Serge skirts in black and blue serges at Pease & Mays.

Crash and welt skirts are quite right this season. Pease & Mays carry them.

The Walla Walla Congregationalists are about to build a $10,000 church at that place.

The sight of those new shirts at Pease & Mays will refresh your memory regarding the combination on your pocket book.

Rev. Frank Spaulding will occupy the pulpit of the Methodist church both morning and evening tomorrow. All are invited to be present.

Children are apt to be unintentionally irreverent. A case in point is that of a little Chicago girl who wound up her prayer in this way: "And please, O Lord, take good care of yourself, too. If anything should happen to you, we wouldn't have any one but McKinley to depend on, and he isn't doing as well as pa expected."

The river is rising slowly today, being at about 16 feet this afternoon. It is thought the present rise is from the John Day, Umatilla and Des Chutes rivers.

Last night's Oregonian contains a notice of the marriage of William B. Streeter, well known to many Dalles young people, and Miss Nell M. Coal-fleet, of Portland.

A party of tourists, ten in number, with their families, arrived in The Dalles last night from Missouri. They are on their way to Prineville, near which place they will make their homes.

An insane woman, whose name we did not learn, has been causing some trouble to the residents at Viento recently. An attempt will be made by officers to secure her and bring her to this city tonight.

The friends of Miss Bessie Rowland are extremely anxious to obtain news concerning her condition, as the last word received was that three physicians had given her up, and her case was thought to be hopeless.

The East End is lively today. A number of loads of wheat were brought over from the Klickitat country, while from the interior came several loads of pelts. This afternoon they are being loaded with freight for the homeward trip.

Max Vogt is at present engaged in taking the necessary precautions against fire, which has so often overtaken him. He is placing fire proof shutters on the windows in the Vogt block, which is just what should be done on all such buildings in the city.

For some time past Abasalom Bolton, of 15-Mile, has been very ill, and his physicians at length advised that he be taken to the hospital in Portland. Accordingly he was brought to the city this morning and will be taken to that Mecca for all physical ills, where we trust he may recover, though his case is said to be a serious one.

At noon today the open season for fishing began and while the river is hardly high enough as yet for the stationary wheels to be lowered, the scows are plying the waters of the Columbia enticing the salmon to walk into their parlors. We only trust that the hopes of the fishermen, which are decidedly sanguine, will be realized, and that the "little fishes" will be suckers enough to make themselves numerous.

The O. B. & N.'s new dining-car to be put on between this city and Umatilla, is expected to arrive shortly from Dayton, O., where it was built. It is modern in every respect, and will be fully equipped with every facility for furnishing first-class meals, even the chef having been imported from Paris. The coach will be in charge of Conductor F. S. Kelly, and when running will enable passengers to obtain their dinner without a stopover at Grant's station, as at present. The cost of the car is $12,000.

Paul F. Mohr is in The Dalles today. There is always more or less conjecture when these famous railroad men are in our midst, especially during these times rife with railroad rumors. We understand Mr. Mohr is on his way to attend to his interests in the north side road. It is said that should the road be a "go," there will be some work to be done over on the section built by Mohr and his company several years since. During the time intervening, the Indians, and some who are not aborigines, have come to the conclusion that railroad ties make the best of fire wood, and therefore in place of ties, the track in many places now has for a foundation loose rock, which has been substituted for the original ties.

That was a fine tribute to the Oregon boys in the Philippines, paid by an officer returned from service there, as reported by S. A. Clarke from Washington. The officer is one of discriminating ability. He spoke in terms of praise for all the volunteers helping to uphold the dignity and authority of their country in the islands across the Pacific. Someone asked him his opinion of the Oregon boys. His reply was the finest attestation words could give: "Ah! There is a regiment of gentlemen!" And they are a regiment of fighters, too. They are men who esteem it a matter of "extreme good fortune," as one of them writes, to be chosen to go to the front, into the thickest of the fight, onto the firing line.

Horace Knight, who for the past twenty years has been a resident of The Dalles, passed away this morning at 8 o'clock at the Coventon place three miles from the city. For years he has been a sufferer, but not until a few weeks ago would he give up, at which time he was taken to the country where he might be cared for. His niece, Mrs. Johnson, of John Day, and nephew, Henry Knight, of Providence, R. I., were with him when he died. He was born in Rhode Island 69 years ago, and when a young man went to California during the mining excitement, afterward coming to Oregon and mining near Canyon City, where he became quite wealthy. Mr. Knight was a bachelor, and his only relatives here are his nephew and niece. He was a quiet man, and one whom those with whom he associated grew much attached to. His nephew will leave for Providence, Rhode Island, tomorrow, taking his uncle's remains there for burial.

The Dalles City breathed the waves proudly this morning as she left the dock having on board such an intelligent array of good looking school marmas, chaperoned by Supt. Gilbert, dressed in his best suit of clothes, and looking as wise as though he were inwardly humming to himself the air of "A Charge to Keep I Have." By the way, the Hood River Glacier has the superintendent down for "Music," and if that is actually what the teachers had in anticipation, it would seem that they would also be singing "Oh that I had the wings of a dove, that I might fly away and be at rest." However, they all looked happy, so we judge the Glacier meant Mr. Gilbert's name as a signature instead of his being a participant in the singing. Then his wife was with him, and she surely would not have come had that been the case. Beside Prof. Gavin and wife and Prof. Landers, the following teachers were on board: Misses Salina Phirman, Elsie M. Ball, Ella Cooper, Nan Cooper, Minnie Mitchell, Etta E. Wrenn, Emma S. Roberts, Mary Donthill, Mrs. Baldwin, Mrs. K. Roche. They were also accompanied by Mesdames E. M. Wilson, W. S. Myers, L. S. Davis, O. W. Morgan and Mr. and Mrs. Truman Butler.

A TOKEN OF APPRECIATION.

S. B. Adams Presented With a Gold-Headed Cane by the Public School Teachers.

Mr. S. B. Adams has abandoned his horse and buggy and now walks the streets in preference to riding, although somehow he feels that he needs some assistance and therefore carries a cane—part of the time, however, under his arm. He struck a Klondike last night, most of the ore being discovered in the handle of a handsome ebony cane, one of the most beautiful we have yet seen.

Early last evening as he and his wife were quietly seated in their home, they were surprised by a visit from the entire delegation of teachers of the public schools, who had previously gathered at Prof. Gavin's for the purpose of calling upon him in a body. Mr. Adams was not long in finding out that good boys in school are sometimes "canned" as well as bad boys, for as soon as he had welcomed them to his home, Miss Nan Cooper stepped forward and in a very appropriate speech told of the appreciation which the teachers of The Dalles schools have had for the services which Mr. Adams has rendered in his long term of nine years as director here; of how they have always found him to be a staunch friend of the teachers, upholding them as best he could and lightening their burdens in every possible manner. She then in behalf of the professors and teachers presented him with a gold-headed cane, on the handle of which was engraved "S. B. Adams, Director Public School, The Dalles, 1890-1899."

Although almost overcome with the joy which he felt at finding his services so highly appreciated, he received the gift with a nice little speech, saying in part that this was only a proof of his firm belief that duties well done to our God or to humankind, no matter how humble our station, will some time be rewarded.

A short time was spent in happy conversation, when the visitors departed, leaving Mr. Adams more than pleased and gratified that he had been remembered so kindly.

But not alone do the teachers of The Dalles appreciate Mr. Adams' work in behalf of our schools, but every citizen would gladly add their token of gratitude for his faithfulness, and sincerely hope that he may live to see the smallest pupils in the schools grow to be men and women as thoroughly alive for the great interests of education as he has proven himself to be.

"REBEL TOM."

Some Incidents Concerning His Life, Now Ended.

Everyone who has lived in The Dalles any length of time knows old "Rebel Tom," who since the early '60s has been a familiar character here—a land mark, spending most of his time about the livery stables of our city, until last fall, when, becoming too ill to take care of himself, he was taken to the county poor farm, where Mr. Cushing has made him his special care, until last night when he passed away. No one knew him by the name of William Thompson, although such he was christened; but in early days it was the custom to nickname everyone who was "one of the boys," and so William became Tom. Why he was called Rebel Tom is not known, unless he being such a rabid Democrat, was termed a rebel, as in those days many of that party sympathized with the South. He, however, fought in the Mexican war, and when he left the army held the position of quartermaster.

He was about 79 years of age, little being known as to his early life. Coming to The Dalles from California in 1864, he was hostler for Wheeler & Mayhew, who owned the stage line between this place and Canyon City. He afterward worked for Boomer on the Overland, making his headquarters at Umatilla. Later he engaged in the livery business and for some time did a draying business here. Of late years he has been unable to work, and subsisted mostly on a pension, being always thrown among friends who looked after his welfare.

"Tom" was a queer character, and though gruff in his manner, at heart he was kind, and his affectionate nature was always shown in his kindness to dumb animals, especially his horses. An incident which happened perhaps in the year '68, goes far toward showing his determination. In those days the political parties in this country were very equally divided, and unlike these days of uprightness, were corrupt to the core. At this particular time Lockwood was in the field for state senator on the Republican side, with Vic Trevitt a close rival on the opposition. Rivalry waxed warm and votes came as high as $100— that is if a man were given $100 he might vote the right way. Long and faithful did they labor with Tom in the endeavor to win a vote for Lockwood, but in vain. He was then working for R. B. Hood, and a scheme was concocted to get rid of his vote at last. All at once it was discovered that a large sum of money must be sent to Canyon City on election day, and none so trustworthy to carry it as Tom, who in the anticipation thought himself a few knots above the presidency. At the midnight hour Tom was perched on the stage seat, with the treasury box under his feet, and resting on it a large shot gun for defense.

Election day passed, and Tom encountered no place where he could vote; but he guarded the treasure until he reached his destination and opened the box to see that his charge was safe. What was his chagrin to find—a box half full of rocks, and the wrong kind too. Returning home and not knowing who to blame, many of his friends received the cold shoulder for months after. And the Democrats lost a vote, as they have now lost a voter.

All that remains of Rebel Tom will be laid to rest in the city cemetery this afternoon at 4 o'clock.
