OUR NEW ISLAND TERRITORY.

When President McKinley signed the Newlands resolution a week ago last evening the Hawaiian islands became a part of the United States. The formalities of annexation will not change this fact. The president's action in signing the resolutions was notifications to the world that the islands had been annexed.

There are fifteen islands in the Hawaiian group, having, all told, an area of 7,629 square miles and a population of about 80,000. The largest island of the group, Hawaii, has an area of 4,875 square miles and a population of 17,000. The island next in size is Maui. This has a population of about 12,000. The third island in size is Oahu. This is about forty miles long by twenty miles broad and has a population of about 21,000, including Honolulu, the capital. The fourth island, Atauai or Kauai has an area of 780 square miles and a population of 4,961. The next in size is Molokai. This is about forty miles long and from seven to nine miles broad and has a population of 2,349. Nihau, or Oneow, is about eighteen miles long and eight miles broad and has a population of 233. Ranai is twenty miles long and ten miles broad and has a population of 348. Kahoolawe is eleven miles long and eight miles wide.

In addition to these eight islands, which extend in line, covering a distance of about 450 miles, there is the island of Palmyra, about 800 miles south of the main group. This has an area of about sixty square miles and is claimed by the Hawaiian government. The islands have been practically occupied by the United States as a coaling station and a resting point for vessels on the way to the Philippines. The government is self-supporting and there will be no special burden to the United States as an incident of annexation.

There seems to be little doubt that Cuban insurgents along the shore fired upon and killed a number of Spanish sailors who were struggling in their efforts to escape from Cervera's shattered fleet. At first thought this will strike the average American as an exhibition of wanton barbarity. But the average American cannot put himself in the place of the Cuban insurgent, nor feel as the Cuban father, husband or brother feels who has experienced nothing save evidences of Spanish cruelty during the past three years. There are thousands of men in the Cuban army whose aged fathers and mothers, whose wives and sisters and children have been subjected to unspeakable atrocities at the hands of the Spaniards. These men cannot think of the nice points involved in the treatment of a disabled foe. They have been taught by bitter experience to think only of vengeance. No quarter has been shown them or their families, and they are prepared to give none. Barbarous the attack upon the unfortunate Spanish sailors certainly was, but the history of Cuba for the past three years is a chapter of barbarities, and if the insurgents are brutes they have been brutalized by the representatives of a nation that lays claim to advanced civilization.

It is hinted in telegrams from Washington that Admiral Cervera is likely to be released on parole from even nominal imprisonment. Action of this character on the part of our government would meet with universal commendation. If there is a Spaniard alive whom the United States can afford to treat with generosity, to say nothing of distinction, it is Admiral Cervera. Aside from the fact that his rank entitles him to respect, his bravery merits our admiration, and his conduct toward the crew of the Merrimac entitles him to our gratitude.

Smoke Cigars.
 Why do we retail more Cigars than others?
 Why do smokers go out of their way and pass cigars of the same grade?
 Not because we have better cigars or better brands, or any greater variety; no, not that.
 Why, because we have the finest cigar case in the state and keep our cigars in better condition.
