A LOAN THAT IS POPULAR.

The $200,000,000 which the secretary of the treasury asks the people to lend to the government is a popular loan in the strictest sense of that term. The fact that the denominations of the bonds run as low as $20 brings them within reach of the great majority of persons. Anybody who has $20 to spare can buy one of these bonds with but very little trouble and with no cost to himself. Bonds can be had of national and state banks, money order postoffices, sub-treasuries and express offices throughout the country, without extra charge to the purchaser. In this transaction syndicates and brokers do not figure. The individual lender deals directly with the government. No favoritism whatever is shown, except that the syndicates will have a chance to get some of the bonds if the individual purchasers fail to take all of them. In this case, in fact, the small purchasers, the masses of the people, are the favored persons.

By this loan the individual citizen will be able to feel that he has a new and direct interest in the fortunes of the government. He can realize that he is contributing to the defense of the nation, though he is not a member of either its army or its navy. The fruits of his industry and thrift are here utilized in the country's defense, and will tell in the great work which the nation is doing for the cause of liberty and civilization. The individual thus gains a more intimate interest in the welfare of the state than he had hitherto felt. He will take a livelier concern in the manner in which the money is expended than he ever did before, will feel a patriotic thrill when he finds his country emerging triumphantly from the war, and will know that he has made a contribution to the victory and is entitled to a share in the glory.

There is little reason to doubt that the entire amount of the $200,000,000 will be subscribed by the people. Larger loans than this have been subscribed by the people of France, and there is more wealth, though less frugality and economy, among the masses in this country than in those of France. The average wage-worker earns far more here than he does there, but the necessity for saving is not so incessant or imperative. This loan has many attractions. The 3 per cent rate of interest which will be paid is about as high as the savings banks in these days of congested money markets offer. Of course the security is better than a savings bank or any other private financial institution can furnish. The prosperity which has come to the country since the destruction of the silver menace in November, 1896, has made money plentiful, and has immensely increased the government's financial stability and credit. This loan ought to be, and probably will be, subscribed quickly.

The big auxiliary cruisers like the St. Louis and St. Paul would be well employed in carrying troops to Cuba. They are strongly armed, and can outrun anything able to cope with them that Spain has afloat.

The departure of the Cadiz fleet eastward looks like a pretended movement toward the Philippines. No Spanish ship could reach there for six weeks, and then Dewey would take charge of it.

Mrs. A. C. Stubling & Son will soon begin on the erection of a new hot house especially for the culture of carnations and violets. The increasing trade makes this necessary and Mrs. Stubling feels that her efforts will be appreciated by her patrons.
