

1899 - SPRING - 1899

We realize that we are in advance of the season, but the demand for White Goods for functions and the approaching Commencement Exercises of the High School warrants us in placing these goods on sale, which we have had in the warehouse more than two weeks, waiting for the time and opportunity to get our house-cleaning thoroughly done before opening up. Those that are the most interesting at present are:

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Mike Larkins, who has for years been a resident of Antelope, died at that place Saturday.
The match bowling game between the Astoria and Dalles ladies has been postponed, the former team failing to secure the requisite number for a game.
We are very sorry to learn of the serious illness of the little son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fowler. The little fellow is reported somewhat better this afternoon.
Forty-seven witnesses have been summoned from the Antelope community on the different cases to be tried at this session of court here. Others may be summoned yet during the week.
The high scores at the Moody bowling alley last week were as follows: C. Heppner, 55; M. T. Nolan, 65; J. Singleton, 51; C. Heppner, 58; Heppner, 70; Wm. Wilhelm, 56; H. A. Staniels, 70.
When asked by the attorney in court this morning in what county he lived, Wm. Cowne said when he left home he lived in Caleb, Grant county, but when he returned he expected to live in Wheeler county.
Friday evening Mrs. H. B. Borthwick died at her home in Portland from the effects of a stroke of paralysis, which she suffered about two months ago. She was quite well known to Dalles people, having lived at the Looks for some time.
The James Kidder-Warde triumvirate is billed to be in Portland the latter part of this month. Dalles people should not miss the opportunity to hear them, but form a party, secure seats in time, and go to Portland to hear these famous actors.
It will be a treat to Dalles people to hear the "A. L. P. S." quartet at the concert March 1st. It is composed of Messrs. Akers, Lundell, Poling and Steel, who sang together in the valley for years, and whose harmony is said by all who have heard them to be perfect.
Through a mistake some lady exchanged "fascinators" at the Elk's party last week. If any one finds in her possession a new white ice-wool fascinator, which is not her own, she will greatly oblige the owner by leaving it at this office and receiving the one belonging to her. $20 3t.
Having resumed their old-time custom, the ladies of the Good Intent Society will on Saturday have on sale in J. H. Cross' window, on the corner of Second and Federal streets, pies, cakes and all kinds of pastry. Remember the fact and save yourself the trouble of cooking.
At 4:15 Saturday evening the Regulator made a trial trip to Lyle for the purpose of giving the machinery a little "warming up." A few ladies and gentlemen made the trip, which was quite enjoyable. Just a light pressure was used, but the down trip was made in forty minutes, returning in forty-two minutes. She will be in perfect trim by the first of the month and will begin her regular runs in connection with the Dalles City.
Rev. W. R. Clifton, who has had charge of the Baptist flock at this city for several months past, has received a call from the church at The Dalles, and will leave for that place where he is informed some time this week. We have heard Mr. Clifton preach on several occasions and he impresses us as being a man of more than ordinary education and intelligence and with an entertaining pulpit orator. He has made fast friends in Prineville.—Journal.
The twentieth regular session of the Oregon legislature closed Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, and the large majority of the members, clerks and lobbyists departed for their homes in a short time, some going to Portland by a special train, others taking the California express at 9:30, going south. Sixty-six house and seventy-four senate bills have been filed by the governor up to Saturday night, and nearly all have emergency clauses to put them into effect immediately. Time alone can determine the merits or demerits of many of the measures thus enacted into law, and the wisdom or unwisdom which dictated the defeat of other measures brought forward for consideration.
Saturday evening the remains of Herman Sears were brought to this city, and the funeral took place from the residence of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Randall, Sunday morning at 9:30, conducted by Rev. J. H. Wood. The young man who was 17 years of age, had been taken to Portland from his home at Wasco to be doctored for consumption. He grew suddenly worse and died before word could be sent to his mother at Wasco or his father, who had been called to Astoria on business. Telegrams were immediately sent to them, and they arrived Saturday morning, bringing his body here on the afternoon train to be buried by the side of his little sister, who died here about three years ago of diphtheria.

TRIAL STILL CONTINUES

DEFENSE OPENED THEIR CASE SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Numerous Witnesses Examined in regard to the Killing of Brogan.

The court house was crowded Saturday afternoon when the defense opened their case. The first witness was Max Lueddemann, who testified that he took down most of the testimony at the inquest. He was called mostly in an effort to impeach the testimony of Farquhar McRae whom the defense claimed testified before the court differently to what he did at the inquest.
The next witness called was C. D. Bruen, deputy sheriff at Antelope. He testified that he saw Brogan and Forrester talking on the street near Bolton's store about 1:30 on the afternoon of the killing, and that Brogan appeared to be greatly excited, while Forrester was composed. Also that the marshal came up and requested that the loud talking cease. Further, that later on he saw Forrester and Gumm together and that Gumm was talking loudly and was very angry, and when they stepped to the vacant lot between Silvertooth's saloon and McBeth's, that Gumm took off his coat and said, "You brought me around here to whip me. If you want to, go at it." The marshal then came upon the scene and separated the two men. He also stated that he did not see Forrester take hold of Gumm's coat.
W. E. Kemp, marshal of Antelope, took the stand next, and testified that he saw Brogan and Forrester near McBeth's saloon, and Brogan was talking loud and that Forrester was very quiet and did not do anything. That as a peace officer he went to the men and stopped the quarreling by requesting them to separate and go away. The witness next stated that he saw Forrester and Gumm together, and that Gumm pulled off his coat and said, "If you want to fight, jump on." Gumm was using very abusive language and talking in a loud voice. The marshal then stopped the altercation, and Forrester seemed to be glad to get away. Witness said this was about an hour and a half before Brogan was killed. Also, that he heard Brogan say when he was talking to Forrester that he had been hurt by a horse falling on him and was not able to fight. Further that he said he did not want any trouble. Forrester said nothing in reply to this. Witness then stated that no arms were in sight, and he did not know whether either of the men were armed or not.
J. B. Moore was the next witness, and testified that he saw Brogan and Forrester in the street between Silvertooth's and Dial's saloons on the afternoon of the killing at about 5 o'clock. Brogan was talking loud and seemed to be very angry. Forrester said "go away and don't talk to me any more." Brogan swore and then Forrester left, and Gumm followed him next to the blacksmith shop, and called him a name and threw off his coat. Forrester did not take hold of him at all.

E. J. Glisan was then called and was asked a few questions, when the attorneys got into an argument as to whether the testimony was proper and after the decision of the judge, court was adjourned until 9 a. m. Monday.

MONDAY MORNING SESSION.

On court convening this morning E. J. Glisan was called, but was excused until later on in the case.
J. A. Howell, who runs a butcher shop in Antelope, then took the stand and testified that he saw Brogan and Forrester going down the street past his shop at about 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the killing, and Brogan was greatly excited and was abusing Forrester, who was quiet and only said "Don't follow me too closely or I will show you that I am no coward."
Thos. Hamilton was the next witness, and testified to coming to town on that afternoon with Auburn, commonly called Slim, who was working for him. Also that he had entered Slim's name on his books as Joe Auburn, which he thought was the man's true name.
Jas. Brown, the next witness, testified to Forrester coming to him when he was working near Caleb and asking him for breakfast. Also, that Forrester's face and clothing were more or less bloody.
Levi Linburg was then called, but our reporter being absent we were unable to obtain his testimony.
Wm. Kemp then took the stand and testified that Forrester's horse was in Dice's barn the night of the killing and all the following day.
Will Cowne testified that Forrester came to his place, about three and a half miles from Caleb, on Tuesday after the killing at about 3 a. m., and that he had a black eye and a cut on his eyebrow. Also, that Forrester said he was going south and on his way to get out of the country.
The attorneys engaged in numerous discussions during the time Cowne was on the stand. The state claimed that Forrester was fleeing and trying to get out of the reach of the law and away from justice, while the defense contended that Forrester's statements to Cowne as to the reason for fleeing were part of the res gestae.
The state then claimed that the declarations concerning his flight were self convicting declarations. Cowne also testified that Forrester stayed at his place about a day, leaving about sun up the day after his arrival.
Chas. Huffman was an important witness as regards the knife. He testified that he was hired by Forrester to herd sheep for Brogan in the vicinity of Summit Prairie, and began working on the 7th of September last, and continued for three months. At this time Cooper and Forrester were both packing for the different sheep camps of Brogan's. Witness stated that he got the knife from a man named Mulky in Mitchell whom he loaned one dollar and took the knife as security. Further, that it was a common butcher knife with a blade about six inches or over, while the whole knife was ten inches. The knife was used around camp to cut meat with, and when the location was to be changed Huffman told Forrester to take care of the knife for him and when he went to Mitchell to give it to Mulky, providing he paid him the dollar due on it.

The witness was being cross-examined when court adjourned until 1:30 p. m.

Honor Where Honor is Due.

The Astorian says concerning the Irish fair just held in Portland: "The Irish fair, recently held in Portland, was not a financial success by any means. The gross receipts were $5055, while the expenses aggregated $5403, leaving a deficiency of $348. The fair was generally considered more or less of a graft in Portland, the impression being that 'it cost nothing to get in, but a whole lot to come out.' The manager is said to have lost $2000."
Are we never to hear the last of this word "graft?" Having been used by Portland papers in speaking of our legislature, every paper in Oregon seems to think it the only word in the dictionary, and echoes from all over the state answer "graft," in every available space. While we confess the Irish fair was a disappointment, it had this in its favor—it was given for a commendable purpose, to erect a home for the aged, and it is to be regretted that it was not a financial success. No doubt these same people who kick because their ideal was not realized have patronized many a "fake" traveling show, spending more than they did there, and seeing and hearing much less, from those having no noble object in view.
Let us be less critical regarding home affairs, given, not to benefit those who give their time and talent; but for "sweet charity's" sake, and reserve our censure for those who come to us as professionals, and, while they tax us many times as much as home talent, seldom give us our money's worth, and at the same time take that much out of the town. If the show is a good one, give it your patronage and the credit due it. If it is meretricious spend your criticism where it belongs, not on your own citizens, who do the best they can for the good of the community at large.

In Olden Times

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with the transient action; but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently overcome habitual constipation, well informed people will not try other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.
