TWO POINTS MADE BY LAWTON.

In a letter from the Philippines to an old army friend, Gen. Lawton makes two statements of especial interest. Lawton is a man of deeds. In the war with Spain he directed the operations against the strongly fortified position at Caney, near Santiago. He went through that most trying campaign in full health and in due time was transferred to Manila. In the Calumpit advance he held the right, swinging his men swiftly and far into the enemy's country, cutting off their retreat to the east and threatening their rear. Lawton served in the civil war and is also known as the man who walked the Apaches to death. Comparing the volunteers of today with those of the civil war, he says: "The fighting qualities of the men are the same. The American soldier is one with courage, nerve and grit. He has been just the same at all times, as he always will be, a courageous and brave soldier." This compliment from a man who knows will be appreciated.

Referring to the Santiago campaign where he was at the extreme front from first to last, Lawton remarks: "We had a deadly climate to contend with; worse in that respect than anything we had in the civil war. It is true that for a few days we were short, but that was for lack of transportation, and then we were never without some portion of the ration, and that portion more than our soldiers had at the best during the civil war." Every soldier of the civil war remembers exigencies when no rations were to be had for days together, and that full rations during active campaigns were seldom practicable. No army ever raised in this country had been as fully and liberally supplied as that which is now in service, or has recently been mustered out. This is no more than its due. The country is glad to bestow the most generous care upon its valiant defenders. And it is pleased also to have the acknowledgment from as thorough and distinguished a soldier as Lawton.

At Minneapolis on Friday the Presbyterian general assembly became involved in a controversy over the end of the nineteenth century. Some said it would end with the year 1899, and they were wrong. It will end at midnight of December 31, 1900. In other words, the year 1900 will be the last year in the present century. The 20th century will begin with the year 1901. This ought to be readily comprehended. The wheelman who rides 99 miles has not covered a "century." He must round out the 100th mile, and he will begin another "century" with mile 1.—Spokesman-Review.

It is cabled from Manila that Gen. Aguinaldo is absent from camp on "a scouting expedition." The cipher probably intended to say on "a scouting expedition."

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.
