WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

We understand Alex. Cathcart is dangerously ill at his home in the east end of the city.

Ladies' tailor-made suits, 1898 styles, going at half the regular price at A. M. Williams & Co's.

This is strawberry weather. They'll grow and ripen so fast now as to pull the plants up by the roots.

A. M. Williams & Co. today announce the arrival of a large invoice of ladies' neck wear, including all the season's fads and fancies. See them.

Ringling Bros.' great circus represents an invested capital of $3,700,000—more than twice the amount invested in all the other circuses in the United States. The daily expenses of Ringling Bros.

circus, the famous big show that it shortly to exhibit in this city, aggregate $7,000, more than sufficient to equip a good-sized show.

Ward & Robinson's wagonette was taken to the locks this morning to be used in case they had to transfer around the portage, which it is likely they will have to do today.

Rev. S. Marikubo will deliver his closing lecture on Home Life and Social Customs of the Women of Old Japan, at the Christian church this evening, at 8 o'clock. Admission 10 and 15 cents. Come early and be sure of a seat.

Portland intends chartering a number of steamers and going down to meet the soldier boys at Astoria on their return home. Why can't The Dalles follow suit and charter one of the D. P. & N. boats for the same purpose.

The Kindergarten, which has been taught by the Misses Taylor, will close their term on Friday next, and the exercises will take place in the audience room of the First Baptist church at 2 o'clock. All friends and those interested in the work are invited to be present. j6-3td

The Columbia river district Epworth League convention will convene at Moro tomorrow evening. The following delegates from The Dalles league will attend: Messrs. Jas. Simonsen and Clyde Riddell, and Misses Mable Collins, Constance Whealdon and Edith Randall. Mr. John Parrott and Miss Martha Whealdon will also be in attendance as officers of the league. Miss Nettie Fred-den, who will visit friends there, will make it a point to be present at the meeting. So The Dalles will be well represented.

Last night at the home of E. B. Dufur a reception was given to the new pastor of the Christian church, Rev. Gentry Rushing, and family. About fifty-five were present to welcome them to the church at The Dalles. A splendid program was rendered and refreshments of ice cream, coffee and cake were served.

Dr. Martin A. Jones, general manager and proprietor of the Portland Dental Parlors, is in town looking after his branch office. He has secured the services of Dr. Sanford Murray, D. D. S., late professor of dental pathology in the Phil. Dental College. Dr. Murray will arrive in The Dalles the first of next week.

The pupils of St. Mary's Academy will give an entertainment on Friday, June 10th, to raise funds for the purpose of fighting the building. Exercises will commence precisely at 8 o'clock p. m. Admission 50 cents. Children under 7 years not admitted. Tickets are for sale at Blakeley & Houghton's, H. Herbring's, J. P. McQuery's and Maier & Benton's.

The war department has solved the question as to the disposition of the artillery captured from Spain in Cuba and Porto Rico by turning the whole matter over to the governors of the states. One gun will be allotted to each state, and the governor is asked to decide what disposition shall be made of the gun for his state. What will Oregon do with her spoils.

The maximum thermometer today at The Dalles is 72. During the last warm spell it reached 82. The most remarkable coincidence in temperature was that of yesterday, when at Portland, The Dalles, Umatilla, Riparia, Northport and Lewiston the minimum was 40; at Wenatchee 46. On Monday at Portland the maximum was 56; at The Dalles and Umatilla 63; Wenatchee, Riparia and Lewiston 62; Northport 60.

The warm weather of today has caused many to shake their heads meaningly and predict a flood. It does look a little scary; but we must remember we cannot judge from our weather, which the report says will last three days. The Snake will fall until Friday, and the Columbia remain stationary until Saturday, when both rivers will experience a decided rise. The river here now stands at 34, a rise of .6 since yesterday, but a fall of about an inch since morning.

City election is nearer than we seem to think from the little we have heard concerning it. The third Monday in this month is the date, June 19th, when a mayor, treasurer, five councilmen and four water commissioners will be elected. At a meeting of the council last night the following judges and clerks were chosen: First ward—E. W. Wilson and Chas. Schmidt, clerks; C. S. Smith, G. A. Liebe and Wm. Isbell, judges. Second ward—J. C. Baldwin, J. B. Mann, clerks; Wm. Mitchell, James Blakeney and E. P. Fitzgerald, judges. Third ward—E. M. Wingate and J. Doherty, clerks; Wm. Mann, J. H. Jackson and J. Stanfield, judges.

Mrs. T. C. Runcie, who, with her husband, has been traveling throughout California giving lady minstrel performances in connection with the home talent, is in The Dalles and from all indications we are to have an entertainment in about ten days which will "shake up the town." The ladies of the library have taken the matter in hand and appointed a committee of ladies, consisting of Mesdames Schenck, Logan, Blakeley, MacAllister, Moody, Eddor, and Miss Lang to engineer the performance. Mrs. Runcie comes with the highest of recommendations, and is a lady of refinement, so that we may expect a performance of refined nature. Further notice regarding it will be given from time to time in the CHRONICLE.

Deputy Sheriff Sexton and Constable Hill returned last night from Salem, whither they went to convey John Stocking, an insane man, to the asylum. The patient was induced to make the trip with the understanding that he was to purchase all the supplies needed by Uncle Sam at the Philippines. The last the officers saw of poor old Stocking he was starting away, with an attendant on either side of him, to purchase onions to ship to the soldier boys. His greatest anxiety seemed to be that he would not get back in time to finish the palatial hotel he was erecting on the corner of Madison and Third street. Many no doubt have noticed this structure, built mostly of the hide of coal oil cans and with no covering to shut out the light of day. However, Stocking insisted he would make of it a three-story structure which would accommodate 200 guests. The best thing that can be done with it since the proprietor has abandoned it would be for the marshal to have it torn down.

SOME ONE TO 'BLAME.

The Manner in Which a Body Was Shipped to Friends by the State Insane Asylum.

The case of the suicide of Miss Laura Donaldson at the insane asylum last Sunday morning, and her shipment to The Dalles (which was her home) on the following day, has revealed to the people of this city a fact which was not a little surprising and caused much comment in regard to the treatment Oregon's insane dead receive at the hands of that institution. When officers of such an institution are appointed to these positions the state naturally supposes that they are possessed of at least human instincts, which not only lead them to care carefully for the living, but to see that the unfortunate dead receive at least the meagerest attention and a decent burial. Such it would seem is not the case; at least in one instance it has not been so.

Early Sunday morning Laura Donaldson, who was committed from The Dalles about a year ago, committed suicide in that institution by tearing her night gown in strips and making a rope out of the same, which she fastened to the window guard, tied the other end about her neck, and laying down upon the floor, choked herself.

Word was telegraphed to Frank Menefee, in this city, and he answered by telling them to ship the body to this place, supposing, of course, the remains would receive such attention as the exigencies of the case demand. We know not what is considered the duty of the state in such cases, but surely it must be that Oregon is expected to show more respect to her dead than was given in the instance of the young lady mentioned. When the remains reached here the undertaker was surprised to find the coffin (or box, for it was what is termed a pauper coffin) had no outside covering, such as coffins are usually incased in. However, little was thought of that matter; but when Crandall & Burget examined the corpse they were shocked at the little attention which it had received, having been what one might term, thrown in a coffin, which contained no lining and but a very small pillow, part excelsior and part small blocks, with no appliances such as are used to prevent the body from shaking about. Worse than all, the proper clothing had not been put on the body, a night gown being the only garment of clothing, and her hair seemingly had not been combed for some time, and hung over her face. In fact her friends were not permitted to see her until a robe had been substituted and she had been placed in a neat coffin.

Presumably it was thought the coffin would not be opened; but were it not, is this a fitting burial for any human being, much less one who in her sane moments was as refined a young lady as could be found, and of more than ordinary intelligence? Certainly the state is not expected to bury its dead in an elaborate casket, but surely a lining of some kind should be placed therein, and if not that, some wearing apparel should cover the body other than a gown, and the hair might be arranged or the body placed so that it would not jolt around in the coffin. No pauper dead, no tramp, or even Indian, in Wasco county ever receives such a burial at the hands of the county, and we sincerely trust, and must say believe, this is an exceptional case of a body being shipped by the state in any such manner.

Miss Donaldson was no pauper, but sufficient property was left by her father to give her a respectable burial, which, thanks to friends, she received. She has a large number of friends here who are justly indignant at the manner in which her remains were treated.

A question just here suggests itself to everyone, if the dead receive such treatment, how about the living?

The CHRONICLE dislikes very much to complain, but surely something is "rotten in Oregon" when such proceedings are allowed to go on within its boundaries.

THE FRENCH-CLUFF WEDDING.

A Dalles Young Man Marries an Eastern Young Lady.

From the Evening Item, a newspaper published in Lynn, Mass., we clip the following concerning a wedding which occurred there and which will be of much interest to the friends of the groom in The Dalles.

"The season of June weddings was most auspiciously opened at 9 o'clock this morning at the residence of John Cluff, 180 Chestnut street, when his daughter, Alice Viola, became the wife of Edward Howard French, of The Dalles, Wasco county, Oregon, on the Columbia river. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. Corwin Watkins, of the St. Paul's M. E. church, a ring being used. The bride was attended by her sister, Florence Daisy Cluff, and the best man was Harry L. Cluff, a brother of the bride.

"The bride looked very charming in a simple, but very effective costume of white muslin, en traine, with trimmings of white lace insertion, lace points and white satin ribbons. The costume of the bridesmaid was of pink organdie over white, with white ribbon and lace trimmings. The parlor in which the ceremony was held was prettily decorated with choice blossoms, vines and potted plants. Guests were present from Boston, Haverhill, Bradford, Groton, Peabody and other places, and several telegrams of congratulation were received from relatives of the bridegroom in Oregon.

"The bride received several magnificent diamond ornaments from the parents of the bridegroom, and from her husband received a very rich sunburst of diamonds surrounding a large opal, the rim of the brooch being of seed pearls of great purity. This ornament was worn with the bridal costume. Other presents of silver, crystal and china were sent by friends in Lynn and other places, the assortment being unusually rich and tasteful.

"After a short reception to the immediate family, the bride retired to prepare for the wedding trip and costumed in a very handsome traveling suit of blue ladies' cloth with hat to match, she with her husband took a carriage for the Boston and Main depot, and the 12:21 train was taken for Boston, en route for The Dalles, Oregon, where a residence awaits the occupancy of the couple, who will stop in New York, Chicago and St. Louis on their way to their new home."
