WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

The Good Intent ladies have added bread to their list of eatables for sale tomorrow.

George Cooper is erecting a neat residence on Dry Hollow, near the old home place, where he and Mrs. Cooper will make their home.

Prof. R. R. Allard has retired from the principalship of the Hood River schools. The board of directors last week appointed Prof. C. D. Thompson, of Cascade Locks, to supply the vacancy.

During the illness of Supt. C. L. Gilbert, his duties in visiting schools and looking after their welfare is being carried on by Prof. J. S. Landers, which assures all that they will not be neglected but faithfully carried out.

The ladies will have another opportunity to save themselves the trouble of cooking for tomorrow, for the Good Intent will have on sale at J. H. Cross' store their usual excellent pies, cakes, bread, etc. Call and see them.

See our window. Ladies' up-to-date tan lace shoes, $3.50 value for $2.65. Ladies', this season's, vesting top Oxfords; color black, turned sole; reduced from $2.50 to $1.90. Tomorrow and next week. A. M. Williams & Co.

We understand a gambler by the name of Bill Winton skipped town a few days since, carrying with him a sum amounting to almost $800, which belonged to a woman living in the East End. As he bought no ticket it is not known which route he took.

Every man who expects to go in society at all should provide himself with a dress suit. Eberle, the tailor, can make you as well a suit as you can get in any large city. If you doubt it, just ask the young men who have recently had him tog them up.

The Oregonian yesterday said that a half-million pounds of wool had changed hands this week. We'll go them another half and call it a million, for so say those who know. The prices range from 10 to 13 cents. The town is full of sheepmen and wool buyers.

Word was received in the city this afternoon announcing the death of Antone Jerome at St. Vincent's Hospital in Portland. He had been employed as watchman at the company's shops here for nearly twenty years, until three weeks ago when he was taken ill and stopped work. About a week ago he was taken to the hospital, where he died this morning. His wife left for Portland this afternoon.

The smallpox scare which has kept the people of Walla Walla in a ferment two weeks has not abated. The doctors are vaccinating hundreds daily. Nearly all the patients have had mild attacks. There are six patients at the pesthouse, and several persons are quarantined at various places in the city. Special precautions are being taken to prevent infected persons from the railroad camp on Snake river from reaching that city.

If you contemplate a trip East this summer take advantage of the $81 round trip rate from The Dalles to Detroit, Mich., Tickets sold June 29th, only, and good for return until August 31st. This will undoubtedly be the lowest round trip rate to the East this season. This rate is made for the annual convention of Christian Endeavor Society at Detroit July 5th to 10th. Call on James Ireland, agent O. R. & N. Co. for further particulars.

The river continues to fall slightly, standing at 42.1 this morning. The upper rivers are also falling, excepting at Northport, where it rose .3. The Columbia will fall till Monday, when it will rise slightly. A flood this year would have been particularly unfortunate, since so many improvements have been made in the business portion of the city recently. In 1894, while it was a great loss, everything was older and in need of repairs.

Did we hear someone bewailing the fate of The Dalles, and prophesying all sorts of calamity for the future? It may seem dull to those who are not on the inside track and do not know just how much business is being done here. If for once a newspaper had not been sworn to secrecy we could a tale unfold regarding the business of one firm here that would make its readers' eyes pop. The Dalles is all right; don't let its welfare cause you any uneasiness.

We are in receipt of a neat folder gotten out for the D. P. & A. N. Co., advertising their boat line with its wonderful Columbia river scenery. This company has always been liberal users of printers ink, and this is no exception to the general rule, as neither time, expense nor pains have been spared. The work bears the imprint of THE DALLES CHRONICLE. Yet it seems almost superfluous as their indisputable trade mark, neatness, cleanliness and finish, is as much a part of the folder as the scenic half tones themselves.—Goldendale Sentinel.

When the 700 soldier boys meet in Portland to go in camp and also to welcome their comrades home from the fray, not the least attractive among the companies will be Co. D. of The Dalles, whose new uniforms have arrived and which will make a showing of brave, stalwart soldiers who will certainly demand recognition from all. Among them are men who have brothers in the ranks who have won honors in the conflict, and we have every reason to believe would make as good records under similar circumstances. The captain has shown a heroism which deserves as much praise as could any who marched to Mazila to face the foe. At home were mother, brothers and sisters who, left fatherless, must have some protecting hand to guide and watch over them. While his brother Max, has received honors on the battlefield, he who fights on the battlefield of life protecting those he loves surely deserves equal honor. There are others in the company who were placed in like circumstances, and we say all honor to the boys of Co. D.

Small-pox Scare.

Quite a small-pox scare occurred last week. A man named Armstrong, who had been picking berries for A. P. Bateham, went to Portland and after several days was taken sick with what the Portland city physician pronounced small-pox. He was taken to the pest house and the authorities here were notified and asked to quarantine the people Armstrong had been camping with. Constable Olinger at once took charge of the campers and on June 14th moved them into the grove next to the old graveyard on Paradise farm, just east of Lyman Smith's place. They were made as comfortable as possible, and Michael Bohan was employed to guard them and see that no one was allowed to come or go from the camp.

The names of those quarantined are as follows: Irwin Millham, Alvin G. Wyland, James N. Hall, James M. Armstrong and Estella F. Hall. Three of them came from Vancouver and the others from the Willamette valley above Portland. The man Armstrong, who was taken sick in Portland, had never been exposed to a case of small-pox that he knew of or that any one could trace. The parties in quarantine continue in good health and will be released as soon as all danger of their having contracted small-pox is past.—Glacier.

WE'LL WELCOME THE BOYS.

Let the D. P. & A. N. Steamers Be Chartered and Dalles People Join in the First Greeting.

Everybody is enthusiastic over the home-coming of the volunteers, and The Dalles is not behind other Oregon cities in its anticipation of the event and desires to join in the celebration. It is not a lack of patriotism which has caused many to overlook the usual festivities of the national holiday, but rather it has given place this year to a holiday which comes a little later in the month.

Every day the remark is heard, "I'm going to Astoria to meet the boys if everything else must be subservient to that end." In view of this fact, it certainly would be a splendid idea to charter two or three steamers and take every one, who so desires, down the river to join the procession which goes to Astoria to join in the welcome.

With the volunteers are a large number of Dalles boys, whose enthusiasm would be unbounded were they to see among the other craft which escort them to Portland, the Regulator and Dalles City, which all Dalles people have grown to claim as their own and to take an unbounded pride in, and on their decks, with welcoming hands and hearty cheers, to see not only loved ones but the faces of friends eager to give them the hand of greeting and love.

What a meeting that would be! And it must be.

It will never do to have our boys look in vain for the welcome of their own home people. We do not wish it so, but are all eager for the contrary to be the case. Let's begin at once and arrange for the trip. It could be an inexpensive one so that all who have husbands, sons or brothers among the returning heroes can make the trip. But should there be any who, from lack of the wherewithal, might be compelled to forego the pleasure, let us so arrange that they may go free of expense. This much is certainly due them.

Instead of the encampment which had been planned to be held at Salem, beginning on the 10th and lasting ten days, it has been arranged to have all the outside companies of the guard gather at Portland and camp there for several days, joining in the welcoming parade. The full force will total over 700 men in new uniforms.

Those who go down from The Dalles could also remain over in Portland to take part in the celebration there, and then upon returning home, join with the W. R. C. in the final home welcome.

They cannot be welcomed too often. Let's begin at once to prepare to receive them as they deserve.

A Successful Repetition.

If possible, the repetition of the minstrel performance on last evening was an improvement over the first night. Certain it is, it suffered nothing by the repetition, and was as much enjoyed, even by those who had witnessed it the evening before. The jokes of the end men (?) were perhaps an improvement over the first night, although THE CHRONICLE was slandered by having a sample of its spring poetry rehearsed for the amusement of the audience, and we were made to hear ourselves as others hear us. Unlike a second performance generally is, the participants seemed to be as energetic, if not more so, than on the previous evening.

The addition of the singing and dancing by little Jennie Mouser, of San Francisco, was worth the price of admission. She is a dear little girl about 7 years of age, and her voice is remarkable, showing a training which is wonderful in one of her years. Her dancing is perfect, and she glides over the stage with the grace of a little fairy. She was repeatedly encored, and seemed perfectly at home on the stage. The cake walk between her and the little son of Mrs. Runcie was very cunning and they were encored loudly.

We cannot refrain from mentioning the excellent playing of the orchestra under the leadership of Bert Baldwin. Many complimentary remarks were heard regarding their selections. To the accompaniments of Mr. Baldwin is also due much of the success of the singing. None but those who have attempted to sing when the accompaniment is poor can realize what it means to be ably assisted by the pianist. Then too, it is a difficult task to accompany soloists when the piano is not on the stage, but Bert succeeded admirably.

We are pleased to know that the receipts last night were $84, making a total for both nights of $264. The performance was not only a success, but the finances as well. As the receipts will be used for the benefit of the library, it is gratifying that they are so large. We are all interested in our public library.
