an altruistic campaign for the liberation of Cuba, which is in accord with the sensibilities of old-fashioned English conscience. Deeper down than the influences of self interest, which are many and varied, this sentiment animates the British people. That it does not prevail in the exclusive atmosphere of the "west end" of London, that home of effete aristocracy; and not in the precincts of Oxford, that most conservative and reactionary, not to say mediaeval, center of thought, is pointed out by the correspondent with all fairness.

These little cross eddies and stretches of back water, he says, however, are all on the surface. Underneath is a strong, irresistible current of all that is really representative of English character flowing steadily toward America in her work for morality and civilization.

The queen regent, because of fresh evidences of an impending revolution in Spain, is again urged to fly. Being a queen regent, it is, of course, impossible for her to simply leave, or depart, or walk or run away, or light off, to escape, or even to vanooose, as we say out West. To do any of these things would be considered beneath her dignity. Etiquette compels her to fly.

When it settles down to a question of dictating the terms of peace with Spain matters will simplify themselves greatly if we confine the discussion to the principals. Calling in all Europe to assist us will lead only to dissatisfaction, especially as we think we know what we want.

It is far from being improbable that Admiral Dewey will have to sink another Spanish fleet before he will be able to enjoy permanent peace in the harbor of Manila. But nobody need feel uneasy about Dewey.

Whooping Cough.
 I had a little boy who was nearly dead from an attack of whooping cough. My neighbors recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I did not think that any medicine would help him, but after giving him a few doses of the remedy I noticed an improvement, and one bottle cured him entirely. It is the best cough medicine I ever had in the house.—P. E. Moore, South Burgettstown, Pa. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

Schlitz's Beer. Fresh and the first of the season at the Midway.

LEMP'S ST. LOUIS BEER. On draught at the White-house Saloon, Charles Michelbach, Prop.

Smoke Cigars.

Why do we retail more Cigars than others?
 Why do smokers go out of their way and pass cigars of the same grade?
 Not because we have better cigars or better brands, or any greater variety; no, not that.
 Why, because we have the finest cigar case in the state and keep our cigars in better condition.
