MISREPRESENTING PRESIDENT M'KINLEY.

Two weeks ago, when the president asked for $50,000,000 for national defense, there was unanimous approval in every quarter. Since then, however, there has been a concerted movement to create the impression among the people that in the hour of trial the president has not shown the proper amount of determination.

The main responsibility, says the Inter Ocean, for false views of the president's position rests with persons who have professed to speak by authority. The traditions of his office, the conditions of the controversy between Spain and the United States, the critical situation of affairs, all compelled the president to be silent. But there were men in the cabinet, in congress and out of congress, eager in an over-officious way to talk for the president, to make explanations that were apologies or misrepresentations, to prophesy what he would do and what he would not do, to insist that the president was striving to secure peace at any price, to insist that under no conditions would any negotiations conducted by his authority lead up to war. These explanations or apologies were repeated and they gained emphasis with repetition. The men who took this course seemed utterly oblivious to the welfare of the president of the nation. They played with the reputation of the president as if he were a mere figurehead and they the directors of policies.

The Inter Ocean pointed out at the time that this course was suicidal, that it would injure the president, ruin the party, and embarrass the national government. Still it was persisted in, some of the over-officious friends of the president going so far as to insinuate that were it not for certain strong men always at hand to support him, the president would be carried off his feet. The tendency of all that these men said was to deprecate the president, to carry false impressions as to his strength of character, to impugn his patriotism, and to question his sincerity.

It will be remembered that in '61 Salmon P. P. Chase, secretary of the treasury, could not for some time relinquish the idea that he had a special mission of his own in the cabinet, that he was a stronger man than the president, and that he should be given a free hand in accordance with his abilities. In a year or two it became apparent to the people that the president was the master mind of his cabinet and that he was patiently pursuing his own policy. He was misunderstood and misrepresented occasionally, but no effort could mislead the people. They trusted Abraham Lincoln. Is the history of the past repeating itself? Is President McKinley to be sacrificed temporarily to other men's ambitions and policies?

Of all men in the country no one is closer to the people than William McKinley. Probably no man in public life understands the people so well as he; no one is more capable of estimating the value of popular movements, and no one has a clearer perception of the duties of a public man to the people. Is it not time for the over-officious gentlemen, who have been pretending to speak for him, to apologize for him when he needed no apology, and to put their own interpretation upon his messages and declarations, to bridle their tongues and retire to the rear?

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by Druggists.

I was reading an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the Worcester Enterprise recently, which leads me to write this. I can truthfully say I never used any remedy equal to it for colic and diarrhoea. I have never had to use more than one or two doses to cure the worst case with myself or children.—W. A.
