It's Human Nature.

This readiness to accept the wonderful and miraculous in preference to commonplace truth. A plausible and glib-tongued doctor can go from town to town curing, or trying to cure, people, and have a great influx of shekels, while every community in which the so-called doctor goes is supplied with quiet, learned practitioners, who have forgotten more than the fakir ever learned, and they can give you the best treatment within the reach of human knowledge. While your home doctors carry you from year to year, get up at all times of the night and are your servants during the day, and you pay them when you are well or able, the fakir gets the cash, and is gone forever. If your eyes are troubling you in any way, call on Prof. P. G. Daut, the only graduated optician or doctor of refraction in The Dalles, two doors west of Keller's bakery. I am here to stay, and guarantee all eye work.

of all before I asked your permission to enlist. Receiving this, I immediately enlisted, with the thought of defending my country's honor. This I have done to the best of my ability. Now the war is over and there is no more need of volunteers; at least there is no more fighting to be done.

"If we are left on this island to do garrison and police duty, we shall be nothing more than regular soldiers. To this I seriously object, and can easily and truthfully say, every other volunteer does also. When I was yet a very small boy you know what my ambition was. It has never changed, but if I am compelled to stay here and do a regular soldier's work, it naturally will be a great impediment to my ambition. If one's ambition is no higher than a regular soldier's life, such duty as we are compelled to perform is what would suit such persons, for it is the laziest life imaginable.

"If there were the least sign of trouble this letter would never be addressed to you, but as the case is decidedly different, it shall be forwarded at once. Don't let it put you under the impression I am sorry I enlisted, for if my country should again be engaged in a war with a foreign nation, with your permission I would re-enlist, but would expect to be discharged when the war was over. If we have no orders to start home within one month from today, September 25, 1898, I wish you would please telegraph to the Secretary of War for a discharge for me, on the grounds that the war is practically over. Please attend to this matter at once, for it is of as much importance to you as it is to me.

ARTHUR. Mr. Stubling immediately telegraphed to President McKinley, and received the following reply:

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6, 1898. C. J. Stubling, The Dalles: Your telegram to the president referred to me. Have ordered discharge of Sergeant Stubling. R. A. ALGER, Secretary of War.

YESTERDAY'S ELECTION

THEODORE ROOSEVELT IS GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK.

The State of Washington Goes Republican by 4,000 Majority.

A late wire from Portland indicates that Roosevelt has carried New York by a majority ranging all the way from 50,000 to 75,000 majority. None of the Republican states of 1896 have returned to the Democratic column, and while some Republican congressional districts have elected Democratic congressmen, the Republican gains in the West have been enormous. It is a great victory for the administration, and will tend to a speedy and satisfactory settlement of our trouble with Spain.

Latest returns show that the next congress will contain 172 Republicans and 165 opposition, with twenty districts still in doubt.

The next U. S. senate will contain at least 48 Republicans, which is a clear majority.

The state of Washington goes Republican by at least 4,000 majority, and the legislature is Republican on joint ballot.

SERVICE NOT NEEDED AT MANILA

Having Done His Duty, Arthur Stubling Wishes to be Discharged.

The following letter, dated Manila, Sept. 25th, has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stubling from their son, Arthur. Its contents will give an idea of just how the situation of our boys at Manila affects one who is ambitious to make something of his future, but none the less patriotic when circumstances require his devotion to his country. He says:

"The last mail steamer arrived just thirty-two days ago, the coming one is expected daily, consequently the boys are anxiously awaiting her arrival. When we voluntarily gave our services to our country, it meant a great deal more than some of us realized; it meant our life and liberty was Uncle Sam's, and was subject to such use as he saw fit through his officers. Many hardships were to be taken into consideration. A very essential factor in this line would be the sleeping and eating accommodations, then the facilities for providing the sick and wounded with proper care and medicines.

"Many of the volunteer privates held a higher social and business position than the officers in charge of them. It is true there must be a distinction between a private and a commissioned officer in order to maintain discipline, but often the motives are of a baser nature. As you already know, I thought ferry. H. Hansbury, represented by F. W. Wilson, objected, claiming that a license is a privilege not transferrable. W. H. Wilson in behalf of Bonney is arguing that a ferry license is a franchise capable of being transferred. The case had not been settled as we go to press.

Archbishop William H. Gross, of Portland, Or., is at St. Joseph's hospital, in Baltimore, under treatment for heart trouble. His Grace arrived there three weeks ago to recuperate his health, but became ill while conducting a retreat, and, acting on the advice of friends, went to the hospital. The physicians report that his condition is slightly improved.

Owing to the business affairs of Mrs. Dr. Frank, the eye specialist, in San Francisco she will remain only until after Saturday, Nov. 12th. The visit of Dr. Frank to this city has saved many a person a trip from home, and they will be praising the skill and ability of their benefactor ever hereafter for the brightness of vision and comfort she has brought to them. Room 38, Chapman building.

Last week a young lady by the name of Annie Henderson died at the hospital in Portland, and many upon reading the notice in the Oregonian began to wonder and inquire as to whether it might not be the Annie Henderson who was formerly a Dalles girl and so well known here. From this inquiry arose the report that it was our Annie Henderson who had died and that her body had been shipped to the home of her mother, Mrs. Warner, at White Salmon. We are very glad to be able to inform those of her friends who were so anxious to hear the report denied, that her brother, Allie Henderson, arrived in town last night and says that Miss Annie was never in better health in her life, and is a very lively looking corpse.

Henry Failing Dies in Portland.

Hon. Henry Failing, president of the First National bank, of Portland, died at 9:30 yesterday morning, at his late residence in that city. Mr. Failing's health had steadily been declining during the past two months, and while his ailment was incurable, yet it was not expected to terminate fatally so soon.

In the death of Mr. Failing a great loss falls not only upon his family, but the city where he lived. It will be felt in financial circles throughout the entire Northwest.

Mr. Failing was born in New York city in January, 1834, and in the summer of 1851, accompanied by his father, Mr. Josiah Failing, and his since deceased brother, John, he came to Oregon. The elder Mr. Failing then established a mercantile house in Portland, under the firm name of J. Failing & Co., which now has been in existence 47 years, under various names, and at present known as Corbett, Failing and Robertson. In 1868 the deceased and Mr. H. W. Corbett secured the control of the First National bank, of which Mr. Failing became and has been president thirty years.
