

1899 - SPRING - 1899

We realize that we are in advance of the season, but the demand for White Goods for functions and the approaching Commencement Exercises of the High School warrants us in placing these goods on sale, which we have had in the warehouse more than two weeks, waiting for the time and opportunity to get our house-cleaning thoroughly done before opening up. Those that are the most interesting at present are:

Two second-hand Feather stone wheels for sale cheap at Maier & Benton's.

Have you looked at any of the white goods just received by Pease & Mays.

All-over tucking—all-over laces—all-over embroideries, all over Pease & Mays' store.

Tennyson's "Dream of Fair Women" does not compare with the dream of laces and embroideries now being placed in stock by Pease & Mays.

Senator Dufur, having braved forty days of the "graft," finds himself unable to withstand the grippe, and has been confined to his home since his return from Salem.

Charles N. Crittenton, founder of Florence Crittenton Homes, and the evangelist who was in The Dalles three years ago, is now in Portland holding revival services.

Read the ad. in regard to the splendid show of trained horses which takes place at the Baldwin Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Go yourself; but be sure to take the children.

Tomorrow being Bixington's Wash Day, and a legal holiday, the postoffice will be closed, excepting between the hours of 10 and 11 in the morning. If you want your mail be on hand at that time.

When court convened this afternoon to hear the pleading in the Forrester case, the court room was completely packed with men and women eager to listen to the speeches of the attorneys as they present the case to the jury.

There will be no school in the various rooms of our public schools tomorrow on account of its being a legal holiday. Otherwise, we have heard of no general observance of the day, which is the birthday of the father of our country.

Grippe and mumps still hold sway in the city. Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Sargent are both very sick with what is said to be grippe. Henry Smith is now recovering from a very serious attack of the mumps, but the family of T. A. Hudson are all afflicted with them.

Through a mistake some lady exchanged "fascinators" at the Elk's party last week. If any one finds in her possession a new white ice-wool fascinator, which is not her own, she will greatly oblige the owner by leaving it at this office and receiving the one belonging to her. $20-3t.

Having resumed their old-time custom, the ladies of the Good Intent Society will on Saturday have on sale in J. H. Cross' window, on the corner of Second and Federal streets, pies, cakes and all kinds of pastry. Remember the fact and save yourself the trouble of cooking.

The enlargement of their store, and increased business done by Pease & Mays is necessitating an increase in the number of clerks. The latest addition is Fred Wallace, who is well known to all Dalles people, and having had much experience in the mercantile business, will be quite an addition. He will soon move his family from Antelope.

Everybody is courting now, old and young, lads and lasses, old maids and bachelors,—all, all are so busily engaged in this particular occupation that everything else seems to be forgotten. So interesting is the suit that the jury is wide awake, the lawyers are now pleading and even the ladies (regardless of leap year) are having their say in the proceedings.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational church and their friends, will be entertained by Mrs. G. E. Sanders and Mrs. J. M. Huntington at the residence of the latter, tomorrow (Wednesday) afternoon. These gatherings are growing in popular favor and a special feature of tomorrow's entertainment will be a trio sung by G. E. Sanders, J. Huntington and A. R. Thompson, which, it is expected will add much to the enjoyment of the occasion.

The concert to be given by the ladies of the Lutheran church on the eve of March 1st promises to be equal, if not superior, to anything ever heard in The Dalles. The ever popular A. L. P. S. quartet, assisted by Miss Alma Schmidt, Mrs. B. S. Huntington, Miss Myrtle Michell, the Misses Nickelsen, and the mandolin and guitar quartet, will render the program. The Lutheran ladies deserve the patronage of the church-going public in this effort, as they wish to continue in their good work of the past in relieving destitution and suffering.

In Olden Times

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with the transient action; but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently overcome habitual constipation, well informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system. Buy the genuine, made by the California Fig Syrup Co.

Those who have waited so patiently for "W. B." corsets will now find their size at Pease & Mays'.

NEARING THE END

TRIAL OF THE BROGAN MURDER CASE WILL CLOSE TONIGHT.

The Last Witness Examined This Morning—The Lawyers are Now Pleading.

The first witness to testify yesterday afternoon was Chris Knabe, who said he was in Silvertooth's saloon when Brogan came in and asked him to have a drink, which he did. While he was there three or four men came in, among them Forrester. Knabe then went across the street to Dial's saloon. Shortly after, some one said there was a row over at Silvertooth's, and on looking over he saw through the window a chair raised in the air. He gave several dimensions and drew a diagram of the building. He was a competent witness, as he was employed in constructing the building.

Garrett McCollom was next called, and testified that he was across the street at Patterson's store and heard the rattling of chairs and looked over in Silvertooth's and caught a glimpse through right-hand window of a chair raised in the air. He started across the street, and when he saw the chair raised he hesitated and then when about one-third way across the street stopped a moment and saw a man in front of Kirchheimer's blacksmith shop, who was going up the street at a lively gait. He was a tall man, but witness did not know whether he had on a hat and coat or not. He thought the man went around the corner of the building.

Geo. E. Patterson then took the stand and testified that he was in his place of business at the time of the trouble in Silvertooth's saloon and was shaving a man. He heard the noise and on looking over saw through the left hand window a chair raised in the air with the bottom part up. Witness stated that he could not see who held the chair as the panel of the window was too high. He did not see anyone come out of the saloon. He drew a diagram of the front of the building which was submitted as evidence.

Joe Aubin, commonly called Slim, was the next witness and testified that he came to town from Trout creek with Thos. Hamilton about 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the killing. He met Forrester for the first time that evening. Said he was in Silvertooth's saloon when Brogan was killed, and had just come from Dial's saloon with Chevis and saw Forrester in there. Asked several to have a drink with him, among them Brogan, who said, "You ——— I won't drink with you." Witness said to Brogan, "There is no use abusing me. I never did you any harm." Gumm then started toward the door. Forrester was down by the front door. He (Aubin) grabbed Gumm who jerked away from him and Aubin fell to the floor against a chair. He caught hold of the chair and tried to raise himself when Farquer McRae pushed him over the chair. He next saw Brogan on the bed. Also that someone went out the front door but did not know who it was. Witness stated he did not remember of saying "This is hell," but did recall having asked for some sheep-herders lemonade. On cross-examination he said he did not say "Go to it, boys." He had drunk with Brogan before, and had never had any trouble with him. Further, that "Forrester came in Silvertooth's right behind us" (meaning he and Chevis). Witness does not remember calling Nelson in Dial's saloon and asking him to drink. He acknowledged he was pretty full. Also that he did not know that Brogan and Forrester had had any trouble when he went into Silvertooth's. He had met Chevis only once before, and that was on the previous 29th day of October. He did not hear Gumm say a word to anybody. Witness grabbed Gumm by the shoulder, but he jerked away. Aubin also said that he was convicted at Walla Walla of the crime of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Raymond Chevis, better known as the Spaniard, was called next, and testified that he was in Antelope on Nov. 5th last and saw Forrester, whom he knew before. He was in Silvertooth's at the time of the trouble, he and Aubin having come in three or four minutes before. Forrester came in about the same time. "We stepped to the bar and Slim treated. Brogan and Gumm refused to drink, but do not remember what was said, but Brogan made some remark." He looked around and saw Forrester down and Brogan was coming toward the door near where Forrester was. Witness caught him and said "Mr. Brogan, you don't want to have any trouble." He jerked away from him and the next he knew he (Brogan) was on the bed. Witness heard somebody say he was dead.

E. J. Glisan was then put upon the stand, and testified that after the trouble with Gumm and Forrester near the blacksmith shop he and Forrester sat on the running gear of a wagon and had a talk, after which they went to Dial's saloon, where witness left Forrester. He remembered seeing Slim in Dial's, but was not positive as to whether the Spaniard was there or not. He also testified as to the blood stains in Silvertooth's saloon, and in what part of the building they were.

Chas. Clarno was then called, and testified that he had been working on Silvertooth's building and coming into the saloon saw Slim and Brogan. Slim asked Brogan to have a drink, and he said "I won't drink with you, ———." Slim then said, "Don't abuse a poor sheep herder." Then some one spoke up and said "Go for it!" Gumm went for Forrester and knocked him
