WORK OF AN INCENDIARY

Senator Fulton's Seaside Cottage Destroyed By Fire.

ASTORIA, Dec. 28.—Word was received from Seaside today of the destruction by fire of C. W. Fulton's summer residence at that place. The flames were first discovered about 2:20 this morning. The whole building was enveloped at the time, and within a few minutes it and the contents were in ruins, nothing being saved. How the fire originated is not known, but as the house was unoccupied and there had been neither fire nor light in it for some time it is thought to be the work of an incendiary. The cottage was one of the most pretentions at the beach. It was built last summer at a cost of $1200, and contained furniture valued at about $700. There was no insurance. Sheriff Williams left this afternoon to investigate the matter, and if possible apprehend the guilty parties.

WASPS IN THE PULPIT.

Nest of the Fiery Insects Made in the Minister's Pocket.

A well-known Pittsburgh preacher tells an amusing incident of his early career, when he was serving a country church. The time was midsummer. One Sunday morning he was unable to find his conventional black frock, and at the last moment his wife persuaded him to wear an ordinary coat which had been lying on a porch for several days. A large family of wasps had taken shelter in one of the roomy pockets, but in his hurry to get to the pulpit the young minister did not have time to examine the contents of the coat.

When he arrived at the country chapel the congregation was waiting. The services had already commenced by singing. As the aspiring preacher walked up the aisle a peculiar buzz was heard coming from the minister's person. Entering the pulpit he began his sermon by reading a passage of Scripture. Then he started in on his sermon. He had not gone far with the discourse until he began to find something decidedly wrong. It annoyed him. Soon the sprightly wasps began to crawl out of their nest and flew about the minister's head. He stood the ordeal as long as he could with any degree of peace of mind. Then the sermon was brought to a speedy close and with a fling the coat was cast out of a window.

DOGS AT KNIGHTS' FEET.

Why the Symbol is a Far-Reaching One.

I noticed in one of the newspapers that the king of Siam, during his "jubilee" visit to this country, went to Westminster abbey and that, seeing there the figure of some knight with his dog at his feet, informed his suite that in England "favorite dogs were buried with their masters," says Good Words. It was a pity no one corrected his majesty, for we may depend upon it that our adherence to the abominable custom—so common in less civilized countries, perhaps in Siam itself—of putting to death the favorites of the dead, will pass into Siamese history as a fact. The dog in question was doubtless a greyhound.

As being preeminently the knightly dog it was privileged in life to a special place behind its master's left hand at table and, after death, in effigy, to a place at its master's feet upon the tomb. Says Col. Hamilton Smith: "Hounds, shaped like the present, cannot be traced in the old Frankish and Anglo-Saxon manuscripts; they are all coursing greyhounds, and this character is continued, with but few exceptions, as the emblem of fidelity or gentility, usually couched on monuments at the feet of knights, to the last period of the recumbent figure." Put the symbol is more far-reaching than this, for the dog on the monuments of women was the emblem of affectionate fidelity to their husbands; on the monuments of men of unquestioning faith in Providence.
