions have been repeated so often and are known so well that it is useless to state them here; but the time has come, or is coming fast, when something more than mere acknowledgement of their force will suffice. We cannot live because of the past alone; it is necessary to prepare for the future, and this year, in the minds of many, decides whether we intend to fulfill our destiny, or let it slip by unnoticed, as many other good things have done.

The position occupied by President McKinley just now is peculiarly a hard one. Upon him rests the responsibility of settling the Spanish difficulty without war, if possible, and at the same time satisfy the demands of the American people, the great majority of whom favor aggressive movement in the direction of war. Today will probably determine whether or not congress itself will take the matter in charge. The president has acted most honorably and creditably in all his negotiations, and congress would do well to allow him a little more time in bringing Spain to terms. At the same time none will deny that the incentive and provocation for congress to declare war immediately is great.

Now is the time for statesmanship in the Republican party to come to the front, and for the "politicians" to go to the rear. Republican success next June depends altogether upon the wisdom shown in party councils between now and the close of the Astoria convention. Nothing can be more certain than that a bolt by a disgruntled faction at that convention will mean Populist success at the polls. Outside of Multnomah county the party in the state is united, and the delegates who attend the convention should do now, as they should have done two years ago, ignore the Multnomah county fight and make nominations which shall appeal to the commendation of the people at large, whether they meet the views of the professional politician or not.

Representative Ellis has had the honor of presiding over the house of representatives during an absence of Speaker Reed. This is a compliment to Oregon's congressman which his friends will appreciate.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

This remedy is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough and influenza. It has become famous for its cures of these diseases, over a large part of the civilized world. The most flattering testimonials have been received, giving accounts of its good works; of the aggravating and persistent coughs it has cured; of severe colds that have yielded promptly to its soothing effects, and of the dangerous attacks of croup it has cured, often saving the life of the child. The extensive use of it for whooping coughs has shown that it robs that disease of all dangerous consequences. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

Whooping cough is the most distressing malady; but its duration can be cut short by the use of One Minute Cough Cure, which is also the best known remedy for croup and all lung and bronchial trouble.
