SPAIN CAN'T DO IT.

The dispatches from Madrid reiterate the statement that if the United States does not make proper concessions Spain will resume war. One day it is said that if the United States does not assume the payment of the Cuban debt General Blanco will reopen hostilities, and that Spain will fight to the bitter end.

The fleet of Spain in the Pacific ocean was annihilated by Admiral Dewey. The only effective fleet she had in the Atlantic was destroyed at Santiago. She has an active army in Cuba since the surrender at Santiago of 100,000 men.

Moreover, Spain cannot keep an army of 500,000, or even 100,000, in the field, for she has no money to pay the troops or purchase ammunition and equipments.

Bankrupt and without a navy, with a demoralized army and a population on the verge of revolution, Spain must submit. The United States is not presenting exorbitant demands. We are claiming less than any other civilized nation would claim after such victories as we have won.

Spain is broken, moneyless, helpless, and friendless, and in such a condition, she will accomplish nothing by threatening to resume the war, because all the world knows that she can't resume it.

France is on the verge of nervous prostration, and if a striker should let off a firecracker in the vicinity of the Chamber of Deputies these days the chances are that a Bonapartist or an Orleanist would be able to accomplish a coup d'etat before the excitement subsided.

We have begun the shipment of beer to the Philippines in return for shipments of cigarettes. It will be interesting to watch the effect of this traffic. Bets are even on the beer at present; but the cigarette is admitted to have its strong points.
