PAYING THE CUBANS.

It is difficult for a man to refuse money when it is offered to him. Money is what the majority of people are after, and the Cuban is not constituted differently from other people in this respect, says the Review. A good deal of frothy eloquence has been used by some of the disappointed Cuban leaders to persuade the insurgent privates to reject the bounty offered by the United States. It would seem that it has been rhetoric wasted. The Cubans are gradually coming into line, giving up their arms and going away happy in the possession of some slight monetary compensation for their services in the field.

The agitation of the leaders, who hold aloof, is largely of the buncombe character. A good many of them are sorely grieved because the ousting of the Spaniards did not give them an opportunity to fatten in those walks of life which had been so profitable to the former representatives from Madrid. Freedom for Cuba was not so dear to them as freedom to enrich themselves as the Spaniards had done. And those who have been most strenuous in urging a refusal to accept pay from this government will be found to be the political agitators who are anxious for position, power and prestige.

For the rank and file the money paid over ought to prove a veritable blessing. The war has been followed by poverty and wretchedness. People are in need, and the generosity of the United States can afford them some relief in their distress. There is no doubt that the Cuban privates would like to accept our money, and there is not much likelihood of their not accepting it, so soon as they are free from the influences of some of the so-called patriots who have made nothing out of the war in the way of personal aggrandizement.

The element, said to be in the war department, opposed to half-way measures in dealing with the Filipinos, will, it may be hoped, prove to be the controlling element, and that without unnecessary delay. To temporize with these people—to strike a few strong blows and then parley with them for a while—is to sacrifice the lives of our troops to no purpose, and encourage them to continue in revolt. It has been apparent from the first that to rule these people they must first be impressed with the compelling power of the ruler. After that it will do to acquaint them with the benign intent of American methods and the beneficence of American institutions. The situation in the Philippines admits of no half-hearted measures. The United States must either withdraw from the islands or whip the islanders into a knowledge of what is good for them. The first course is not to be thought of. It remains, therefore, for the second to be entered upon vigorously and pursued without parley to the end, which end the civilized world is justified in believing will be the beginning of prosperity for the islands and of progressive development for their people.—Oregonian.

Many of the volunteers who have returned from Manila declare that the Filipino ways of warfare are similar to those employed by the American Indian. The recent brutal murder of Captain Tilley by the natives of Negroes bears the statement out, and reminds one of the days of Sitting Bull.

Would Not Suffer So Again for Fifty Times Its Price.

I awoke last night with severe pains in my stomach. I never felt so badly in all my life. When I came down to work this morning I felt so weak I could hardly work. I went to Miller & McCurdy's drug store and they recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It worked like magic and one dose fixed me all right. It certainly is the finest thing I ever used for stomach trouble. I shall not be without it in my home hereafter, for I should not care to endure the sufferings of last night again for fifty times its price.—G. H. Wilson, Liveryman, Burgettstown, Washington Co., Pa. This remedy is for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggists.
