THE DESPONDENT DEMOCRACY

Some Democratic papers are getting a little aid and comfort from an assertion by Chauncey M. Depew, in an interview in London, that the "questions not dreamed of at the last struggle (1896) are forging to the front," and that "no man can tell the issue with any success until the electoral vote is counted." This utterance is considered by some Democrats to mean that one leading Republican concedes the result of the election of 1900 is in some sort of doubt.

Not the faintest doubt is felt by any Republican about the result of the election next year. Every Republican looks for a bigger victory for his party than was gained in 1896. In this opinion a vast majority of the intelligent Democrats of the country agree with the Republicans. No Democrat anywhere is making any prophecies of victory for his side. Nearly every Democratic newspaper in the country was predicting a triumph for his party on the eve of the canvass of 1896. The feeling among Democrats now differs widely from what it did then. Everybody can see at present that the chances for a Republican victory of big dimensions in 1899 are better than they were in 1895. There is a greater degree of despondency in Democratic circles at the present time than there has been on the eve of any other presidential canvass since that of 1868.

The fact that Democrats pretend to find some encouragement in Chauncey M. Depew's words shows the gloom which pervades their party. Depew talks more than any other man in the United States. Necessarily he says many things which he does not mean, and which are of no consequence whether he means them or not. Ordinarily he is not a very good authority on American politics. His judgement on partisan chances is not entitled to much consideration unless when it coincides with that of the majority of his fellow-citizens. It is probable that, in common with the vast majority of his fellow countrymen of all parties, he looks for an overwhelming triumph for the Republicans in 1900. There will be no chance to get up a scare next year about a possible Democratic victory, and consequent industrial and financial disaster. From this peril the United States will be free in 1900 at least.

About $13,500,000 of gold has gone out of the country since the movement began. Perhaps $30,000,000 or $40,000,000 in all will go cut before the flow stops. Usually there is an outgo for a few months every year. In 1898 we escaped any such movement, but that was an exceptional case. A gold outflow is looked for each year as a matter of course. The fact that it is not attracting any particular attention now is shown by the circumstance that the gold reserve in the treasury is growing constantly. It is at present about $10,000,000 above the mark at which it stood just previous to the time when the gold exportation started a month ago. This, of course, is because the banks are furnishing all the gold which is going out now. The production of gold by the mines of the United States in 1898 was $64,000,000, or much more than the exportation is likely to be this year. The production of 1899 stands a chance to be $70,000,000 or over.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised 'Electric Bitters'; and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c, guaranteed, at Blakeley & Houghton's drug store.

An Epidemic of Diarrhoea.

Mr. A. Sanders, writing from Coconut Grove, Fla., says there has been quite an epidemic of diarrhoea there. He had a severe attack and was cured by four doses of Chamberlain's Cholera, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says he also recommended it to others and they say it is the best medicine they ever used. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.
