

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only.

and when she makes a move so does Dewey.

As I told you in the first part of my letter, about taking part in battle of Caloocan, it was something that I wouldn't have missed for anything. We heard that our forces were to take the city, so after retreat, Earl Sanders, A. J. Gordon and myself took our guns and made a break for the firing line, which we reached about 8 o'clock at night. We immediately proceeded to the Kansas regiment, Co. K, where we were acquainted with some of the boys.

The Filipinos then retreated to the city of Caloocan where the big fight was to come in the day, but I couldn't stay any longer. The sharpshooters were still firing from the trees and we got a squad to round them up. We brought down six of them and I am credited with getting one, as the other fellows say they didn't hit him, so it must have been me.

John Booth was up from Portland yesterday, returning on the delayed afternoon train. C. P. Bailey, a Baptist missionary of the Oregon state board, arrived in the city yesterday, and expects to make his home in The Dalles.

Mrs. Emery Oliver, who has been spending several months with her parents, Mr. and W. E. Sylvester, will leave this afternoon for her home in Portland. C. M. Grimes, John Crate and Henry Phirman went down on the boat to Bingen this morning, for the purpose of receiving a band of cattle from the Trout creek region.

Mr. and Mrs. E. O. McCoy left on yesterday's afternoon train on their way to California, in the hope of benefiting Mrs. McCoy's health, which for some time has been poor. J. R. Harvey, of Centerville, is in town today and called at THE CHRONICLE office. He reports everything lively among the farmers in his vicinity, and much railroad talk about the town.

HIRAM'S HALF DOLLAR.

He Dropped It in the Hat at Zeke's Silver Wedding and Wanted It Back.

Last spring Zeke Murch and his wife celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Zeke lives on a side hill farm in one of the outlying districts in a Maine town. He and his wife have always worked hard and been "saving" as folks have to be who make a dollar out of a farm in this particular part of the Pine Tree state.

Among their visitors that night were Hiram and Mirandy Treat. Now the Treats were even more saving than the Murches, and the latter were said to be snugger than the bark of a yellow birch.

But they felt in duty bound to give something. Not having bought any plate, they could not add to the collection of pickle jars and casters which adorned the sitting-room table, so they waited till the hat was passed.

Passing the hat may strike some readers as a novel feature to introduce at a wedding anniversary, but Ezekiel didn't propose to let anyone go away without a gentle hint that those who accept invitations to a silver wedding must settle in the white metal.

"For the benefit of those as didn't have a chance to get a present, we will now pass round the hat an' those as feel moved so to do can add their piece of silver," explained the host.

When the hat reached Hiram he pulled out his wallet, carefully abstracted a half dollar, looked at it lovingly and then dropped it into the chapeau.

That night, after they got home, Hiram and Mirandy were talking it over, speculating on the probable value of those two pickle jars and trying to settle in their minds how much was put into the general collection.

"There was 50 cents that I give 'em," said Mirandy.

"What!" cried Hiram, "you give 50 cents?"

"Why, yes, Hiram, we cal-lated to give 'em that much, you know. We talked it over beforehand, and agreed that we could spare it."

"But Lord bless ye, wife," said the husband, quivering with excitement, "don't ye, can't ye, understand I dropped a half dollar in the hat myself?"

It was a late hour before the two ceased talking about that lost coin, and the next morning Hiram was no more reconciled to the accidental generosity than the night before.

All summer long it worried him, and he couldn't keep from thinking how far that half dollar would have gone in trade.

Lately Hiram and Zeke had a settling up of some old accounts for wood and labor. Their figures tallied, and after the money had shifted hands Hiram's thoughts reverted to that unintended gift.

"Ezekiel," he began, softly. "Yes, Hiram."

"You remember that silver wedding of yours last spring?" He was beginning with diplomatic evasion of the real point at issue.

"O, yes," Zeke remembered all about that.

"Wa'al, when the hat was passed round, ye remember I put in 50 cents?" "Yes, Hiram, I remember."

"Wa'al, unbeknown to me, my wife, Mirandy, she put in 50 cents."

"Ya'as," said Ezekiel, slowly, but very carefully avoiding any show of understanding.

"Wa'al, we didn't intend to give but one of 'em, and I want you to give me back the half dollar that Mirandy give ye."

Ezekiel said nothing.

"It's no more'n right ye should," pleaded Hiram. "We didn't intend to gin ye but half a dollar. We can't spare that other 50 cents nohow. I've worried about it all summer long an' I made up my mind to speak out to ye about it. I've thought it all over an' Mirandy, she's thought it all over an' we sartainly can't spare the 50 cents."

Ezekiel had been gathering himself for a burst of scorn.

"Wa'al, of all the dog-gonedest mean critters I ever sot my eyes on ye're a leetle the wust! No, I won't give ye back your half a dollar!"

But Hiram wasn't going to be touched by scorn. The justice of his cause led him to make one last appeal.

"No, I ain't mean, Zeke, for here I've waited till now without sayin' a word. Just think on it, Zeke, you've had the interest on that half a dollar for over six months an' you oughter be all fair an' willin' to give it back to me. Won't ye, Zeke?"

But Zeke's ear was deaf to pleading and he still retains the half dollar.—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.
