Rev. G. Rushing, of La Grande, will commence a series of revival meetings in the Christian church here on Wednesday evening of this week, to continue indefinitely.

This week would be just the time in which to make a thorough clean-up in our city, so that Easter will find us prepared for its coming. The trees are now about to blossom, so let us also put on our holiday attire and, like Jerusalem of old, let every citizen sweep in front of his own door yard.

No day is so bright but that it seems dark and dreary to some saddened heart. Such yesterday proved itself to Edwin and Elizabeth Laughlin, of Endersby, whose son, Charley, 3 years and 6 months old, was taken from them by death. His funeral will take place tomorrow at Endersby.

Max Vogt has succeeded in so completely transforming the interior of the building to be occupied by C. E. Dawson as a grocery store, that one would hardly recognize it as being the same building as of yore. Mr. Dawson expects to have everything in readiness for an Easter opening Saturday.

At a meeting of Cascade Lodge No. 3, B. P. O. Elks held last Saturday evening the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: Exalted Ruler, Geo. C. Blakeley; leading knight, P. W. DeHuff; loyal knight, N. A. Bonn; lecturing knight, Al Bettingen; secretary, E. M. Wingate; treasurer, H. W. French; tyler, T. J. Driver; trustees E. O. McCoy and W. L. Bradshaw.

Mrs. Ella C. Cunningham, of Umatilla county, has brought suit for divorce against her husband C. C. Cunningham, now in the state penitentiary on a life sentence for murder. They were married in The Dalles in 1882, after Cunningham had left Albany. They have four children, one of whom is named after Grover Cleveland.—W. W. Statesman.

Being ever ready to please the ladies, Mr. Estbennett has determined to make it possible for them to have their shoes polished without advertising to every passer-by just how large their feet are. He has therefore fitted up a stand opening out of the main room of his place of business, where ladies can have their shoes polished without occupying the front chairs.

The hens in the vicinity of The Dalles evidently believe in eggspansion. Hens they have been laying for a chance to give a practical demonstration of their belief. Harry Beal, who lives three miles south of here, brought one of their expansion eggs to this office this morning, and it was found to measure 8x6 1/4 inches, and weigh 3 1/4 ounces. Probably the hens are aware that Easter is near at hand.

We understand there is some talk of circulating a petition among the ladies of our city, whereby they agree to do their shopping during the day, and thus induce our merchants to close their places of business at 7 o'clock during the summer months. This is just the idea THE CHRONICLE endeavored to set forth in an article last week, and we trust the good work will go on. The summer evenings are just the hours the proprietor and his clerks need to themselves in which to recuperate for the duties of the following day. We feel positive our business men need little persuasion on this line, and that it rests mostly with the ladies to inaugurate this good work. Will they do it?

THE SAME OLD CHESTNUT.

But If You Intend to Drive This Summer You Must Encounter Them.

It may seem to be an old story to the readers of newspapers in The Dalles, this question of the roads of our city. Nevertheless we cannot refrain from touching upon it just so often, especially as the season comes on when the same old roads have to be traveled over, and we realize just how much might be accomplished were a certain amount of repairing done each year.

What a satisfaction it is to everyone to note that at least a few of our trials in this line are to cease, and that when we contemplate a pleasant drive on the river road, there will not be ever present the thought that the Rubicon is to be crossed before we reach the goal—in other words that there is a stretch of road between Mill creek bridge and the junction of the river road and Chenoweth road, which would try the soul of the bravest, and make him wonder if it is worth while encountering those rocks for the privilege of a good drive farther on. We understand the road is being leveled down and much improved. Now if that small stretch of sand intervening between the old Mission gardens and the drive down Chenoweth could be planked over, what a joy it would be to those who so frequently make this trip during the summer evenings.

Right here we must stop and consider that Ninth street bridge is often crossed in driving down this road, and no one who has ever "tackled" those tormenting "boulders" just before the small cut is reached will ever forget the jolting experienced, and the apologies necessary to strangers who may accompany us.

Another source of satisfaction is that the steep grade at the head of Union street has been reduced and that we may drive out Mill creek without first wearing out a team in reaching the good stretch of road beyond. The great difficulty with driving in The Dalles has always been the fact that to reach the good roads outside of the city limits, the city roads must first be met and conquered.

Although chapter after chapter might be written on the splendid boulevards to the south and east of us, we will spare our readers the pain of contemplation and continue in our next.

Some Dalles Boys Wounded.

For the past three days parents and friends of our boys at Manila have been anxiously awaiting any news which may come from the scene of the conflict, and with fear and trembling have the dispatches been scanned. Today news reaches here that among the forty-five wounded were C. E. Sanders, Guy N. Sanders and A. D. Cooper, all of Company L.

The first name given is that of Earl Sanders, son of Dr. Sanders of this city, who is said to be slightly wounded in the hip; the second, who is very seriously wounded, enlisted at The Dalles, but it cannot be determined where his home was. The third, it is much feared is John Cooper, son of D. J. Cooper, although his initials are not exactly the same, his initials being A. J. However, his was the only name of Cooper given in the company's ranks. Cooper was badly wounded in one foot.

We can only be thankful that no fatalities are reported among The Dalles boys, and hope for the best in the cases of the injured ones.
