Last night a carload of beef cattle arrived from Huntington for Wood Bros., of this city. Like all the beef that is sold in this popular market, they are in splendid shape.

Last evening Charles Clarke, who has for six years been in the employ of the Snipes-Kinnersly Drug Co., resigned his position with that firm, and will immediately accept a like one in the drug-store of Clarke & Falk in this city.

Sheriff R. A. Sims, of Whitman county, Wash., is in the city today. He informs us that the grand jury which is investigating the Marshall lynching, is meeting with very poor success, and there is little chance of their bringing in an indictment against anyone.

Today the workmen are giving the finishing touches to the beautiful new glass front in Mays & Crowe's store. This is a marked improvement, as it allows more light to enter the store, and at the same time furnishes display windows second to none in the city.

Miss M. Scully, of Portland has accepted a position in Pease & Mays' millinery department. Miss Scully is a lady of a great deal of experience in this work and she offers a line of goods to the public that surpass any that have ever before been shown in The Dalles.

Rev. W. H. Iliff, of Portland will be in the city this evening and will preach at the revival meetings which are being held at the Methodist church. Rev. Wood has received word from Evangelist Miller saying that he will be in the city and commence work with them next Sunday.

President McKinley demands the independence of Cuba and declares that hostilities must immediately cease. A crisis will be reached in two or three days. In spite of all Spain's bravado she entertains the president's proposition, and there is little doubt that she is weakening.

A number of boys and young men are in the habit of going to different places in this vicinity to practice shooting, and using as targets robins, larks and other birds, and in this manner a great number of them are being destroyed. It may be well to remind these persons that a fine of $5 is the penalty laid in the statutes for so doing, and as one-half of this goes to the informant, they should beware.

Tickets will be put on sale for "King Hallabchoola II" today, and the box office will be open on the morning of April 8th. The admission to this unparalleled performance of home talent will 75 cents for reserved seats, while the general admission will be 50 cents. It would be difficult for anyone to contrive another way to spend this amount and receive in return the pleasure that will be afforded those who attend this show.

Today the city marshal has a force of men at work repairing the cistern on Second street near Skibbe's hotel. The cover, which was in very poor shape, has been removed and the planks, on which the covering rested, will be taken out and replaced by iron stringers. These are not only stronger than the ones used heretofore, but have also the quality of being lasting, so that after the job is finished no further trouble will be experienced with it.

A quiet, but pleasant, wedding took place at the Farmers' hotel last evening. The contracting parties were Joel H. Chastain and Miss Pollie Crabtree, two of Wasco county's esteemed young people. The ceremony was performed by Recorder Roger B. Sinnott. On this occasion he performed his first ceremony of the kind, and while the knot was being tied the young justice's blushes were almost as noticeable as those of the bride. He performed the ceremony with all grace, however, and we are sure that the knot is one which will not be easily unraveled.

WHAT ABOUT YOUR PROPERTY?

"Observer" Makes a Plea for the Appearance of the City.

(Contributed.)

As we listen to the exclamations of praise from the many visitors who, lured by the unrivaled grandeur of the shores of the Columbia, halt for a breathing spell at the gates our city, we, who are accustomed to the beautiful scenery around us, are led to wonder if The Dalles really is more grandly situated than the more pretentious cities around us.

Yes, The Dalles is beautiful for situation, and we have every reason to feel proud as we tell the stranger of the goodly land we have found and show him the grandeur which surrounds him. But has our pride reached to the small enclosure which we call our own? Have we striven to make that equally attractive? Are there not many homes, yet streets, which, in our tour of the city, we would fain pass by? many lots, covered with debris, inclosed with fences which totter in a vain attempt to do their duty? many tumbled down shacks which are a disgrace? many alleys, adjacent to business blocks and residences, which are filled with all sorts of trash that should have been removed weeks before? Have you not observed all this as you piloted your guest through the city, endeavoring to make a good impression on his mind?

The lack of individual pride seems to be our great drawback; pride that will make each one see the necessity of keeping his own property in good order, whether it be a vacant lot or a dwelling. In many instances we see beautiful homes, with finely-kept lawns and flowers growing in every available space. But what do we see as we look at their next-door neighbor's possessions? Perhaps a vacant lot, kept as a place to deposit garbage; or perchance a barnyard, and a meanly-kept one at that. More than likely it is a rude hut, which, being constructed at the time of the flood, has been kept as a valued souvenir, or as an ornament to the city—and a sore eye to the neighbor who is endeavoring to beautify his home, and by so doing, the city.

In many cases the lack of interest in this matter arises from the fact that so many occupy rented houses, and do not care to expend energy on another's belongings. But have they not pride enough to care for the interior of their abiding place? then why not the exterior? How much even a few well-kept plants in the doorway would add to its appearance. Nor is it necessary that a home should be a mansion; the smallest hut may be made home-like by a few inexpensive additions—by planting a vine so that its tendrils will entwine about the house, covering any defect in the architecture.

No place of its size, which has been so unfortunate with fire and flood, has more pretty, attractive homes, showing the taste of the dwellers therein, than has The Dalles. These we are proud of. But cannot every citizen do his part in this matter individually, and thus make not only the natural scenery, but the artificial, rival any city in the Northwest?

A social event of more than common interest to Dallesites occurred Sunday, the 27th, at the residence of Frank Peabody, when his eldest daughter, Edith, was united in marriage to Mr. A. J. Dougless, Rev. I. J. Powell officiating. The couple are residents of this place, and are loved and respected by its inhabitants for their true worth.

Monday evening a social dance was given by the groom to his host of friends in honor of his marriage, and the event was in every way a social success. The friends of the couple tripped the light fantastic toe until early morn, when all wished them a long and pleasant life of happiness and success. X.
