WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Remember the Evening with German Authors and Composers at Mrs. Harris' tonight.

A one dollar per month Oregon resident telephone connects you with the outside world.

The weather was perfect yesterday; but the rain today means much to us all, and is more than welcome.

Get an Oregon telephone and have your business in touch with the markets of the whole Pacific slope and Inter-Mountain regions.

The base ball boys furnished no victims for the undertakers, but the physicians are somewhat better off than if the game had not occurred. Mashed fingers, broken teeth, etc. are numerous around the two stores today.

Rev. L. Grey having resigned as pastor of the Lutheran church in this city, preached his farewell sermon Sunday and will leave The Dalles this afternoon. He expects to visit friends in Oregon City and Portland for a few days and will leave later to attend the synod in Milwaukee. Having accepted a pastorate in Ohio, he will remove to that state in the fall.

The Columbia is just now at a good height, where it really ought to stand all the time. Having risen .7 since yesterday, it now touches the 28.6 mark. The report says that the rivers will remain nearly stationary for five days.

A small tarantula was found in a bunch of bananas which were unpacked by the Commission company Monday. He didn't seem very lively, but it was thought best to make sure of him by preserving him in alcohol.

Dr. W. B. Cassell and Dr. M. A. Jones, of the Portland Dental Parlor, arrived in The Dalles yesterday and have opened an office in the Chapman building, where they are ready to do the very best of dental work. Call and see them.

Miss Myra Helm is in the city at present and will remain for some time taking orders in portrait painting, samples of which may be seen at Blakeley & Houghton's, where orders may be left. She will also give lessons in oil, pastel and crayon work.

John Stocking, a familiar and eccentric old character who hailed from Sherman county formerly, but has been around The Dalles for some time, was examined this morning and adjudged insane. A few months since he was examined for the same malady and let go. He has now in course of construction a small shack on Third street, which is said to be a regular rendezvous for tramps.

The Dalles City should be christened over and called the "Hummer." Everyone has known that she could make them all take water, but their suspicions were confirmed yesterday when word reached here that she had made the trip from here to Portland in five hours and thirty-five minutes and carried 30 tons of freight. She's all right and we're proud of her. She also carried about thirty-five passengers who will attend the exercises in Portland, the proceeds of which are for the monument fund.

Miss Cain, who in company with Miss Clara Grimes, was to arrive here last night for the purpose of meeting the ladies who may desire dressmaking done and taking orders, was compelled to postpone her visit until Thursday, and will arrive tomorrow night, remaining over until Saturday afternoon. They will occupy a room in the Chapman building, and will be pleased to meet any one who may desire work done. Miss Cain is a competent dressmaker, having been in the employ of Madam McClure for many years, and will now have charge of the entire business.

MEMORIAL DAY.

A Beautiful Day For a Beautiful Service—How It Was Observed.

It would seem that even the elements joined in commemorating Memorial Day, and after veiling her face and dropping a few tears upon the grave of our dead heroes, the heavens were lit up and the sun in all its glory went before as a pillar of fire escorting the procession to the cemetery.

In the morning the cemetery was crowded with those who remembered the loved and lost by strewing their graves with beautiful flowers, and as they left the city of the dead it bloomed as a garden of sweetest blossoms.

At 1:30 o'clock the Commercial Club band played a number of selections as the procession formed on the corner of Second and Washington, as follows, with Capt. Bartell as officer of the day: Led by the band, the militia followed; then the G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans; the W. R. C. and bringing up the rear were a large number of citizens in carriages.

Reaching the G. A. R. cemetery a male quartet sang a very pretty and appropriate selection which the occasion caused to be the sweeter and more solemn. Sen. Vice Commander Aiken then read the ritualistic service, which is beautiful and impressive, and at its close the G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans deposited flowers at the foot of the monument in memory of the fallen heroes of their various regiments. It is always a very solemn service when the gray haired veterans, whose ranks are rapidly thinning, perform this service in honor of their lost comrades. A thrill passed through every breast as Private Bentz, a volunteer of the late war, limped to the monument and dropped the token of love in memory of those so dear to many hearts who have fallen as members of the Second Oregon Volunteers, and coming nearer to our own heartstones, Capt. Bartell remembered those who were members of Company L and from The Dalles—William Fields and Henry O'Flaherty.

Tears stood in many eyes as the militia boys filed round and deposited the beautiful flowers in honor of the fallen dead of Company L. Most every member in the ranks of Company D. has enlisted since our brave boys marched forth to real battle, and while thoughts of our absent heroes filled the breast, at the same time a feeling of satisfaction and trust as to our future prevailed all as they beheld the noble faces of those who are preparing to march forth to the first call that may be given. They are a brave lot and made a splendid showing.

Returning to the city, the G. A. R., and militia marched to Fraternity hall, where the W. R. C. served a fine lunch to the old and young boys in blue, who, never missing the hard tack, thoroughly enjoyed the spread.

At 7:30 o'clock the G. A. R. and W. R. C. met at their hall and escorted by the militia, marched to the Methodist church, where, after two beautiful selections by a quartet composed of Messrs. Landers, Northup, Doane and Lundell, a scripture lesson by Rev. Rushing and prayer by Rev. Wood, Rev. Poling delivered an address which was as eloquent and able an effort as a Dalles audience has listened to for some time. He opened his remarks by saying that history is one continued argument in favor of the doctrine of the equality of mankind, and war, although a harsh teacher of this important doctrine, must be heeded; we cannot turn away. Reviewing the history of the wars from early days to the present war, the speaker proved that all had for their incentive this one end. The Almighty desires that each nation make the most of itself by an unselfish policy, and America's motto should be "America for the world." Humanitarianism should be our watchword.

In closing he said American hearts ask not why we keep Memorial day, but do so with hearts full of love and are glad of an opportunity to do so. "We feel tonight that the great heart of the nation beats in gratitude to the Grand Army of the Republic. As you near the mustering out time may your last hour be full of hope. And may God bless our boys now on the field of battle and restore them to us soon."

All joined in singing America at the close of the address, and Memorial day ended with its strains ringing in the ears of the congregation.

Alumni Reunion.

On Monday evening, a happy event took place at the High school building of this city. It was the annual reunion and reception of the Alumni Association of The Dalles schools. The room was tastefully decorated with potted plants and cut flowers, while on the blackboard was drawn, by Miss Violet Kent, the likeness of Supt. John Gavin, wreathed with laurels, and above the picture were inscribed the words "Our Pride."

At nine o'clock, when all had assembled, President Edward D. Baldwin called the meeting to order. The result of the election of officers for the ensuing year was as follows: President, Mr. George Ruch; vice-president, Miss Maie Elton; second vice-president, Miss Nonah Rowe; secretary, Miss Elizabeth Bonn; treasurer, Daton Taylor.

A happy feature of the evening was the permanent enrollment of Prof. and Mrs. Gavin as honorary members of the association. After the business session came the program which had been prepared as follows:

- Address of Welcome.....Harriet Marden Response.....Clyde W. Riddell Vocal Solo.....Bertha Hill Essay.....Ena Uryen Vocal Solo.....Elizabeth Bonn Essay.....Ivan Oakes Vocal Solo.....Harriet Oram America.....Full Chorus

All present then repaired to the table where dainty refreshments were served. Prof. Gavin presiding as toastmaster, added greatly to the mirth of the evening. The first formal toast "Our New Class" by Daton Taylor, and the response by Nettie Fredden of the class of '99 were well received. "Progress of the Alumni" by Miss Beulah Sterling, was an able address, and well represented the general interest of the alumni.

Dr. O. D. Doane, the only member of the school board who was able to be present, was then called upon for an extemporaneous toast. His encouraging advice and good instruction certainly penetrated the hearts of all present and his words will not soon be forgotten. Twelve or more informal toasts followed, interspersed with much merriment and laughter. Very interesting letters were then read from Walter Dickey, of Hood River, Herman Heppner, of Portland, Homer Angell and Charles Campbell, of the University of Oregon.

At 12 o'clock the old friendship song "Auld Lang Syne" was sung and thus ended this pleasant evening ever dear to the memory of its participants.

Judging from the large attendance and the fact that each class was represented at this meeting, it is certain that interest is awakened in the practice of reuniting each year with friends and classmates, to join in happiness and pay tribute to the absent ones.

Evening With German Composers.

This evening, May 31, Mrs. N. Harris will open her home for an evening with German authors and composers. Proceeds are for the benefit of the M. E. church. Mrs. Harris has secured the best talent in the city to render their choicest selections from the most celebrated writers and musicians. We are sure it will be a rare treat. The following program has been prepared: Duet—"Der Jager".....Desmond Ryan Mrs. Groat and Mrs. Jayne. Violin Solo.....Prof. Birgfeld Vocal Solo—"Mutterchen schlief".....Mrs. N. Harris. Mr. Carl Gottfried Recitation—"Eri King".....Goethe Solo—"The Watch Over the Rhine".....Wilhelm Miss Myrtle Michell. Song—"A Rosy Crown".....Weber Four Little Girls. Solo, (with tableaux)—"Lorelei".....Heine Mrs. Huntington.

A most cordial invitation is extended to the public. The ladies will serve ice cream and cake.

Admission, including refreshments, 25 cents.

HARDWARE DOUBLES THE DRY GOODS SCORE.

Over Two Thousand Victims Witness Some Brilliant "Professional" Playing Yesterday

Hardware vs. Dry Goods was the case before the umpires yesterday afternoon, and the favors were pretty well divided, the scarlet and purple and blue and gold being at a stand-off on the grounds. The afternoon was perfect, even the wind standing still for fear of giving the ball a blow, while the sun actually hid his face for fear he might get a swipe, so high did the boys soar as they walked onto the diamond, the "Dry Goods" in their red suits looking as if they thought they were "all wool and a yard wide," and the Hardware as shining in their blue trousers and white sweaters as a newly polished stove. The diamond was surrounded with about 2000 spectators, seemingly regardless of the uncertainty of a ball; while pushing close to see who could come nearest the "diamond" were the fair admirers, who had more than a passing interest in the game.

As the "cock of the dry goods roost" walked onto the field togged in scarlet and purple, "Billy McKinley," the mascot for the Mays & Crowe push, stepped up as if to do him up in the first inning, but concluded he'd wait until after the ball and see if he did have any Crowe in him after all; but the poor bird looked henpecked as the game progressed. The umpires looked wise and wished they had been born triplets. Dutch McCoy concluded there was enough of him to make three at any rate, while Ballard didn't dare even to bet ice cream soda either way, nor give either side the icy shake. At one time he did feel a little shaky when Evans objected to being out because the French found his post deserted. But the game proceeded in a friendly way and little wrangling was heard, although the young ladies declared one of the coaches said a "naughty word;" but he was so good natured the rest of the game that he was forgiven.

In the first inning Dry Goods went up with four runs to their credit, and Hardware was all stove in, having made a goose egg, at the same time explaining to their friends who had bet marbles and peanuts on the game how it all happened: That the catcher was a little Nutty, and had two ribs broken; the pitcher was a "Chawley" boy; the first baseball was in love and the Evans would fall before he'd let his attention be directed from the young ladies nearby; one fielder was a Joe dandy, but the other had been up all Knight; the third baseman took the game for Granted, but the second was dis-Gus-ted; the right fielder had a game leg, and came near being arrested for not having any visible means to support Harry; and, worst of all, the short stop was dancing a cake walk and trying to make a hit at the same time, when a whizzer gave John one in the jaw and broke two teeth.

In spite of the alleged difficulties, the end of the second inning found them with four scores, and so the game started anew, and after taking a dose of cayenne pepper and ginger both nines

"played ball;" but Hardware played harder, and made six, while Dry Goods came out with two to their credit. In the fourth inning the red boys got in their work and made a clean white wash with four to nothing in their favor, and at the beginning of the fifth they were again even and matters grew interesting, but alas! for the handsome red boys, for in the next inning their opponents warmed up and made five scores, while French was the only one who scored in their nine.

The most exciting time was during the sixth, when the Dry Goods got ruffled. Huott got excited and stood on
