The smiling countenance of Patricia McNeil is missed from his usual place at the Umatilla House today, Pat being flooded by illness which confined him to his bed.

Wonder if the calendars in The Dalles are all minus the 4th in July? We haven't heard a word regarding that date. Presumably most of our people will celebrate in Portland and then send in a petition to have our fourth delayed till the boys come home.

A. M. Williams & Co. are offering exceptional values in ladies' dress skirts this week. Skirts suitable for camping wear as low as 69c. You are invited to call and see them.

We learn from Dr. Logan that our suspicions regarding the death of Chas. Ross in Portland Sunday are confirmed by railroad men in this city who have received word to that effect. Ross was run over by the work train near Seufert's recently, and taken to the hospital for treatment. At last reports he was doing well, but "tetanus" or lock jaw, finally caused his death. Ross was 32 years old and was a man well liked among his associates.

It is quite the rage at present among our professional, as well as amateur photographers, to obtain a collection of Indian pictures, and each is vying with the other in the attempt to secure the best subjects. Lo has gotten over his superstitious prejudice, being persuaded by the offer of a few cents to pose as gracefully as the white man. The finest specimen of an Indian picture we have yet seen is that taken by Mr. Gifford and which now occupies a place in Clark & Falk's drug store window. "Rain in the Face" or "Stand in the Window" or whatever he may be called, has a countenance which embraces both kindness and bravery, and is a study in itself. Mr. Gifford has brought out every feature perfectly and is justly proud of his work.

Last evening when Earnest Halfpaw, the little boy who carries the Oregonian, was passing the European House, the dog belonging to Hugh Frazier jumped at him and bit him in the left thigh, not severely, but causing an ugly little wound. This is his fourth offense of that kind, and while he is considered a valuable dog on a sheep ranch, Mr. Frazier has determined to be rid of him for fear he may do serious damage. A serious case of dog bite was that of the little brother of Mrs. Chas. Johnson, who a short time ago in Goldendale was bitten frightfully about the face by what was considered a pet dog. His wounds were such as to disfigure him for life, and he just escaped fatal injuries.

A number of important matters were brought up at the meeting of the board of fire delegates last night. Among other things a communication was received from Columbia hose company asking that their membership limit be increased from thirty-five to fifty, and that the new chemical engine be placed in their charge. The matter was laid on the table. At the drill about two weeks since the members of the various companies failed to give sufficient heed to certain rules applicable to drills, notable among which was the fact that some companies left before being ordered by the chief. A committee, consisting of N. M. Eastwood, John Gavin and J. F. Moore, was appointed to investigate the matter and determine whether charges should be brought against them. Members of the board being negligent about attending meetings, it was decided to inform their companies that unless they were present at the next meeting new members should be appointed.

HEALING AT OUR OWN DOORS.

The Hot Springs Along the Columbia Equal to Any—A Jordan Near at Home.

People along the Columbia have never seemed fully to realize just how much virtue there really is in the hot springs which line the banks of the river, and many make long expensive trips to famous springs in other states when at our very doors might be found the Jordan which if its waters were only tested would accomplish the same healing process. For many years a few stragglers have visited the various springs at Cascades, Moffitt, Collins, and other places, but little publicity has been given them and few know how much they are missing. The Oregonian Monday had an article which told of how much benefit had been derived by Mr. Holman, of Portland, who had been in poor health for some time and is making a prolonged stay at the hot springs near the mouth of Wind river, about eight miles above the cascades.

This is the same place where Mr. W. H. Biggs is staying, and he is loud in his praises of the benefit he has obtained from drinking and bathing in the waters, which are impregnated with minerals of various kinds and which come from the earth as hot as there is any need of. Mr. Biggs says when he first attempted to drink of the waters he found it almost impossible, but now he can drink freely and feels the effects greatly.

As the springs can be reached by boat in a few hours they might become a favorite health resort; but at present they are owned by a half-breed, who has no means and no desire to improve the property. They claim they can make all they want to off of them in their present condition, and therefore no accommodations worthy of mention are afforded. Parties have offered large sums for their lease for a season at least, but such have been steadfastly refused. Ample room, however, could be secured for camping purposes, and no doubt will be utilized when the healing properties of the springs are fully known.

Much has been said of Bingham Springs, which are no doubt all that is claimed for them; but we fully believe that along the banks of the Columbia may be found a balm fully as efficient. Indeed, we question whether the waters at Glenwood Springs, Colo., which appear to us to contain the same properties, are more healing than would be those right at our own doors, were the same amount of money expended on their improvement.

Death from an Accident.

This morning at 1:30 o'clock Charles, the 17-year-old son of Henry Stegman, who formerly lived at Centerville; but now resides in the Happy Home district, died from injuries received in a runaway accident which occurred Monday afternoon seven and a half miles from the river on the Washington side.

In company with the hired man Charles had driven to this city and delivered some wool at the Wasco warehouse.

On the return trip the hired man's wagon, which contained some stock salt, was ahead and a sack or two of salt fell into the road. When young Stegman drove up, just in front of W. W. Crawford's place, his horses became frightened at the salt sacks and jumped to one side onto some large rocks, throwing their driver out and cutting a very deep gash in the scalp and badly dislocating his left elbow. Internal injuries were also received, which eventually caused his death.

The funeral will take place at Centerville tomorrow.

IMPORTANT TO SHEEP OWNERS

Do Not Hasten to Take Your Sheep to the Mountains.

The attention of sheepmen is called to the following letter from S. B. Ormsby, which is of especial import to them. He says:

First—Sheepowners are advised not to be in haste to start their sheep for the reservation. My advices show that there is still an immense amount of snow in the mountains and it is not possible for it to disappear from the ranges before the 1st of July.

Second—The eating out of the range of settlers by sheep on their way to the mountains, is becoming a matter of serious import, and is being brought to the attention of the department in a manner that cannot be much longer ignored. But the department has no authority in the premises outside the reservation, and when it does act its action can only be the entire exclusion of sheep from the reservation.

Third—The attention of sheep owners is called especially to one of the excepted areas which is as follows: The east half of townships 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 and 17, S. R. 9 E. This strip of territory is excepted for the benefit of settlers along the line of the reserve whose stock may be running at large. While sheep may be driven across this area to reach the range beyond, no stock of any kind will be driven in and herded on this excepted area.

Fourth—Sheepowners are cautioned as to the character of the men they have in their service the coming season. The owner is, himself, seldom on the range, his interests are intrusted to others. These should understand the terms of the contract the employer has made with the department and should be men who will faithfully carry out these terms or trouble will arise to the owner.

Fifth—A large number of applications are yet due from owners. These must be forwarded without delay.
