CONGRESS AND WAR.

Taken altogether, congress has acted with a great deal of patriotism in the Spanish trouble. Barring a few indiscreet speeches and uncalled-for criticism of the president, the members generally have acted in a conservative, dispassionate manner. The senate and house have agreed upon a resolution which amounts, in its purport, to a declaration of war, and this resolution the president is expected to sign today.

This completes the second stage in the affair, the first having been the diplomatic negotiations carried on between Washington and Madrid.

As has been frequently said, unless Spain completely back down, war is a certainty, and it is gratifying to note the ease and quickness with which the United States has prepared itself for the conflict. We do not believe that the struggle will continue long, nor that much blood will be shed. Spain may put up a show of resistance, but it is written in the stars that she is a moribund country, and unable to cope with the fresh vigor of the West.

Whatever may come, this nation will have the consolation that it did nothing hastily, but only resorted to arms after provocation unendurable.

THE FINANCIAL PROBLEM.

War or peace alike demands a final settlement of the financial problem which has vexed the people since the agitation for free silver obtained a foothold in the federal legislature, says the Independent. We cannot count upon always being the creditor of the outside world; on having famines abroad and surpluses at home; on keeping at home the gold produced from our mines and bringing here stores from the vaults of Europe. The great gold strength of the national treasury, built up since the sound money victory of 1896, must be conserved. The banking facilities of the country need enlargement in some directions and more elasticity throughout. War should not blind us to the imperative need of currency reform; peace should be utilized for the greater facilitating of the work.

The hope of international bimetalism must be deferred by its advocates for a long time. It is obviously impracticable when the trend of events and influences in the British Empire is pointing toward the probable introduction of the gold standard in India before many years—perhaps months. The rising of the Cuban specter brought to a halt the efforts of the party in power at Washington to devise an acceptable plan for securing the foundations of our financial system.

Yet the duty of the nation in this regard should not be wholly abandoned under any stress. The government and the people must spare some time from the forging of cannon and the buying of warships to the great domestic problems of railroad regulation, revenue raising and currency correction, without the solving of which peace will never bring the fullest measure of prosperity, nor even war, however successful, leave the strongest power of recuperation.

As stated in the special dispatch to THE CHRONICLE today, congress has adopted a joint resolution favoring armed intervention in Spain, but not recognizing the independence of the Cuban republic. The resolution as passed is eminently a wise one, and is completely in accord with President McKinley's views. What the American people have long desired has come, and Spain will be hurled from off the Western Hemisphere because of her utter inhumanity. The United States can well be called the foremost exponent of civilization.
