WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Bread is the staff of life; but that does not justify a man in making his existence one continuous loaf.

Probate court is in session today. The final settlement of the estate of W. L. Ward, deceased, will be made this afternoon.

A dispatch from Washington, dated March 4th, tells of the confirmation by the senate of the appointment of H. H. Riddell as postmaster at The Dalles.

A school meeting was held this afternoon for the purpose of hearing the reports of the clerk and directors, the proceedings of which will be published tomorrow.

The next poet laureate will no doubt be chosen from Pease & Mays' store, as no one will deny who reads the spring poetry in their ad today—or the poetry sprung in their ad.

Tonight will be the last of a series of dancing lessons given for the gentlemen by Smith Bros.; Thursday evening the last for ladies. Their Saturday night soirees will, however, be continued at the Baldwin opera house.

J. D. Hampton, who died at Eugene Friday evening, was the father of Frank and Al. Hampton, formerly of this city. He was a pioneer resident of Oregon, coming to the state in '43.

Congress having adjourned Saturday, Senator Simon was the first to leave the capital, starting to New York that evening where he will remain a short time before returning home.

The Portland papers invariably set our young men up in a new line of business every time they visit that city. A few weeks ago they informed us F. W. Wilson was a lumberman; now they refer to John Hertz as a Dalles banker.

Rev. Poling is expected to return home this evening. Together with the other members of the A. L. P. S. quartet, he will leave tomorrow for Dufur, where they give a concert tomorrow evening. Dufur people will be afforded a musical treat.

Jack Lawler was not so badly used up in the scrap Saturday but that he was able to leave town in the evening, being requested to do so by Marshal Laner. From the injuries received, one would have imagined him to be laid up for weeks.

The Temple quartet, of Portland, which added so much to the success of the wool growers' convention here last year, will attend the convention at Pendleton, which convenes tomorrow. We hope the people of that city will enjoy their singing as well as did those who attended the meetings here.

Cedar Circle No. 8 are to give one of their always enjoyable socials next Friday evening at Fraternity hall. An excellent program has been arranged and will conclude with dancing. Don't miss this if you care to spend a social eve. Admission, children 10 cents; ladies 15 and gentlemen 25.

For some time past Maier & Benton have been giving out tickets to purchasers of goods from their store, each ticket entitling them to a chance on a fine Garland steel range. Saturday night the drawing took place at the store, when No. 1352, held by Miss Della Michelsbach, was the successful number, and the young lady is the lucky winner of a fine range.

A Walla Walla paper says that P. E. Farrelly, of Portland, is now in Dublin settling up an estate by which he inherits $35,000. He will return home about the latter part of May. Mr. Farrelly is very well known in The Dalles, having left here for Portland but a few years since. His friends will be glad to learn of the good luck which attends him, making his declining years free from financial cares.

Invitations are out for a birthday party to be given by the ladies of the Good Intent society at the home of Mrs. D. M. French Wednesday evening. Those who attend are expected to give, as proof that they're glad they are living, an offering of a cent for each year of their age. The ladies have promised faithfully not to divulge the number of cents given by anyone. A good program is to be rendered, and a splendid lunch served.

Mr. Clark, the star performer of The Dalles Minstrel club, will return to Heppner in the near future with a complete stock of jewelry, musical instruments and stationery, and will occupy the building known as "The Maine." Heppner Gazette. We predict that Heppner young ladies will have no difficulty in remembering the Maine. We would advise Art to "look a little out" for fear some Spanish maiden may purchase her bracelets of him, and in the meantime give him a blowing up.

About three months ago Wm. Pointer arrived in the city with his parents from the valley, hoping to receive benefit to his health, he having been a sufferer from consumption for the past two years. But, like many others, he came too late for the disease to be checked, and three weeks ago took to his bed. Yesterday morning at 10 o'clock he was freed from his suffering, passing away at his home on Union street, between First and Second. He was 19 years of age. His remains will be taken to Hillsboro tomorrow for burial.

The new school law will make some difference as affecting the county teachers in various aspects, but superintendents are generally favorable to its provisions. Instead of an examination every quarter, as formerly, one will be held twice a year only. Under these circumstances not so many permits will be likely to be issued because of the risk taken in allowing a teacher to have charge of a school for such a long period before she can have a chance to qualify at a regular examination.

Douglas Dufur recently received a letter from his brother, George, who is at Manila, telling him of his good fortune in being appointed official stenographer for the Eighth army corps, under Gen. Hughes. This will give George quite a little extra salary. Some of the boys writing home before the recent conflict, said that if they obtained their discharges and were allowed transportation they had been talking very strongly of forming a mining company and remaining over there, believing that their are fine opportunities for making money there. Others intend going into various kinds of business on the islands.

Gov. T. T. Geer yesterday received a letter from Gen. Lew Wallace, the famous author, urging Oregon's executive to appoint Malcolm S. Jameson, now first sergeant of company E, Second Oregon volunteers, to the second lieutenantcy in that company, his reason for the request being personal friendship for the young man and his family. Gen. Wallace's letter came a little late in the day, for Mr. Jameson was appointed second lieutenant of that company of the Oregon regiment on January 19.—Salem Statesman. We have been informed that Gen. Lew Wallace is related to the Jameson family, an uncle of Malcolm's father, if we remember rightly.

A Bellevue, Iowa, paper has the following concerning Mr. Eberle, who has decided to locate in The Dalles and will open a tailor shop next door to Mays & Crowe's store, in the building now occupied by Pobman, the tailor: "John Eberle left for Portland, Oregon, last evening. Mr. Eberle goes to that state for the purpose of looking up a location, and will locate and establish a business should he find a favorable opening. Although we are sorry to see an energetic and pushing young business man leave our city, still we cannot help but wish him well wherever he may choose to locate and can heartily recommend him as a straight-forward, capable merchant tailor. Mrs. Eberle will remain here until her husband selects a location, when she will join him."

Wednesday night at the club rooms an exciting bowling contest is to take place between the ladies and gentlemen, the former having challenged the latter to a handicap game, and the gentlemen not being willing to take a dare. The contest will begin at 8 o'clock, and the following contestants will engage in the battle royal: Mrs. T. J. Seuffer, Mrs. Bradshaw, Mrs. Fish, Mrs. Houghton, Misses Annie Lang and Alma Schanno, and Messrs. Houghton, Schmidt, Baldwin, Kurtz, Bradshaw and Hostetler. Very little foresight could have been used as to the consequences should the ladies lose, there is but one bald headed man in the team.

Many will remember "Rastus the Unknown," he of "Confederate Spy" fame, who was picked up by some of our young men, togged up regardless and launched on his theatrical career, appearing first in a baton-swinging and dancing turn in the "Confederate Spy," played here about three years ago. Expecting to hear of him at the top of the ladder, along with Ward and James, the young men were somewhat surprised to be greeted yesterday by "Have a shine," and upon turning around to find their protege at their feet, dressed in a military suit, and carrying his boot black box and a brass baton. He may not have been a success on the legitimate stage, but he certainly had as much of a following yesterday as any great actor, for the youth of our land were following in his wake making a hero of him.

At Sherar's Bridge.

One of the prettiest and most delightful spots along the stage route from here to The Dalles, is Sherar's Bridge. The beautiful home of Mr. Sherar would be an ornament to any city, but a more picturesque spot could not be found for its location. An elegantly furnished modern home, it attracts special attention situated as it is in the midst of the most rugged scenery of Eastern Oregon.

Among other modern conveniences, Mr. Shearer has one invention of his own which is unique. This is an inexhaustible supply of pure ice-water. The water is conducted from the hills by pipes, and down into the basement, where, inside of a solid stone vault, it flows through twelve pipes. Upon these pipes is placed a massive cake of ice, 5x7 feet square, and around the whole thing is packed sawdust to preserve the ice. So, instead of the usual two faucets, there will be found here three, the third being for ice-water.—Antelope Herald.

OREGON'S PRUNES.

What a Member of the State Board of Horticulture Says:

In one chapter of the horticulture board's report, which will soon be published, Mr. Dosh expresses himself in the following terms on production and over-production of prunes:

"The soils and climate of Oregon are peculiarly adapted to prune culture, and the tendency would be to plant largely to prunes. While I am not a believer in over-production of good marketable prunes, yet it behooves us to look somewhat into the future.

"It is claimed that the Pacific coast now produces fully as many prunes as are consumed in the United States, and with the growing orchards coming into bearing, we will over-produce, to overcome which we must reach out for new fields. Already our prunes have found a sympathetic market in England at fair prices; in Germany they have found friends at one mark (24 cents) per pound and even created a demand in France, the very home of the Petite d'Agon, to such an extent that the growers have petitioned their government for a duty on imported prunes. Thus another and unlimited market is opened for the wide awake fruit growers, showing that intelligent endeavor, honest packing, brains and the application of business principles, which hereafter must be adopted in order to be successful in horticultural pursuits, has its own reward. And again, our new acquisitions in the Orient, as well as Japan, offer a new and almost unlimited field for our evaporated fruits. It seems to me that the over-production of a good, marketable fruit is a myth."

To All Redmen, Greeting:

Kiabe Maniton has been kind to the children of the forest, and at the next council fire of Wasco tribe, No. 16, I. O. R. M., there will be corn and venison at the wigwam. The council brand will be kindled on the sleep of next Tuesday's sun, 7th run, 30th breath, and the same is known by tradition as the sleep of the sun, Worm Moon, Great Sun of Discovery, 408. All chiefs, warriors, braves or any who may have been adopted into any tribe will be welcomed to the council fire.

Oh, the Pain of Rheumatism!

Rheumatism often causes the most intense suffering. Many have for years vainly sought relief from this disabling disease, and are to-day worse off than ever. Rheumatism is a blood disease, and Swift's Specific is the only cure, because it is the only remedy which can reach such deep-seated diseases.

A few years ago I was taken with inflammatory Rheumatism, which became so intense that I was for weeks unable to walk. I tried several prominent physicians and took their treatment faithfully, but was unable to get the slightest relief. In fact, my condition seemed to grow worse, the disease spread over my entire body, and from November to March I suffered agony. I tried many patent medicines, but none relieved me. Upon the advice of a friend I decided to try S. S. S. Before allowing me to take it, however, my guardian, who was a chemist, analyzed the remedy, and pronounced it free of potash or mercury. I felt so much better after taking two bottles, that I continued the remedy, and in two months I was cured completely. The cure was permanent, for I have never since had a touch of Rheumatism though many times exposed to damp and cold weather.

HIS MIND WAS RELIEVED.

"Oh, My! Oh, My! I Wasn't Scared—I Was Just Ill," Said the Glas. Soldier.

A surgeon relates that before San-Figo, he (the surgeon), going to the front, came upon a young officer, sitting beside the road, trembling like a leaf, and whiter than the dead men around him. At sight of the surgeon he began to talk, says the San Francisco Argonaut.

"I'm a coward, I'm a coward, I'm a coward," he said; "I knew I'd run, and I did. I'm disgraced forever. I was going along all right, not thinking of anything but getting at the dashed Spaniards, yelling to my men to come on, and running ahead as fast as I could, when all of a sudden I stubbed my toe, or something, and then I can't remember being scared, but I must have been, for I came galloping back here, sick as a dog. I'm a coward, and I wish I were dead! Why don't somebody shoot me? I've got such an awful goneness right here," and he put his hand to his stomach.

The surgeon gave him a quick look and caught him as he plunged forward in a faint. Where the awful goneness was a Mauer bullet had found its billet. They carried the wounded man to the field hospital, and he chuckled all the way: "Oh, my! oh, my!" he said, over and over; "I wasn't scared! I wasn't scared!" And then he would laugh delightedly: "I wasn't scared. I was lit—I was just hit. I ain't a coward after all."

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved,—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, excels poisons, helps digestion and builds up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggists, Guaranteed.
