Quality is Cleveland throughout, not a part slighted not a machine unworthy of a Cleveland name plate.

1899 changes—Wider handle bars, with new internal expanders, improved automatic oiling device, flush frame head, increased gauge of tubing, longer frame and new reinforcements, new ball bearing spokes, also new hubs. The Burwell detachable tire, more air, more comfort; special bearings along new lines. Crank yoke changed, doing away with disc on chain side; dust proof pedals; improved Cleveland gear case; new saddles.

The 1899 models are superior to any Cleveland ever offered to the public. They have more original ideas.

We have just received some '99 models. Call and see them. It's quality that talks these days, and Cleveland quality is talking loud.

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Last Wednesday evening at her home, near Dufur, Mrs Arabelle Stusher was united in marriage with William Staats, of Dufur.

The Dalles City left the locks at 1:30 today, and it remains to be seen what success she has in battling with the huge chunks of ice which she will encounter from there on.

The Smith Bros. will give their weekly soiree at the Baldwin opera house tomorrow night. Their parties are becoming more popular every week and if you wish to enjoy a pleasant evening don't fail to attend.

Yesterday morning the senate passed the Donnelly bill to create Wheeler county; though a telegram from Salem says only one of three senators representing people affected by it voted for it, which senator was Dufur.

If the lady who exchanged "fascinator" at the Elks party Tuesday night will please leave the one she took by mistake at this office, she will oblige the owner. It is of white ice-wool, and a new one, never having been worn before.

Just received at The Dalles Commission Co., a fresh consignment of Persian dates, pineapples, cauliflower, and cabbage. Our Poppy brand of Realand navel oranges are the best that are to be had. Try a roll of our brand creamery butter. It is the best.

This morning Mr. and Mrs. M. Randall received a telegram announcing the death of their grandson, Herman Sears, in Portland last night. The young man was about 17 years old, and had been taken to Portland from his home in Wasco to undergo an operation, under which he died.

Mormonism was given great impetus in the northwest by a convention held in Baker City Sunday. Besides thirteen elders from Oregon, apostles from Salt Lake, Utah, attended. The convention was for the purpose of outlining plans for pushing an active campaign in Oregon during the present year.

Mrs. C. L. Phillips returned from San Francisco last night. She reports the weather in that city as perfect, and the trip delightful. She informs us that the prevailing shades this season are fuchsia red and purple, and that the latest hats are those which turn back from the face, such as turbans, etc.

The ladies of the Lutheran church of this city will give a concert at the Baldwin opera house on March 1, 1899. They have secured the "A. L. P. S." male quartet for this occasion, and in addition the best of our local talent. No effort will be spared to make this entertainment a success. Full particulars will appear later.

While Eldridge Bledsoe was out in the Rinehart pasture, east of La Grande, Saturday afternoon, he saw a band of fourteen antelope, about three hundred yards from him. He was quite excited on seeing such a pretty sight, while they, on seeing him, took fright and went back upon the hills. They have undoubtedly been driven down from the mountains by the cold weather.—East Oregonian.

Tom Buckingham, who carries the mail between Fossil and Antelope, reports that, owing to an ice gorge in the John Day river, just below Clarno's ferry, the gay ropes broke, and when the gorge was broken the ferry boat was left high and dry above the high water mark. The flood also carried away the little steam launch, which has no doubt been dashed to pieces on the rocks in the rapids a few miles below the mouth of Pine creek.—Globe.

Today has been set apart by the national convention of the W. O. T. U. as a day of memorial for Frances E. Willard, being the anniversary of her death. As a number of the leading members of that organization in this city are absent, it was not thought advisable to hold any special exercises. However, no doubt the thoughts of every lover of reform who holds sacred the memory of this noble woman, have today dwelt on the beauty of her life and the wonderful results of its work.

Last night Charles Frank received a letter from a friend in Kalamath Falls, which is about seventy-five miles from Ashland, which tells of the death of George Keller, so well known in The Dalles, and who kept a butcher shop here up till last fall, when he moved to Kalamath and went into business there. About a month ago he was taken ill of typhoid fever, which developed into pneumonia from which he died last Monday morning at 11:20 o'clock. Mr. Keller is about 34 years of age, and leaves a wife and three small children—a boy and two girls.

FORRESTER ON TRIAL

THE COURT ROOM PACKED TO HEAR THE CASE TRIED.

A Number of the Eye-Witnesses to the Killing of Phillip Brogan Examined.

When court convened yesterday afternoon the room was packed with people interested in the Forrester case. Many were compelled to stand as every seat was taken. Several ladies were present and seemingly took as much interest in the case as the sterner sex. When Forrester was brought in, all eyes were turned toward him, as the majority of the public had never seen him. He is a tall raw-boned man, of light complexion and walks with a swinging gait.

During the afternoon his wife sat by his side and seemed very devoted. She is a small woman, dark complexioned rather good looking and of pleasing countenance. Forrester sat quite still during the day, but did not seem to know what to do with his hands. He rolled and re-rolled a silk handkerchief and then would rub his hands together, appearing to be deeply interested in all that was going on. He hardly seemed to note the immense crowd that had gathered to hear what the witnesses had to say in regard to the killing.

The state opened its case by calling Fred Wallace, who testified that he was authorized by Brogan to make a settlement with Forrester, but could not as there was a difference of several dollars a month, in the wages between the parties. He was a good witness and was perfectly at ease while on the stand.

He was followed by Antone Nelson, who testified that on going to supper he stopped at Dial's saloon, and, looking in at the window, he saw Forrester sitting at a table talking with a man called Slim. They called him in and all took a drink together. Forrester and Slim then left the place, crossing the street and going into Silvertooth's saloon. A few minutes later Nelson's attention was called to a racket in Silvertooth's, and he ran over there and found that Brogan had been wounded. Brogan was placed on a bed and Nelson tore his vest and shirts off to see where the wound was. He then went for a doctor.

Just here court adjourned until 7:30 p. m. When Nelson was cross examined, Frank Gumm was then called and every word of his testimony was eagerly listened to. He was rather nervous while on the stand, but told his story in a straight forward manner. He testified that while coming up the street on the afternoon of the killing he was beckoned to by Brogan, who at the time was standing on the street talking to Forrester. When Gumm came up Brogan asked him if he had seen any of his sheep in the mountains when he came from Bear creek. He replied he had not seen any live sheep, but had noticed several dead ones and they appeared to have been killed by varmints. Forrester and Brogan then engaged in conversation regarding a settlement. Brogan said he would settle as he agreed to at $45 a month, when Forrester replied he did not understand it that way and would have all that he demanded or nothing at all. Brogan then started to leave and Forrester acted as though he was going to strike him, when Gumm spoke up and said, "You don't want to have any trouble over the matter." Brogan then went into Silvertooth's saloon and Forrester called Gumm to one side and shook him a few times, asking him what he meant by talking about him and circulating reports in the Mitchell country derogatory to him. Gumm replied he had said nothing but what he would say to his face. They had a few more words and Gumm took off his coat, when the marshal came along and quieted the matter.

Later, Slim, the Spaniard, Forrester, Brogan and Gumm met in Silvertooth's saloon. Slim invited all hands to have a drink and Gumm thanked him and said he did not care for any more. Brogan also declined and said, "You don't know what our trouble is." Slim then spoke up and said, "Shed your coats and go at it." Gumm looked around and thought the Spaniard was going to get in the mix up and as Forrester made a step forward he, Gumm, took off his coat and made for Forrester. He was interrupted by two different men but succeeded in getting away from them, and reaching Forrester hit him a blow with his fist, knocking him to the floor. At this time the Spaniard grabbed Gumm by the throat and began choking him. When he got away from the Spaniard and regained his breath he saw Forrester with a knife in his hand and Brogan staggering backwards. As near as he could state he thought he saw Forrester go out of the back door, but being rather excited he was not sure. The defense cross-examined Gumm very minutely and brought out all the facts in detail.

It was nearly 10 o'clock when court adjourned.

MORNING SESSION.

After court met in the morning, Chas. Clarno, of Antelope, was the first witness called. Mr. Clarno was asked by the prosecution if when he first saw Forrester, he (Forrester) had anything in his hand. The witness replied that Forrester had a knife in his hand, but that he did not see him until after Forrester had been knocked down. The prosecution objected to the latter part of the question and moved that it be struck out and the defense resisting the motion, a lively legal argument resulted which consumed a great portion of the morning. The motion was finally allowed and the answer was stricken out. In the cross examination of Clarno the attorneys for the defense wished to go into the circumstances at the time Forrester was seen with the knife in his hand, and to this the prosecution objected, claiming that it was extending the latitude of cross examination too far. The court permitted them to cross examine to some extent, and the matter of Gumm striking Forrester and other circumstances were gone into. Objections to the line of cross examination were continuously made, and shortly after the noon hour the court concluded the rules of cross examination had been stretched far enough, and refused to permit the cross examination to go further in the lines indicated. The legal arguments which took place this morning were made very forcibly and were watched with close attention by the entire court room. All the attorneys took a hand at different times, and from the vehemence with which the arguments were made, it could be seen that the discussion of the point involved had an important bearing on the case.

At 12:25 the court adjourned until 1:45 when the same large crowd was present. Mr. Clarno was re-called and stayed on the stand until 3 o'clock. He testified regarding the kind of a knife that Forrester had, and was asked by the prosecution if he had not made different statements at the coroner's inquest.

Up to the time of going to press the entire day had been taken up almost entirely with legal arguments.

Following Clarno, Dr. Wiley, of Antelope, was called to the stand and is testifying regarding the nature of the wound.

A GRIST OF BILLS.

Work of the Legislature About Ended—Will Adjourn Tonight.

STATE HOUSE, Salem, Feb. 17.—House considered senate bills and the senate house bills today.

The house passed bills as follows: Providing for the kinds of money in which taxes shall be paid. Authorizing the county court to construct logging roads. Amending the law relating to trade marks. Submitting the constitutional amendments relative to forty-five of them next election. Providing for the sale of agricultural lands. To release sureties on bonds. To change the amount and character of fees for county clerks.

The senate passed a bill to apply to the military fund all money received from the United States government for transportation, etc, and to restore to the military fund certain other moneys.

Also a measure for more efficient organization and discipline in the Oregon militia. The general appropriation bill was also passed.

Both houses convened at 1:30 p. m. The chances are that the night session will not adjourn till 4 o'clock tomorrow morning. Appropriation bills are occupying the time now. The house is discussing the senate amendments in general, and the senate is laboring on two special appropriations.
