THE OPPONENTS OF THE TREATY

The country is tired of the performance of the little gang of Democratic malcontents and obstructionists and of Republican renegades who have been delaying the ratification of the Spanish treaty. The treaty was laid before the senate on January 4th, just after the holiday recess. That is twenty-three days ago. The general expectation was at that time that it would be ratified in two or three weeks at the latest. Nobody had any right to suppose it would be held up longer than that. No other peace treaty was ever delayed so long as this one has been. The confederation congress ratified the treaty of 1783 with England at the close of the war of independence in one day. In less than a week the senate disposed of the treaty of 1814, which brought the second war with England to a close. Even the treaty at the close of the war with Mexico, which was antagonized by several elements, and which was amended, was before the senate only seventeen days, or six days less than the time which has already passed since the Spanish treaty went to that chamber.

Moreover, the delay in the present instance is inexcusable. Ostensibly the opposition to the treaty represents the hostility to the retention of the Philippines which is manifested by the fragment of obstructionists. The treaty, however, settles nothing as to the ultimate fate of the islands. The attitude which the United States shall take toward them in the future is not determined by the treaty. That compact cedes them to this country, but the country can do what it pleases with them after it is signed. No policy is formulated in the treaty or even hinted at. Spain gives the islands to us, and we can and will do with them what the majority of the people dictate. The treaty leaves our hands entirely free in this particular. We can give the islands independence or we can establish a territorial government in them and thus start them on the road to statehood, as the interests or desires of the country may determine. The treaty does nothing except bring peace, and peace can not be definitely established until the treaty is ratified.

The principal offenders in this conspiracy against the country's interests and wishes are the little band of Republicans led by Hoar and Hale. The Democrats' opposition is easily understood. They want to embarrass the administration and humiliate the Republican party. But Hale, Hoar and Mason lack this excuse for their perversity. Presumably these gentlemen want themselves to be considered Republicans still, although their acts would bring disgrace upon the party if it could be held responsible for them. Their conduct admits of no extenuation or apology. Moreover, their blindness and folly are sure to get a fitting and emphatic rebuke by their chamber, for the treaty will pass without the alteration of a syllable. The Republican party will not compromise with this gang of Democratic and Republican copperheads. The treaty will not be amended. No pledges of any sort regarding the future fate of the Philippines will be made by the administration or by any of its friends in congress. The vote will be had on February 6th, at the hour stipulated. The wrath of the people, which is already aroused against the Aguinaldos of the senate, will shame these obstructionists into silence and roll up an overwhelming majority for the treaty when the vote takes place.

Senator Stewart has succeeded in his ambition to get a third term from Nevada. The senator, originally elected as a Republican, was an active member of the convention that nominated Bryan. He is noted for his devotion to silver except in his private contracts, which stipulate that payment must be made in gold.
