STATUE TO ARTHUR.

The unveiling of the statue Thursday in New York to former President Chester A. Arthur marks a fitting tribute to a capable and worthy public servant. The case of Gen. Arthur was a fine illustration of the steadying influence of great responsibility. Previous to his choice as vice president he had never held an elective office. He had filled some appointive posts, but aside from that of collector of the port at New York, none of them were of much political importance.

Everybody remembers that there was some distrust in Republican circles when, at the death of President Garfield, Vice President Arthur went to the higher office. Never, however, were misgivings so quickly and so completely dissipated. It was assumed that as Arthur belonged to the opposite faction in the Republican party from that with which Garfield was identified, war would be made on Garfield's friends and the Republican party would be disorganized and placed in a minority in the country at large. The new president very promptly and very agreeably disappointed his critics. The Republican party did, indeed, lose the congressional election of 1882, the year after Arthur went to the presidency. It lost Arthur's own state of New York in that year, and it was defeated for president and congress in 1884. The causes of these reverses, however, had been in operation before Arthur reached the White House, and they would have worked the same way even if he had remained in private life.

Gen. Arthur was the one vice president who, going to the presidency on the death of his chief, gave satisfaction to the party which elected him. Tyler's course in the presidency disrupted the Whig party for the time. Fillmore's conduct in the White House arrayed a powerful element of the Northern Whigs against him, and prepared the way for the overwhelming defeat which came to his party in 1852, when it carried only four states for President Johnson's conflict with the party which elected him when, by the death of Lincoln, he went to the presidency, precipitated the most profound convulsion of the whole reconstruction period. Arthur, on the other hand, made a discreet, capable and satisfactory president. He went to the higher office under conditions of great perplexity, but he met the most exacting demands of his post with a tact and an intelligence which won the admiration of all political elements. There is a probability, indeed, that, with Arthur's personal popularity in New York, if he had been nominated in 1884 Cleveland would never have been elected, and the succession of Republican presidents might have continued to this day. But whether this surmise be correct or not, Chester A. Arthur was a public servant whose memory the people, without distinction of party, delight to honor.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the universe." So will every one who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the throat, chest or lungs. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free at Blakeley & Houghton's drug store; every bottle guaranteed.

Last fall I sprained my left hip while handling some heavy boxes. The doctor I called on said at first it was a slight strain and would soon be well, but it grew worse and the doctor then said I had rheumatism. It continued to grow worse and I could hardly get around to work. I went to a drug store and the druggist recommended me to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I tried it and one-half of a 50 cent bottle cured me entirely. I now recommend it to all my friends.—F. A. BARCOCK, Erie, Pa. It is for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggists.
