LESE MAJESTE.

In the prosecution of the lese majeste cases in Germany, the crown has gone mad, and tyranny has soared to heights which would not be tolerated in England or the United States, says the Spokesman Review.

The cable dispatches report that "a respectable girl of 19, named Jenny Dyk, has been sentenced at Breslau to two month's imprisonment for merely criticizing a picture of the emperor which was exposed in a store window; and a girl 17 years of age at Cologne has been sentenced to six months in jail because, in the presence of another girl, she tore down a portrait of the emperor from the walls of her own room."

These astounding acts of persecution rival the apocryphal tyranny of the Austrian Gessler, who, as the story runs, set up his head-dress in the public square and compelled the people to bow before it.

Pride runs before a fall, and unless the mad monarch of Berlin shall come to his senses, or the strain be ended by his death, a mighty fall awaits him. His notions of kingly power are out of tune with the world's song of progress and freedom. He will push the German nation too far. One of these fine mornings, in the dawn of the twentieth century, his crown will be shaken from his head, and he will flee for his life.

NAVAL ACTIVITY.

The naval bureaus of England and France have been taught a lesson by the conduct of the late war with Spain. At the first sign of approaching trouble there has been a feverish rush in the navy yards thoroughly to equip the warships with every appliance calculated to cripple or destroy an enemy. The extraordinary success of American naval forces has introduced new systems in Europe. The nation which fails to keep its navy up to the highest degree of proficiency will invite attack and disaster. Russia and Germany have begun activity in their naval departments, and even Turkey is looking about for new vessels to maintain the prestige of the sultan on the sea.

It was this knowledge which had much to do with the continued activity of Secretary Long and his most competent subordinates in the navy department of the United States. The guns of the squadron off Santiago were scarcely cool before the ships were ordered post haste to dry docks and repair stations. Two new battleships and three torpedo boats have been launched and could be put in commission in a few months. Naval stores have been replenished, the vacancies in crews filled, and the powder and projectile compartments replenished.

If the United States is to become involved in another dispute, the navy is ready for it.

TAKE WARNING.

Notice is hereby given to all property owners that all flues and chimneys must be constructed in accordance with the ordinance against danger by fire, and if said chimneys and flues are not constructed in accordance therewith, the full penalty will be inflicted on the offender.

The following is a copy of said ordinance, regulating the building of flues and chimneys:

Section 9. That every chimney or flue that hereafter may be built in any frame building within the city shall have walls of good quality of brick or stone at least four inches in thickness, and be laid in good lime and mortar and be plastered on the inside, and when passing through or near the wood work to be plastered on the outside.

No chimney or flue shall be built which shall have any joist or timber resting on or entering into the same further than will have at least six inches between the end thereof and the chimney or flue. They shall be well secured and shall extend at least four feet above the roof of the building to which they are attached, measuring from the point where each chimney or flue passes through the roof, and should such chimney or flue be deemed unsafe to the building or buildings adjoining by the fire warden, they shall be carried up to such height as may be deemed necessary, not to exceed four feet above the extreme height of said building or buildings adjoining.

And notice is further hereby given that all chimneys and flues now in use, contrary to the above ordinance must be removed on or before December 1, '98

Do not fail to see the German Specialist. A friendly talk will cost you nothing, and is bound to result in a great deal of good to you. Will return monthly.

A Clever Trick.

It certainly looks like it, but there is really no trick about it. Anybody can try it who has lame back and weak kidneys, malaria or nervous troubles. We mean he can cure himself right away by taking Electric Bitters. This medicine tones up the whole system, acts as a stimulant to the Liver and Kidneys, is a blood purifier and nerve tonic. It cures constipation, headache, fainting spells, sleeplessness and melancholy. It is purely vegetable, a mild laxative, and restores the system to its natural vigor. Try Electric Bitters and be convinced that they are a miracle worker. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50c a bottle at Blakeley & Houghton's drug store. 3

A cough is not like a fever. It does not have to run a certain course. Cure it quickly and effectually with One Minute Cough Cure, the best remedy for all ages and for the most severe cases. We recommend it because it's good.
