HENRY NORMAN'S VIEW OF IT.

"The opponents of annexation," says Henry Norman, editor of the London Daily Chronicle, in his interesting review of the situation, "urge that the constitution permits no territory to be incorporated in the union which cannot become a state." They assume that neither Hawaii, the Philippine islands, Cuba nor Puerto Rico could ever become capable of local self-government under our system. The assumption is at least open to doubt. We have brought a number of states into the union under conditions not dissimilar from the conditions which now confront us in the Philippines and Hawaii. For example, California and Texas, California, at one time possessed by Spain, went to Mexico when that country won its independence, and the first Americans who entered the country found conditions closely approaching those now ruling in the Philippines. There was a large native population, and a large element of half-breeds. The Spanish tongue and Spanish customs were everywhere in vogue. It was a foreign land, entirely under the domination of a foreign race. Mr. Norman also recalls the fact that precisely the same counsels of surrender an inch." Particularly was this true of the acquisition of the country west of the Rocky mountains. In 1805 Representative Smyth of Virginia declared that the limits of federation could not be safely extended beyond the Stony mountains; he would not object to one or two tiers of states beyond the Mississippi, but no further." Senator Dickerson of New Jersey thought the attempt to build up states on the Pacific coast was absurd. "A member of congress," he said, "traveling from his home to Washington and return, would cover a distance of 9200 miles. At the rate of thirty miles per day, and allowing him forty-four days for Sundays, 350 days would be consumed, and the member would have fourteen days in Washington before he started home." Morse, in his Universal Geography, declared: "All settlers who go beyond the Mississippi river will be forever lost to the United States." In the light of events, and in view of the fact that the United States government is now using a city on the Pacific coast as one of its chief bases for the occupation of an important group of distant isles of the sea, these false predictions seem pitifully ignorant and feeble. Perhaps the day is not remotely distant when history will turn as cruel a light upon the public men who are now opposing the acquisition of Hawaii and the Philippines.—Spokesman-Review.

Spain has some reason to complain against Lord Walseley's recent comments on the war; such reason as we should have if the head of the French or German army should express public sympathy for Spain, and undertake to advise it in some important military movement. It is not probable, though, that the Spanish government will lodge an official complaint with the British government. When a country is at war, it must wink at a great many things which would be taken more seriously if more pressing business were not in hand.

Whooping Cough.
 I had a little boy who was nearly dead from an attack of whooping cough. My neighbors recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I did not think that any medicine would help him, but after giving him a few doses of the remedy I noticed an improvement, and one bottle cured him entirely. It is the best cough medicine I ever had in the house.—P. E. Moore, South Burgettstown, Pa. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

Smoke Cigars.
 Why do we retail more Cigars than others?
 Why do smokers go out of their way and pass cigars of the same grade?
 Not because we have better cigars or better brands, or any greater variety; no, not that.
 Why, because we have the finest cigar case in the state and keep our cigars in better condition.

For Spanish Headache

 Uncle Sam is mixing a dose that will surely cure. Not all headache cures bring about relief and many have a bad effect on the heart and system generally. We can offer you one not so violent in its methods as Uncle Sam's, but one which will remove the cause and cure the headache. Try DOCTOR WOODS' HEADACHE CURE. Put up by
