THE CORN CONSUMPTION PROPAGANDA.

A great corn exhibit is to be made in the Paris Exposition of 1900. It is proposed, indeed, to make this one of the most interesting of all the American displays at that fair. The object, of course, is to popularize this great American product throughout the world. Thus far the outside world has been strangely shy of Indian corn. It has more nutriment than rye and barley, which are much more widely used in Europe than corn. This propaganda has a great interest for Americans. Practically all of the product which is raised in the world is raised on this side of the Atlantic. It is the most valuable of all the crops grown in the United States.

Historically and socially, as well as economically, maize is of great interest to the United States. It is one of the three most important products native to the American continent, potatoes and tobacco being the other two. The important part which corn played in the settlement and development of the present territory of the United States has never been adequately set forth. In the early days of the occupation of the wilderness of the West corn was raised where no other grain could have grown. It was planted between the tree stumps in the little clearings. It could be grown on soil where there had been no preliminary fertilization, and demanded very little care. The tree stumps ordinarily stood until disintegrated by the action of the elements. This process took about ten years for the ordinary soft woods, but in some varieties of trees twenty years were required for the work. Until the stumps were removed the plow could not be moved freely over the farm, and wheat growing could not be done to advantage. During all of this time corn was the principal food of the American farmer. By being transmuted into hogs or whisky it was an article of food and of commerce which was of the highest consequence to the early inhabitants of the Western wilderness. One of the reasons why the French were unable to cope with the English in the planting of colonies on this continent was that in the French region, Canada, corn could not be produced in any important quantities.

The endeavor to open new markets for Indian corn by the exhibits at the Paris Exposition next year will undoubtedly be successful. In fact, corn is conquering new markets already, although not to the extent which its merits as a food crop demand. In 1894 the corn exportation of the United States was $66,000,000. It was $28,000,000 in 1895, $101,000,000 in 1896, $178,000,000 in 1897 and $212,000,000 in 1898. This gain is encouraging. It should be kept up. There is a chance that it can be largely increased if the propaganda which has been started for its general introduction throughout the Old World is prosecuted intelligently and persistently. The corn feature of the Paris Exposition will be watched with great interest in this country. Of course the corn exhibit in the Louisiana World's Fair of 1903 in St. Louis will be extensive and interesting. Missouri is one of the great corn producing states. At the exposition four years hence this important American product will have its merits intelligently and effectively displayed to the world.—Globe Democrat.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.
