CUBAN GRIEVANCES.

Cuban grievances because of fancied slights at Santiago are cleverly made, but when all the facts are brought to light General Shafter's conduct of the operations before and after the surrender of Santiago will be found to be almost perfect. While the Cuban allies rendered signal service to the marines at Guantanamo, the main body of the army of Garcia failed in its task of preventing reinforcements reaching Linares. When the Cuban general reported that he was unable to prevent the advance of the Spanish column, he gave as a reason that it was a superior force. He had under him, by a most modest estimate, 2000 Cubans, fairly well armed and plentifully supplied with rations from the supplies of the American invaders. The report of General Toral shows that his total reinforcements were no more than 3500, and not a few of these were stragglers who came from some points near by.

It therefore appears that Garcia, with 2000 well-fed men, failed to stop the advance of 3000 of the enemy. This might be forgiven if the conduct of the Cubans in subsequent operations had not proved disappointing. They were called upon to assist wounded to the rear, to dig trenches and aid in other duties which fell to the lot of all American troops. These duties were as much a part of the success of the attack upon Santiago as the aim of the riflemen and artillerymen. It was not in keeping with the offer of the Cubans to place their soldiers under complete control of the American commander, and refuse to perform such duties.

With this spirit of semi-insubordination fresh in mind Shafter could not reasonably be expected to turn the city over to the control of the Cuban allies.

The United States, Garcia will be given to understand, is not waging the war in Cuba to place certain Cubans in control of the island. The war is carried on for the sake of humanity, to prevent those evils which Shafter has reason to believe may be repeated if vengeful native are placed in power. To reconstruct the government of Santiago from the foundation is a task which is difficult with unlimited forces at his command, and he evidently finds that he can best placate and govern his conquered foes by continuing the best of their petty officials in office. If it is found that they are wanting in executive capacity they will be instantly supplanted.

Cubans lose prestige when they begin so early to sulk. They have been treated fairly from the moment the first landing was made by American troops. Food has been furnished in abundance, clothing has been supplied and ammunition is their for the asking. In return the United States asks that they become allies in fact and permit American officers to exercise what in their judgment is the best plan for governing conquered territory.—Spokesman-Review.

None of the Spaniards now enjoying the hospitality of Uncle Sam has seen fit to issue a challenge to anybody to fight a duel. The experience in and around Santiago has convinced them that Spanish honor is safest when muzzled.

Free speech has been denied by the Queen Regent. There is nothing more demoralizing to a people than this. If an American could not criticize his government occasionally, he would not fight for perpetuity.

Persons troubled with diarrhoea will be interested in the experience of W. M. Bush, clerk of the hotel Dorrance, Providence, R. I. He says: "For several years I have been almost a constant sufferer from diarrhoea, the frequent attacks completely prostrating me and rendering me unfit for my duty at this hotel. About two years ago a traveling salesman kindly gave me a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Much to my surprise and delight its effects were immediate. Whenever I felt symptoms of the disease I would fortify myself against the attack with a few doses of this valuable remedy. The result has been very satisfactory and almost complete relief from the affliction." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.
