F. M. Bowman was severely injured in a runaway accident in Walla Walla on Tuesday morning. He was thrown from his wagon, and suffered a number of bruises and a slight concussion of the brain.

Earnest Jensen, Williams' window trimmer, is certainly up to date in every line. In his latest window creation he proves himself to be somewhat of a military man, and has made a very appropriate window for these war times.

Judge McDonald of Colfax has instructed Prosecuting Attorney Matthews to cite the publisher and editor of the Spokane Outburst to answer for contempt of court for publishing articles ridiculing him as a dishonest hypocrite and ignoramus.

The East End was extremely quiet yesterday afternoon. A few loads of wool came into the warehouses and some wheat changed hands at a good figure, while business at the stockyards was very quiet, as nothing but a band of hogs for Chrisman Bros., came in during the entire day.

The McKinley club, of Aumsville, met Monday, and elected the following officers for the ensuing two years: President, H. C. Porter; vice-president, G. J. H. Fryer; secretary, W. D. Shaw; treasurer, Ed T. Judd. Delegates to the county league meeting at Salem were also elected.

The Huntington Herald says; J. F. Moore, who is engaged in placer mining at the mouth of Powder river, arrived in this city Thursday, bringing twenty-five and one-half ounces of gold, the result of the first clean-up on his claim this spring. Mr. Moore will take the gold to the assay office at Boise.

Alimus lodge No. 15, I. O. O. F., of Goldendale, celebrated the seventy-ninth anniversary Tuesday evening at the armory hall. A beautiful program was rendered, after which the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs went to the Goldendale restaurant where a sumptuous repast had been prepared.

The next attraction in the way of theatricals will be Tim Murphy in "Old Innocence." Tim Murphy has gained a reputation on the American stage that but few actors enjoy. In fact he is unexcelled in his particular line and to see him in "Old Innocence" is certainly a rare treat. He will be at the Vogt, Monday, May 2d.

Numerous additions were made to Co. G yesterday. Three recruits are persons who have served their time in the regular army and got their discharges. When they heard of the call issued for recruits in Co. G, they were out of work and immediately came down from the upper country and enlisted. One of the new recruits is a fute player and will be able to figure in a fife and drum corps while the other two will go in as privates.

The civil action of Phil Brogan vs. James Bowman, was tried before Justice Filloon yesterday. The action was over a piece of property at Kingsley, belonging to Brogan, which the defendant had rented and refused to give up. The case went by default and the plaintiff was given the right of title to the property and the defendant was ordered to vacate the premises.

Yesterday Blakeley & Houghton put up a large bulletin board in front of their place of business, and in the future will receive the important dispatches at intervals during the day over the long distance telephone line. The beauty of a morning paper is that it gives not only a full account of the bulletin reports, but all the principal events that transpire after the receipt of the last report received the evening before.

A movement is on foot at present among the young men of this city who take an interest in wheeling, to have a bicycle club organized in the near future. Such clubs are found in other cities and there is no reason why one could not be organized here. It would cause an increase in the interest taken in wheeling and have many pleasant features. We heartily approve of the measure.

A farmer and his family passed through Albany Monday afternoon in the old way on their way somewhere from California, anything to get out of that state, which he gave a very black eye. He said the fruit crop was entirely ruined by the frosts, being worse than has generally reported, and that there could be no wheat crop practically at all. He had had all he wanted of the golden state.

After next Monday, May 2d, the ordinance concerning cows running at large on the streets of this city will be strictly enforced, and any cows found at large will be put in the pound and the owners will have to pay the regular fine before they will be set at liberty. Owners of cows should take heed that the ordinance is kept and they will then have no cause to find fault.

Eleven students of the agricultural college left on Wednesday morning's boat to join the company of Captain Ralph Terrell, now recruiting in Salem. The college men are all old schoolmates of Captain Terrell, who was graduated from the agricultural college last June. Each has seen from one to three years' drill service, and all are fitted for any position in a military company. H. L. McAllister, the well known foot-ball player, and Ed Lance, left last night to join company B in Portland.

The most exciting occurrence yesterday was a dog-fight that took place in the evening at Geo. Rush's corner. Dr. Shackelford's pointer and a large canine belonging to Ben Eben, between which had blood seems to have existed for some time, decided to settle the matter then and there. The Eben dog did the principal part of the fighting, while the one belonging to Dr. Shackelford, did sufficient howling for both. A crowd soon gathered and it was with difficulty that the owners succeed in separating the arguing brutes.

Persons who came up on the boat last evening stated that it was reported at Hood River and other towns along the river that a number of The Dalles militia were not to be found, but were in hiding for fear that they would have to go to war. This is as false a report as has ever been started, as Adjutant Riddell informs us that none are really compelled to go; but, in spite of that fact, as soon as the call came the boys of Co. G flocked to the ranks gladly and are at present impatiently waiting the time to leave.

An effort is being made to secure a summer mail service across the Cascade mountains by way of the McKenzie route. A petition to the postoffice department asking that the route be established for six months out of the year between Belknap Springs in Lane county and Sisters in Crook county, the service begin July 1st each year and continue until December 1st, has been prepared. The distance from Belknap Springs to Sisters is about thirty miles. It is expected that if the new route is established a stage line will be put on, thus making through mail and stage service from Eugene to Sisters, a distance of about one hundred miles. It is said that Crook country people are anxious for the service.

Mr. J. W. Covert, chief engineer of the P. V. & Y. railroad, came up the river recently with a surveying party on the Sarah Dixon. He came as far as White Salmon, from which place he strikes north and reached the summit of the railroad survey as it is now located. He expects to put on two crews and work both ways from that point. The soil, coal prospects, mineral belts and stone ledges along the route will all be thoroughly examined, and an exhaustive report made on them to headquarters of the company when work is completed. The party was well supplied with all the tools needed for the work, but expected to get their food supplies, pack horses, etc., at White Salmon or Trout Lake. Mr. Covert's report will be of special interest to the people of Skamania county, as it will publish to the world our resources of timber, coal, gold, silver and copper mining, building stone, farming and grazing and whatever other enterprise can be engaged in with profit, that will make business for a railroad.

There is a new disappointment in store for some of the patriotic young men, not yet attaining their majority, who are anxious to enlist and fight Spaniards, says the Oregonian. Capt. H. F. Kendall, lately assigned on duty with the Oregon Militia, will muster the regiment raised by Governor Lord as Oregon's quota of the call for volunteers. Captain Kendall has received no official notification of his appointment, but there are a large number of mothers and sisters who take the published announcement as correct. He has received numerous letters from this source requesting him not to accept as volunteers their sons and brothers, as they were not of age, and their families did not want the boys to go. Under army regulations no one can be accepted as a recruit under 21 years of age without the written consent of their parents, and with the formal protest now filed with him, Captain Kendall will have to turn down more than one enthusiastic youth who has enlisted and thinks he will soon be on his way to Cuba.

WITH THE MILITIA.

A Busy Day for Officers--More Recruits--Action of the Commercial Club.

The armory continues to be the busiest place in the city. All day yesterday the officers were kept busy getting the men out with necessary equipments, and throughout the day hundreds of visitors thronged around to watch the preparations. The day was spent in drilling, while in the evening a street drill was held. At 7 o'clock Adjutant Riddell held a guard mount drill.

Fifteen enlistments to Co. C of Pendleton were received yesterday, while eighteen new names have been added to Co. G during Wednesday and Thursday.

An application was received from D. C. Allard, of Boyd, asking that a place be reserved for him in the company until he arrived tonight.

The detachment of the hospital corps of Hood River, consisting of seventeen men, are ready and will join Co. G Saturday morning on their way to Portland.

The action of the Commercial Club in providing for the troops while here is certainly a commendable one. No provision having been made by the state for them, the officers found themselves at a loss to know how to provide for them until Saturday. The board of directors of the club took action and will see that the boys are kept at the expense of the Commercial Club while in the city.

IN VARIED CHARACTERS.

Tim Murphy's Artistic Success in a Double Bill.

A recent issue of the Oregonian says: "Tim Murphy in 'Old Innocence' last night at the Marquam Grand, gave one of the best character studies that has been seen in Portland for many a night. The comedy revolves about the figure of an old man, well-to-do and prosperous, yet not rich, for he steadily refuses to make profit out of other people's sufferings. The dominant feature of the play is the portrayal of this ingenious, simple-hearted old man, who finally, after being directed to a tenement house in the elums, where he was to climb a ladder to the seventh story, and find a blind pauper, with a paralyzed wife and seven starving children, discovers instead drunken rags and a collection of empty rum bottles. This deceives him. He suddenly veers about and becomes suspicious of the whole world, including his wife, his nephew, his faithful old butler and all his staunchest friends. The changeable moods, quick sympathies and kind, erratic impulses of 'Old Innocence' place Tim Murphy on a high plane of the actor's art.

"The other characters in the piece are planned to bring out in strong relief, either by contrast or underplay, this central figure.

"After the curtain went down on the three-act piece, Mr. Murphy showed his versatility by his clean-cut and strong presentation of Mathias, Henry Irving's famous role in 'The Belle,' as different a line of work as could well be imagined. This showed unquestioned power, and was followed by the portrayal of Colonel Mulberry Sellers, the late John T. Raymond's great character; Sol. Smith Russell's Noah Vale, and Stuart Robinson's Bertie the Lamb, all very cleverly done."

The same bill will be presented at the Vogt on Monday evening, May 2d.
