

A Treatise on Dress Goods.

For Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday we will give you a few lines of the prettiest things that will do you a world of good. They will consist of plaids, stripes, checks and figured novelties and range in price from 9c to 75c per yd.

Those of you who need a separate skirt, a complete dress, or only a waist, you will find these goods just right and the prices cut in two. Our East window sold many dress patterns for us on Saturday in Wash Goods, and if you will gaze upon it during these three days above mentioned, we will be able to repeat our assertion that the window sells the goods.

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

"A Summer's Fancy"
At the Vogt tomorrow night.
You must not fail to see Charles Stephens' new line of Douglas shoes. They are "beauts."
Forty witnesses will be subpoenaed to appear at the May term of court, twenty of whom are from Antelope.
First-class baled wheat hay for sale at twelve dollars per ton inquire of O. McNeal at Dawson's grocery store. 15-1w
Colonel Summers has wired Senator McBride that the soldiers prefer to return home by way of San Francisco, so that settles it.
The drill of Columbia Hose Co. which was to take place tomorrow evening has been postponed until Thursday on account of the play by our home talent.
C. A. Rhea's wool clip amounted to 70,000 pounds this season. He will ship to The Dalles, where it will be baled, after which he intends consigning it to Boston.—Ione Post.
The great Pollman, king of ventriloquists, and professor of hypnotism and science, will appear at the Baldwin opera house on Thursday, May 18th. General admission 25 cents; children 15 cents.
Wool is coming in pretty lively at present, and the East End looks busy. Yesterday a carload of Studebaker wagons arrived for W. Bolton & Co. at Antelope. And so business goes on at The Dalles as lively as of yore.

The sale of seats for "A Summer's Fancy" opened with a rush this morning and the choice ones are rapidly "being spotted," so if you have a preference you'd better go and have Mr. Kinnersly put a little red paint on the seat you want. The paint he uses won't spoil your best girl's new dress, nor the skirts of your spike-tail. But that's a detail.
We were a little premature yesterday in mentioning W. H. Hobson's name as one of the purchasers of the Murchie stable. Lewis Porter is sole proprietor and will have entire charge. While together the two gentlemen would make a splendid team in the livery business, no doubt Mr. Hobson was afraid Lewis would take in a life partner, and objected to the tandem style of doing business.
Prof. W. D. Lyman, of the Department of History and Civic, of Whitman College, will deliver an address before the Taine class, in this city May 19th (Friday evening). Subject, "Benjamin Franklin, the Typical American Statesman." The Taine class invite their friends and all interested in studying the forces that have contributed to our growth as a nation, to be present with them.
Hon. E. B. Dufur returned on the boat last evening from Southern Oregon, where he has mining interests. He found everything very encouraging, and does not think it necessary to go to Alaska to find mines. Having recently recovered from a sick spell when he left, working around the mines gave him another cold, and for a few days he was quite ill, and is feeling far from well at present.
An attractive lay-out was that which left for Klickitat county this morning. It was not a hansom, but the occupants were decidedly so. On the front seat was seated E. Jacobsen and R. J. Gorman, while high up in the back towered a large family organ. Both gentlemen claimed he was starting out with his hand organ and the passer-by was led to wonder which intended to fill the role of the accompanying animal so necessary to a lay-out of that description.

While The Dalles has not as yet dared to presume to introduce horseless carriages on our streets, Ridgeway, with an assurance which brooks no delay, comes to the front and sends one spinning through our boulevards, and seated therein yesterday were Geo. Young and his son, Fred. Not a hitch was made in the procession and Mr. Young assures us he had no difficulty in reaching the city with his horseless carriage, for, strange to say, the mules never balked once during the entire journey.

County Clerk Kelsey is nothing if not kind-hearted, and tears stood in his eyes this morning which almost hid from view a callow youth of about 18 summers and a blushing maid of sweet 16, who besought him to grant them the small document which would grant them the license to become one. However, they hailed from the wrong state, and Kelsey dared not brave the laws of Oregon and join together those whom Nature had separated from our laws by the broad Columbia. He, therefore, "turned them loose" and they must seek in greener fields for the needed license.

The steamer Haesalo, a familiar craft to everybody along the river, has now put on her best "bib and tucker" and rides over all the other swells at a gait which makes their heads swim. It can be safely said that she is now the fastest stern wheel steamer in America, and will make on her every day runs twenty-two miles an hour. Having been fitted up by the O. R. & N. Co. to run to the coast this season, a trial trip was made yesterday morning to test the machinery and one who was aboard informs us that one spurt of two and a half miles she made at the rate of thirty-one miles an hour.

W. W. McGuire, brother of the late Hollister D. McGuire, returned Saturday from the Umpqua, where he has been for a month, searching for the bodies of his brother and A. F. Reed. While he has found little to encourage him, Mr. McGuire says that the search will be continued until the last ray of hope has vanished. In addition to the boat and the coats of the two men, which were found a few days after the drowning, two memorandum books have been found. One had belonged to Mr. McGuire and the other to Mr. Reed. These were not found for two or three weeks after the coats were found.

W. T. Wright, who is in today from his farm near Nansene, tells of a terror of a wind storm which visited his place four weeks ago Sunday, the date of the dust storm throughout this section. He says that it blew southwest in a path about twenty or twenty-five rods in width, and leveled the grain as it went, leaving the ground perfectly clear. Strange to say a similar storm, but coming from just the opposite direction, visited them again Monday evening. It seemed to have singled out Mr. Wright's place, although he has not heard from his neighbors in its path. Now he wants some one to name it and take it the next time it appears. Was it a species of a cyclone?

Did you notice the lively air which pervaded the streets of our city today? Well, the "Industrious Industrial Jusion" is about, stirring up our citizens and talking fruit evaporator with a vim that is convincing. This afternoon, in company with G. C. Blakeley, E. Schan- no and Dr. Sanders, he visited the orchards near the city for the purpose of determining just how much inducement will be offered by our farmers in regard to establishing the industry here, and about how much fruit can be depended on. After ascertaining the opinion of our fruit raisers a meeting will be held tonight at the club rooms, when the plan will be laid before our citizens, and a decision arrived at. The CHRONICLE hopes to give you a good and favorable report tomorrow.

When Nature Needs assistance it may be best to render it promptly, but one should remember to use even the most perfect remedies only when needed. The best and most simple and gentle remedy is the Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

ANOTHER TREAT MISSED.

John Griffith Plays to a Small but Appreciative House.

Another good troop visited our city last night, in fact those who attended claim it is the best that has been here for years, and as is usual when a good play stops here, they were greeted with a half-house, and not alone was the company the loser by over $100, but our people missed a genuine treat. Somehow theater-goers in this city always get off on the wrong foot and lose thereby. The manager of our opera house is becoming discouraged, and well he may, for the house has lost on the past three performance which have been given therein.

"The Avenger," is a romantic drama; the scene laid in France during the Seventeenth century and is in reality, the sterling old play "The King's Moth" ("Staunch and True,") under a new name.

It is decidedly a one part piece, and as such Henri De Legardere, the hero, Mr. Griffith is afforded an opportunity to display his full power of voice and facial expression. As Blanche, the lost child, finally restored to her parents and her fortune by the faithful Legardere, who, of course, finally marries her, Miss Kathryn Purnell was all that could be desired.

She was particularly sweet in the sundial scene, where "The shadows proclaim the nearness of the sun," and when all was most dark for her and her lover, on the very beginning of a duel, she urges him on to victory by assurance of her love. The hour is dark, but "It is always morning somewhere in the world."

The play is full of beautiful sentiments, and unlike most French dramas, is clean in line, and virtuous "suggestiveness" in plot. The scenery and costumes were especially good and called forth much admiration.

The Griffith Company mount the piece in splendid shape, and the company is a well balanced one, although as before said, it is distinctly a one part play. But when that one part is in such capable hands as Mr. Griffith, and he is supported by his clever wife and carefully selected company, that only insures the success he deserves.
Should he again visit The Dalles he will no doubt have a much larger audience than the one of last night. But who could induce him to again play in The Dalles.

The Dalles as a Wool Market.

We find on the register of the Umattilla House the names of the following well known wool buyers: Jacob Woolner, the prince of wool men, J. M. Russell, Chas. Green, Frank Lee, J. Raistrick of the Salem mills, and others.

The quality and quantity of the wool market and the sheep industry in general is so well known that the best buyers seek this market for their supply and we hope to quote a good price and large sales ere long.

Live stock buyers from all sections are here as well as the agents of the large commission houses of Chicago and Omaha, to purchase sheep. Then we have the live stock agents of the different railroads, headed by Mr. Wilson, commonly called "Bob," representing the Burlington. And with President Young of the Oregon Sheep Growers' Association as a central figure, will convince the new comer that this city is doing business and are not using a brass band to do it either.

Ringling Bros.' Show.

Sunday night Ringling Bros.' circus will close the most successful two weeks' stand in the history of the show, the attendance being the largest ever recorded by any circus that ever exhibited in Chicago. Not since the famous brothers first started with a small one-ring circus, in a little tent that let in the rain, has the crowds at their shows been larger or the satisfaction of their patrons more general than in the two weeks' engagement that is drawing to a close at Tattersalls.

Before the doors of the big building will close behind the last straggler, wanting just one more look at the big elephant, after Sunday night's performance, the rings will be torn up and the flags of all nations, that decorated the roof so prettily, will come fluttering down in a heap. Things in an ordinary circus go with a rush, but then, Ringling's is no common circus.

People who attended Tattersalls say that the show was a pleasure, and many blame their luck, or a late supper, that left them standing outside the doors with an enthusiastic crowd inside, and not another inch of room.—Chicago Journal.

PERSONAL MENTION.
