

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. DICK'S GOOD TIME.

He Was a Very Humane Boy and He Was Enjoying His Well-Earned Reward.

A portly gentleman sat on the porch and smiled, while a small boy, also smiling, painted the front fence.

"Look at that boy," the portly man remarked to a visitor; "he thinks he is having a good time. A small boy is surely the drollest creature on earth. When I was a youngster I remember that there were certain kinds of work I considered play, and one of them was painting. I was always crazy to paint. Many times I have taken a bucket of muddy water and an old paint brush, and have spent a whole half day putting a thick coat on the side of my father's barn.

"So with my boy, Dick, the little chap painting the fence; he has always been crazy to paint. He is enjoying himself now—you can see he is; and he will paint that whole fence, too, just as well as he knows how. I don't care if it is a little smeared; he's getting joy, solid joy, thicker than the paint on his hands and clothes.

"There's a mean side to it, too; he wanted to paint the fence and I wanted the weeds pulled out of the yard. So, like an underhanded rascal, I bargained with him; I told him that if he would pull all the weeds out I would let him paint the fence. He went through the other job like a soldier—he hates to pull weeds—all boys do—and now he thinks he is getting his reward. It is a downright shame to fool him that way—don't you think so?"

The portly gentleman chuckled again, and the small boy, wild with joy, went on plastering paint on the fence.—Detroit Free Press.

Declined with Thanks.

A Chinese editor returned a contribution on the ground that if he printed the emperor of China would insist on everything in the paper being maintained at the same high standard. That is a more soothing reply to the contributor than "declined with thanks." Why not put the case thus: "Sir, your article (or story) is so magnificent that if it were to appear in our pages our readers would clamor against the rest of the contents. We are compelled to employ other writers, who, if you were a competitor, would have to retire to the workhouse. In the cause of charity, therefore, we beg to express the hope that you will give up literature and apply your genius to the manufacture of marking ink."—London Sketch.

Sir Benjamin W. Richardson considered good sleepers as the best possible patients, certainly the most curable. He says: "I would always rather hear that a sick person had slept than that he had taken regularly the prescribed medicine during sleeping hours."

February, 1866, was in one way the most wonderful month in the world's history. It had no full moon. January had two full moons, and so had March; but February had none. This remarkable state of things had never happened before, since the era we assign to the Creation.

A marble bust of the late James G. Blaine has been placed in the rotunda of the statehouse at Augusta, Me. It is the work of Prof. G. Trentanove, the Italian sculptor. The bust is a gift to the state, and, while the name of the donor is kept a secret, it is said to be Joseph H. Manley, who, for so many years, was the confidential friend and political lieutenant of the great Maine statesman.

THE CENTIPEDE TURNED UP.

An Awesome Presentment Drives a New York Woman from Arkansas.

A New York woman, who lately returned from the Arkansas hot springs, is excited over what appears to be a clever bit of foresight on the part of her guardian angel. Some time ago she went to the springs in search of relief from rheumatism, and was convalescing famously when she suddenly had a presentment that she was to be stung by one of the centipedes that add to the attractions of Arkansas resorts. There was no ground for the conviction that haunted her. She isn't a nervous or fanciful woman, and she had never seen a centipede; but she lived in mortal fear day and night. The physician said "nerves," and the woman reasoned with herself and proved to herself a hundred times a day that she was in no more danger from centipedes than from tigers, but all the same she couldn't shake off the fear.

Everyone in the hotel knew of her conviction and laughed at it. She laughed at it herself in a tremulous way. Finally the anxiety began to tell upon her health, and her daughter insisted that, while there was no excuse for the fear, it would be wiser for her to leave the place. The woman stoutly said no. The water was curing her rheumatism and she wouldn't be driven away by an absurd fancy, but at last one night she reached such a state of fear that she wakened her daughter and said she was going away by the midnight train. She sent for the porter to take her trunk. When he arrived she said:

"John, let that trunk alone. I'm an idiot, and I'm not going to allow my foolishness to control me. I won't go."

The porter departed and the poor woman dropped back into her chair, white as a ghost.

"I've signed my death warrant," she said.

That was too much for the daughter, who, being a young woman of some determination, sent for the porter once more, bundled her mother up, called a carriage, and took the midnight train for New York, carrying a sheepish but much-relieved mother with her. The day after they reached here they had a letter from the proprietor of the hotel. He wrote that an odd thing had happened, and that it seemed so strange that he couldn't resist writing about it. The morning after their hasty departure, a man went into the room at nine o'clock and found, lying just beside the bed, the largest centipede that had ever been seen in that neighborhood. There were screams in the windows, and no one could offer any explanation of the creature's presence in the house; but there it was lying, just where anyone, in getting out of bed, would have put her foot upon it.

The story isn't a good hotel advertisement, but it has made one woman a firm believer in presentiments.—N. Y. Sun.
