ACCLIMATIZING THE TROOPS.

No one understands climatic conditions in Cuba better than General Fitzhugh Lee. Ever since his first interview with the president there has been evident a purpose in the moment of troops to prepare them gradually for operations in the Cuban climate. Regulars from the West and North were first concentrated at Chickamauga; then they were sent further south, and finally to Mobile and Tampa. The volunteers, after a few weeks in state camps, were ordered to Chickamauga. After a few weeks' seasoning in drilling and marching, many were sent to Jacksonville and others to Mobile and Tampa.

In all this movement to acclimatize the troops General Lee and others well informed as to the Cuban climate have undoubtedly been advisers. No better point for the first rendezvous than Chickamauga could have been selected. It is warm there in this season, but the climate is no more than that of Chicago. It is warm at Jacksonville, and warmer at Tampa. Discomforts of camp at Tampa are very great, but the men are becoming used to conditions not unlike those which prevail in Cuba and Porto Rico. When they move to the islands they will be better fitted against climatic peculiarities than if they had been sent at once to the field of active operations from points in the North.

The management of the army in this particular has been admirable. Very little has been said about it, but it is clear that a well-considered plan, laid out by men of experience, has been followed with advantage to all the troops who are to make up the army of invasion.

There is reluctance to order the troops into Cuba in the rainy season, but for strategic and political reasons it is necessary that we have a foothold in Cuba and Porto Rico as soon as possible.

The plan adopted will take the men seasoned at Jacksonville, Mobile and Tampa to the highlands of Eastern Cuba and to Porto Rico, where they will be less exposed to the dangers of the rainy season. The officers directing the campaign are well informed as to the condition of their men and will not be hurried into blunders by the cry, "On to Havana."

ical souvenirs are kept, and fish out one of those dear old 10 cent ship-plasters, lest we forget, lest we forget.

Bad management keeps more people in hard circumstances than any other one cause. To be successful one must look ahead and plan ahead so that when a favorable opportunity presents itself he is ready to take advantage of it. A little forethought will also save much expense and valuable time. A prudent and careful man will keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house. The shiftless fellow will wait until necessity compels it and then ruin his best horse going for a doctor and have a big doctor bill to pay, besides. One pays 25 cents; the other is out one hundred dollars and then wonders why his neighbor is getting richer while he is getting poorer. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.
