JOHN SHERMAN.

Were it not that more exciting occurrences are absorbing public attention, the resignation of John Sherman as secretary of state would be an event of unusual interest. His retirement from public life marks almost a political epoch. With one exception, that of Senator Justin S. Morrill of Vermont, his was the longest public career of any person now living.

Few men have been able to wield a greater influence in shaping the legislation of this nation, and but very few have kept themselves as free from suspicion of wrong-doing as he. From the time when in 1855 he entered congress as a representative from Ohio until now, no breath of scandal has ever affected his name. Of a naturally conservative temperament, he struggled always for what he deemed the best interests of his country, and now with the hand of age resting heavily upon him, he retires from public life content that he has been a faithful servant of the duties committed to his care.

His administration of the state department may not have been so brilliant as his admirers could have wished, but for this there is abundant explanation.

Judge Day of Ohio is a new figure in public life. Outside of his own state he was practically unknown until the election of McKinley. That he possesses some ability is unquestioned else the president would not have so signally honored him; but he has yet to make his reputation in the office made famous by Webster, Seward and Blaine. Judge Day enters upon his career at a trying time, and if he have the right elements for a statesman, it will soon be determined.

As the wool clip of 1898 begins moving towards The Dalles the reasons for establishing a woolen mill have again become apparent. This city never was in better financial condition than it is today, nor as good. Now is the time to advance, and there is no one thing that can do so much for the permanent growth and prosperity of the city as a woolen mill, turning into a finished product the raw material which the grazing lands of Eastern Oregon furnish so abundantly.

It is a matter of regret that Oregon has but one senator to express the support which this state is willing to give the administration in defending the national honor by force of arms. There is yet an opportunity to rectify this unfortunate condition if Governor Lord will but listen to the demand of duty and call an extra session. There is every argument for such a course, and none that we can see, worthy of consideration against it.

Already the fusionists of Multnomah county are quarreling among themselves, and a split is imminent. When men are held together by no higher principle than desire for office, disruption is but a little way in the distance.

The good wishes which The Chronicle is receiving for the success of its new venture is very gratifying. From Dufur alone today five new subscribers were received unsolicited, while others have come from Goldendale, Cascade Locks and points in Sherman county. It is not an easy matter to have everything move as smoothly at first as we would wish it, but every day will see THE CHRONICLE nearer the goal towards which it is striving.

Patriotism is just as great in The Dalles as elsewhere, though our citizens are not making public demonstrations. But when it comes to furnishing volunteers, this city may be depended upon to send its full quota and more whenever they are needed.

The Shakers of Mount Lebanon, a community of simple, honest, God-fearing men and women, have prepared the Shaker Digestive Cordial for many years, and it is always the same, simple, honest, curative medicine that has helped to make the Shakers the healthy, long-lived people that they are. The Shakers never have indigestion. This is partly owing to their simple mode of life, partly to the wonderful properties of Shaker Digestive Cordial. Indigestion is caused by the stomach glands not supplying enough digestive juice. Shaker Digestive Cordial supplies what's wanting. Shaker Digestive Cordial invigorates the stomach and all its glands so that after awhile they don't need help. As evidence of the honesty of Shaker Digestive Cordial, the formula is printed on every bottle. Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 a bottle.
