CHRISTMAS IN NEW AMERICA

Christmas of 1898 finds the United today.-Globe-Democrat, States in a mood which is in especial harmony with the associations connected with the day. Yesterday a paper was placed in the president's hands which advances the United States a long step among the great many customers. They now have the nations of the world and extends the henefits of the highest form of civilization to lands in which it has been that is producing such a furor all over unknown hitherto. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken traditions of the season. It is a internally, acting directly upon the triumpa of peace and progress. As often before in the past, war has brought political quietude and advancement. Rome's sway over the tors have so much faith in its curative barbarous and semi-barbarous peoples of eighteen or twenty centuries ago brought a peace which the world of antiquity had not known until then. England's rule has, throughout large regions of Asia and Africa, introduced tranquillity where hitherto there had been the petty but continuous and demoralizing strife of corns, and all skin eruptions, and positribes and races which had no purpose tively cures piles, or no pay required except despoilment and destruction. The United States has established quietude in the Philippines, which Houghton, druggists. have been in a condition of rebellion for many decades, and has ended the uprisings which have been under way in Cuba, with but short intermissions, since early in the century. To America, therefore, in its old and in its new boundaries, this day will have new claims to popular remembrance. It finds the United orable terms States covering a larger place on the map than it ever filled before. It sees the country weilding a greater influence among the nations than it possessed in the past. All over the world there are talks of alliances in which the United States is assumed to be one of the partners. The country is, to all the other nations, H.A. STURDEVANT, an object of an interest never aroused in the past. Every nation is anxious to be on terms of the closest friendship with it. The opposition which was manifested at first toward its expansion in the Pacific has entirely disappeared. The jealousies and rivalries which are felt by the principal Second Street, European nations for each other are MOLLIE V. O'LEARY, not manifested by any of them toward the United States. No nation in history was ever the object of a higher regard than is shown everywhere for this country at the present time.
