The sewer on Washington street, between Third and Fourth, became clogged yesterday evening. Marshal Lauer had a force of men working on it until midnight but was unable to accomplish much. Today the fire engine was brought into use and the sewer was sliced until the excavations were filled with water, but up to the hour of going to press the obstruction had not been removed.

A wreck occurred this morning at bridge thirteen, near Viento. Freight train No. 23, left here at 8:30 this morning and ran into a pile of rocks that had been thrown on the track by a blast which had been set off by workmen who are engaged in improving the road. The result was that the engine was thrown off the track but otherwise no damage was done. The wrecking train left for the scene of the accident and will have the track clear this evening.

"We want the news," and the following is the way an exchange puts it: "If your wife whips you, let us know it, and we will put it right before the world. If you have company tell us—if you have a party or gathering of any kind, bring around the cake, seven or eight pies and a side of ham—not necessarily to eat, but just to show your friendship and appreciation. You needn't mind inviting us, as it may be too cool for our wardrobe. We want the news—that's all."

About two weeks ago August Langren lost a very valuable shepherd dog which was much thought of by him. During the night some one approached his residence at Enderby and poisoned the dog, after which they purloined a rifle from his house. Mr. Langren is confident that the parties who did the work live at no great distance from his residence. He is quite angry over the matter and should the person be found who is guilty of such a piece of dastardly work it will surely go hard with him.

W. A. Campbell Almost Drowned.

About 4 o'clock last Tuesday evening W. A. Campbell, the well known life insurance man, and who has many friends in The Dalles, had an experience in Rock Creek that he will not soon forget, says the Heppner Times, and it wasn't altogether funny either. He had come from Condon and was on his way to Heppner, crossing Rock creek at the old French ranch when that stream was on a tear. It is the most treacherous stream in Gilliam county, but Mr. Campbell would have made it across all right had his team not balked right in the middle of it. The creek was almost bank full, and when the water came rushing against them the horses reared and broke the tongue. This turned the buckboard over and horses, buggy and all swept down the swift current, Mr. Campbell being under the water himself a good share of the time, barely escaping with his life in several instances. Finally he jumped into the water and scrambled to the shore.

The horses, after being washed down a quarter of a mile finally freed themselves from the buggy and got ashore. The vehicle kept on swimming but lodged against a big rock about a mile below the crossing. Messrs. H. H. Neal and Rufo Blace, besides a lot of sheep shearers, were soon on the scene and the horses, buggy and driver were brought face to face again. The tongue was spliced with ropes and straps and Mr. Campbell continued his journey Heppnerwards, arriving here safely last night, considerably mangled but still prepared to do business. One of his valises, containing a camera and a lot of valuable notes and checks, had jumped overboard, and was found a mile below in a drift with considerable damage done to the contents.

The Bachelors' Entertainment.

The organization of "single gentlemen" were greeted by a house full of admiring maids and matrons, and married men as well, at the Christian church last evening; and their much talked of entertainment and social was given as per program announced. Expressions highly commendable were heard on all sides—and the gentle sex are in hopes that their bachelor friends have not made their last appearance as a "fraternal order." At the completion of the program the audience was directed to the basement where the bachelors most gallantly dished out sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee (?) all alleged to have been prepared by members of the fraternity—and after some time spent in social conversation, said bachelors presented all in attendance with a handsome souvenir, in the shape of an elegantly baked "spud." The affair was pronounced a decided success, socially as well as financially.

OREGON.

Development Since Pioneer Days—Her Future, One of Greatness.

The death of Donald McKay, the famous Indian scout, brings vividly to mind the hardships and disadvantages of the early settlers of Oregon. He was a brother to Dr. W. C. McKay who died in 1892. Dr. McKay was well known by all pioneers in The Dalles, having lived here for a number of years. He was the son of Thomas McKay, who came to Oregon in 1811 with the Astor expedition. His mother was a Chinook Indian woman far above the average. Such men as these, enduring the hardships and privations of early pioneer days, have lived to see Oregon one of the finest states of the union.

The present generation have no conception of what difficulties were encountered by the early settlers. Today we live in the world, with all the advantages of modern times. Not many years ago Oregon was barely known, while today she is one of the foremost in war or peace, agriculture, mining, farming and in fact nearly all industries that are of the present day.

The coat of arms of Oregon displays an emigrant wagon, a deer and an expanse of ocean bearing on its breast a steamer. Below are discovered a sheaf of wheat, a plough, a rake and a pick. The crest is the American eagle with the motto: "She flies with her own wings." That tells the whole story, and it needs no further explanation.

Brave settlers advancing into this strange territory of which the poet wrote "Where rolls the Oregon and hears no sound save its own dashing," have made it one that the United States may well be proud of, with handsome public buildings, prosperous cities, schools, colleges and universities. Her volunteers are of the bravest and most gallant that entered the army to uphold the nation, and have brought much credit to their state. The "Oregon," the greatest battleship afloat has gloriously upheld the dignity of the state from which she derives her name.

Oregon has advanced wonderfully in the past fifty years. To realize this we must remember that in 1848 Daniel Webster, who was opposed to expansion, said that Oregon was so far off that it never could be governed by the United States, and that a delegate to congress could not reach Washington until a year after the expiration of his term. Note the change today. We can reach our capital within a week and should communication be wanted it can be had within a few minutes.

Oregon is larger than the whole of New England, and has a seacoast 330 miles long. Its mountains and scenery are sublime,—an artist's dream. Her forests are almost incalculable, while her valleys are astonishingly fertile. The grand Columbia running along her border has a navigable length of 1200 miles. The metropolis of the state is Portland, destined to be a great city. It is situated on the beautiful Willamette, of which the poet, Sam Simpson, says:

"From the Cascade's frozen gorges,
Leaping like a child at play,
Winding, widening through the valley,
Bright Willamette glides away;
Onward ever,
Lovely river,
Softly calling to the sea;
Time that scars us,
Maims and mars us,
Leaves no track or trench on thee!"

EXPANSION.

Met a feller 't'other mornin'—
Most amusin' sort o' cuss;
Hed a cur'us style about 'em—
Cert'ly could n't well be wuss.
I says: "Where you hail f'm pardner?"
An' he smiles in knowin' way,
An' replies in forein lingo:
"Porto Rico, U. S. A."

Seen a feller down on Broadway,
With a shockin' head o' hair,
An' a lot o' trouss parments
An' a most outlandish air.
"Whur's he from?" a feller shouted,
But before we'd time to say,
This yere heathen turned an' answered:
"Honolulu, U. S. A."

Met a feller yere on Olive,
With a somber-e-ro on;
Had a lot o' shaggy whiskers;
Nearly all his clothing gone.
Stopped an' asked me for a quarter;
Says: "My home is far away."
"Where you from?" The varmint answered:
"Santiago, U. S. A."

Seen a feller at the Southern,
With a heavy iron box;
Had a top coat lined with bearskin,
Wore a dozen pair o' socks.
Sized him up to be a miner,
Judgin' by his awkward way;
Seen him write in big cha-rac-ters:
"Circle City, U. S. A."

Seen a saddle-colored heathen,
Wearin' earrings in his nose;
Linen cuts around his ankles;
Most indecent lack of clothes.
"Where'd this heathen guy spring frum?"
I inquired in lofty way;
An' he had the nerve to answer:
"Frum Manila, U. S. A."

"Gee!" I says, "I never heard of These yere cannybals before!"
An' these heathens to be voters?
Will ye stan' fur any more?
Next you know, you ask a feller
Where he's frum, and he will say,
With a lordly kind o' flourish:
"All Creation, U. S. A."

While we don't make much pretension
In our quiet sort o' way,
Still we like that last short sentence—
Fits us to a T—say,
So we keep a spraddin' outward—
Say "expansion," if we may—
Till some day you'll see our Planos
In "All Creation, U. S. A."

One of our expanders, Mr. E. Jacobsen, will "do the act" in The Dalles all next week. We hope every householder will assist in the performance, as we are prepared to fill to the letter even his most extravagant promises, when he offers you the finest pianos in "All Creation, U. S. A., or any other seaport.

Very respectfully,

With each returning season the Lozier Manufacturing Co. show something new and desirable in Bicycle construction. This season finds them with more good things than ever. One of these good things is the BURWELL BALL and ROLLER BEARING. Examine the illustration—notice particularly that the little steel roller between the balls transfers the motion without interruption and the balls cannot grind together as in ordinary bearings.
