REEFTON, New Zealand, Nov. 23, 1896. I am very pleased to state that since I took the agency of Chamberlain's medicines the sale bas been very large, more especially of the Cough Remedy. In two years I have sold more of this particuliar remedy than of all other makes for the previous five years. As to its efficacy, I have been informed by scores of persons of the good results they have received from it, and know its value from the use of it in my own housebold. It is so pleasant to take that we have to place the bottle beyond the reach of the children.

BUYING A STRAW HAT.

There Is Sure to Be Trouble Ahead for the Man Whose Wife Accompanies Him.

The average man never thinks of replacing his Easter headgear until the first hot day makes it feel like a cast iron helmet. Then he either rushes into a hat store and comes out again a poerer man in a new straw hat or it weak enough to tell his wife that he is contemplating such a purchase.

This last is folly, for though a wom an will let her husband buy his winter hats unaided she always thinks thu he needs her judgment in selecting a straw. She offers to go with him and when he makes a feeble demurrer and says that he doesn't want to take he time she folds her lips together with the air of a martyr and says that she "make the time," although she ought to be making her pique skirt. There is a preliminary dispute over the shop, for she knows of a department store where you can buy beautifu straw hats for 08 cents, and he has a man's natural hatred for the place where everything is sold. He gains hi point, and they enter a furnishing store There is a sudden dropping away o clerks, for the hat salesman dreads : woman as a burnt child dreads the fire Finally, a clerk is cornered behind as embankment of bicycle caps. The hus band asks for a medium-priced hat while his spouse pokes a collection of Panamas contemptuously.

The clerk burrows in a mine of hat under the counter and brings to th surface an inoffensive , lid of fin straw. He sets it on the head of the husband, who tries to look unconscious and doesn't know what to do with hi hands. The clerk says: "It is very neat," and the wife says that it is en tirely too small for a man with a round face. Another hat is brought up from the submarine mine, and this falls over the victim's ears. 'The wife sniffs and picks up a hat at random, which she claps on her better half's head. He looks like a comic valentine, and tells her to let the hat salesman select the headgear.

The salesman goes to another counter and brings an armful of hats, which he tries on the husband. "I wouldn't be seen on the street with you if you take that hat," she says, and he turns slowly before a glass to get the view from all points.

"I have just one more line," the clerk says, and picks up the first hat that was tried on. He hands it to the wife, with a wink at the husband. She examines it approvingly. "Why didn't you show this to us first?" she asks, sternly. "Do take it, and let us get away from here," she concludes to her husband. The clerk claps it on the husband's head, takes his money and address in order to forward the discarded hat, and they go out. When they reach the sidewalk the wife sighs: "Wasn't it fortunate that I went with you? That man would have palmed off that first hat on you. It made you a perfect guy, too. Those salespeople have simply no consciences!"-Chicago Chronicle.

SILVER TRUSS.

Is Used by Many

Leading institutions throughout the United States and Canada, and have been adopted by Guy's and Westminster Hospitals, London, England. In this Truss the principle hitherto so greatly desired has at last been achieved, that of firmly and constantly holding the rupture with a gentle hand-like pressure.

It does not pass around the hip like other trusses, but over the hips, the silver wire lying in the hollow of side, thereby allowing the free movement of the hips and limbs, allowing the wearer to stride out freely, and doing away with the fear and dread that something will go wrong that usually attends the wearing of other trusses.

Its lightness is featherweight in comparison with other trasses. It is so light the wearer scarcely knows he has anything ou, and this is a are it comfort, enabling the wearer to forget his silments.

It can be altered by the wearer to the shape of the body, not being made of hardened steel, and can, with a little judicious and careful bending, be made stronger or weaker in pressure, as desired.
