Good Samaratins. "Do unto others as you would that they should do unto you," is a maxim that is as old as the hills, and one that if lived up to more closely, would make life pleasanter and we would all have better regard for our fellow beings. However, we generally think of self first and after that, for the comfort and wellfare of others. Last evening a son of T. J. Drips, who lives on High Prairie, Wash., rode down to Rockland and left his horse, coming across the river on the ferry to get some medicine for his sister who is quite ill at home.

After procuring the necessary articles of age, started for the ferry, but owing 1889. to the lateness of the hour it had ceased running. The boy being young and practically a stranger, was heart-broken and did not know what to do. He came up town and about half past eight was found by Gus Bonn, sobbing as though his heart would break. He was asked on left shoulder. Black horse branded what the matterwas and the little fellow C on left shoulder. One bald faced explained as best he could, and said he sorrel weighing about 1200; reached would like very much to get across the mane. A liberal reward for information river as his sister was seriously ill and of the whereabouts, or the return of he had medicine for her; otherwise he same. A. Mason, J. Bays. Contractors,

Gas put on his thinking cap and final- Or. ly remembered that Ed Kurtz had a boat so the lad was brought to the express office and the story was repeated to Mr. Kurtz and Vic Schmidt and out of the goodness of their hearts they immediately allayed the fears of young Drips and told him they would see that he arrived across the Columbia without

On reaching the opposite shore at about 9 o'clock, the boy was so grate- on sale at Pease & Mays'. ful that he could hardly speak and being somewhat flustrated he thanked his benefactors as follows: "Boys, I hope you will be in the same fix some 6 60 day so I can do as much for you."
