WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

"A Doll's House"
 Tonight at the Vogt.

The ladies of the Episcopal Guild were so fortunate as to realize as the result of their entertainment and sale $155 clear of expenses.

About noon today Mrs. C. F. Stephens received the sad news of the death of her brother, Ephraim Jackson, at Lebanon, Or. She left on the afternoon train for that place.

The Oregonian contains an announcement that will be of interest to many of our readers: The engagement is announced of Miss Rose Bloch, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. Bloch, to Cecil H. Bauer.

Mr. W. C. Smith, of Portland, just returned from Trout creek reports considerable activity in mining in that district. Mining experts in the city expect soon to make a trip into that section.

There will be a "free-for-all try out" on the club alleys to make up a "crack" team of bowlers. The rules and regulations have been posted in the club, so that all may be advised concerning it and enter the contest.

Surely no one will miss hearing Miss

Thropp in "A Doll's House" this evening. From the Oregonian we learn that Portland people were delighted with the famous actress. Dalles people should not again neglect an opportunity to hear a good show.

We were shown some first-class work in map-drawing this morning by W. F. Johnston, a draftsman who has for some time been employed by C. J. Crandall. He is a splendid workman, and his map of Palestine would be invaluable to students of sacred history.

Dr. Oglesbee, who has been on a prospecting tour in the upper country, arrived from Prineville this afternoon and will leave for his home at Junction City tomorrow. The doctor says there is a great deal of sickness at Prineville this spring. He is very sanguine regarding the mines he has located along Crooked river.

J. H. Carlock, W. Manning and M. Page, members of the U. S. Geological Survey, were in the city yesterday. They are now at work about thirty miles above The Dalles. Among the altitudes which have been ascertained by them are: Summit, ten miles from here, 187 feet; Celilo, 177, and Squally Hook 192.7.

Somehow a report has been circulated that Smith Bros., would not continue their Saturday night soirees longer. This was a mistake, and they will be held every Saturday evening until the gentlemen themselves announce to the contrary. The crowd increases each evening and everyone looks forward to them with pleasure.

J. B. O'Brien, superintendent of the O. R. & N., who has been making a tour of the road and spent some time in the Blue mountains, between Pendleton and La Grande, reports that there are from six to eight feet of solid snow in that section. At Mescham station there were four feet. The first rise in the Columbia comes from these mountains, and it is to be hoped we will have our warm weather in sections this year to prevent the rise being delayed till June.

During the terrible wind storm yesterday afternoon a small boat, containing two ladies and two or three gentlemen from Goldendale, attempted to cross the river from Columbus to Grants. They had almost reached the landing place on this side when the boat upset and went rapidly down the stream. In time, however, the party was rescued, but not until the ladies were almost too weak to stand. This is a very dangerous place even when the river is quiet.

The officers who telephoned from Viento Saturday afternoon regarding the killing which was purported to have taken place on the road near there, were a little previous and, as Chambers, the expressman who used to live here, said, "the corpse ain't dead yet." He was very seriously injured and thought to be dying, but recovered somewhat and was afterward taken to the hospital in Portland. Peter McCoy, who threw the rock, escaped, and last reports from Constable Tucker said three men were on his trail.

A Dalles small boy who fully realized that "tis not by works alone," and who at the same time was much disgusted because his maternal ancestor insisted on receiving some assistance from him when preparing for a church social, was heard to remark: "Mamma, what do you git out o' this, anyway?" "Oh, my son, we do not look for our reward here; we'll find it when we get to heaven." Dropping his work and looking somewhat disgusted he said: "Workin' to git into heaven is somethin' like a boy workin' to git into a show. May be he gits there and maybe he don't."

The Prineville Review has a kick coming concerning the stage line accommodations between The Dalles and that place. The reporter of that paper should have been with us this morning to have viewed the new four-horse, thorough-brace stage coach which has just been finished for that line by Lane Bros. of this city. It is a beauty, and looks as if it would be as comfortable as a rocking chair. Geo. Miller, who owns stage lines in Southern Oregon, says The Dalles has the name of turning out some of the best stages in the country, and he is now having one built by this same firm to use on his lines.

The news of the drowning of Fish Commissioner McGuire and Senator Reed of Douglas county, Saturday morning in the Umpqua river, is still another occurrence to be added to the long list of dreadful casualties which we have been compelled to chronicle during the past year or more. In the death of these men our state loses citizens we can ill afford to part with, and whose places it will be difficult to fill. Not only those who were personally acquainted with H. D. McGuire, but residents along the entire length of the Columbia will feel they have lost a friend. So accustomed have we grown to reading in the papers concerning his untiring efforts in behalf of the fishing interests of our state, and to noting his success in the work assigned him, that we feel we must say with the Oregonian, "His place cannot be filled."

KILLED NEAR MORO.

F. Kahler Was Run Over Last Night and Killed.

The first accident on the Columbia Southern railway occurred last evening just before the train reached Moro, when F. Kahler lost his life by being run over.

For a number of weeks Mr. Kahler, who was agent for a sewing machine, had made his headquarters at W. A. Johnston's store. Not being very successful he decided to start out on the road. As he had no means, Mr. Johnston gave him some money and he started out Saturday morning on foot. It must have been 8 o'clock last night when he reached Grass Valley canyon, this side of Moro, and when crossing the trestle saw the train coming. Being an old man he was unable to get out of the way in time and as it was a down grade the train could not be stopped, consequently the unfortunate man was run over.

Presumably some one in Moro had seen him at Johnston's store and this morning he received a message inquiring about Mr. Kahler. Little was known, however, except that he had no relatives here, and only a son some place in the East. He was a man about 65 years of age, apparently having no one to care for him, and one whom fate had not dealt kindly with.

His remains will be buried at Moro.

Fall of the Legal Fraternity.

A number of Dalles attorneys left Saturday night to attend court at Condon today, among whom were Judge Bradshaw, Dist. Atty. Jayne, W. H. Wilson, H. S. Wilson and E. B. Dufur. Reaching Arlington they remained over night, and yesterday morning started out for Condon. Messrs. Jayne and Dufur had seats in the stage; while Judge Bradshaw, W. H. Wilson and H. S. Wilson, accompanied by a Mr. Weir, of Arlington, occupied a hack which followed the stage. About the time they arrived at Danneman's where passengers stop for dinner, probably on account of being so heavily laden with weighty legal wisdom, the hack broke down, causing the horses to run away and the rig to turn over, dumping the entire load, with the driver, to the ground. Fortunately The Dalles legal lights lit lightly and escaped with no injury whatever, but Mr. Weir was seriously injured, to just what extent, however, we have not yet learned. This morning Mrs. Jayne received a letter from her husband giving an account of the accident, and telling her to assure the ladies whose husbands were in the hack that they were all right.

Were it a joking matter much might be said concerning the cause which led up to the case in hand; a jury be appointed to investigate, etc.; but certainly it was too serious an affair and too narrow an escape to admit of any joking concerning it.

Concerning the Death of W. D. Jones.

At a regular meeting of Jas. W. Nesmith Post No. 32, Department of Oregon, held on April 8th, 1899, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we, the members of this post, in the death of our comrade, W. D. Jones, have suffered the loss of one of our most esteemed members, endeared to us by many years of association in our order. We have lost a good friend, a true comrade, and one that was a gallant soldier. The public has lost a useful and upright citizen, and his family a member whose place can never be filled. To his family we tender our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement.

Resolved, That we, the members of this post, judging from all the information we have had, have reason to think the action of the coroner's jury in the case of Comrade W. D. Jones, recently killed near Antelope in Wasco county, did not fully explain the circumstances of the tragedy; and we hereby request that the proper authorities investigate all the facts leading up to and ending in the death of the said W. D. Jones that full justice may be done.

We direct that these resolutions be published in the county papers, and that a copy be sent to the family of our late comrade.
 J. C. MEIKS,
 Post Adjutant.

Lost.

A small boy! About the size of a man, barefooted, with his father's shoes on; had an empty bag on his back containing two railroad tunnels and a bunch of cold-weather; he wore a mutton-chop coat with bean soup linings. He was cross-eyed at the back of his neck, and his hair was cut curly; was born before his elder brother and was the baby of the family. When last seen he was diligently shoveling wind off the court house, under the supervision of Mr. John Fitzgerald, with the intention of raising money to get one of those $8.35 suits at A. M. Williams & Co's.

Miss Thropp in "A Doll's House."

The Oregonian says concerning "A Doll's House," which will be played tonight: "That Miss Thropp and her company succeeded in winning the approbation of the audience cannot be questioned. The recall at the end of the second act proved it indisputably. Mr. Montague as Helmer, the typical husband of the typical spoiled wife, shared the honor of this enthusiastic recall; while Mr. Ryan, as the amorous old doctor, and Mr. Folsom, as Krogstad, the weak-principled bank clerk, mixed up in the forgery, went through their lines in a way that assisted in the success of the presentation as a whole."

The Telegram also says of Miss Thropp: "Miss Thropp is certainly versatile and there was perhaps some question in the minds of the audience whether her emotional or comedy work were the better, and whether her singing was perhaps not fully as good as either."
