MUSTERING OUT.

The muster-out of a military organization is a matter requiring exact nicety, and it consumes much time. Take, for instance, a regiment of 1200 men. Each officer and enlisted man has to pass a careful physical examination, and an average surgeon can examine only about fifteen men each day. Any infirmity or injury suffered during the term of service must be noted on each man's papers, and the cause of any disability or partial disability. A man's complete condition must be set forth in writing, and his papers on file forever after at the war department are to be referred to if the man in after years applies for a pension on account of disability received in the line of duty.

The muster-out rolls are books whose pages are 8x14 inches in size. On these pages must be kept the complete military history of each man, and every item of his service must be shown. The actions he has taken part in, the leaves of absence he has had, the time he has spent in the hospital or the guardhouse, whether his sickness was secured in the line of duty; an abstract of his clothing account, and many other things.

In mustering out a regiment that has seen as much service as the Second Oregon, a statement of each man's service might fill two pages of the muster-out roll. In making up these muster-out rolls, reference must be made to all orders on file, sick reports, morning reports and other regular books in which have been recorded the daily duties of the men, and this makes their making-out rather slow business. So explicit must everything be that a whole printed page of the rolls is devoted to explaining just how they must be made out.

In connection with the rolls is the pay account, which shows how much money the soldier has drawn, how much is charged for ordnance, etc., and his signature shows that he has received what was coming to him. Where a soldier desires to buy the arms he has been using, he is generally allowed to do so, and their wear and tear is considered, and they are charged up to him at less than cost, and so appear on the muster-out rolls.

There must be a muster-out roll for each company, and after it is completed, five copies of it must be made, which requires much time. After the muster-out rolls are completed, each man signs a statement showing his physical condition at the time of being mustered out, and he also answers a series of important questions, one of which is: "Have you, during term of service, received wounds or incurred injuries that would incapacitate you from following your usual occupation?" Company commanders corroborate and sign these statements as to physical condition, according to their observation. The physical examination is ever more rigid when the man is mustered out than when he is mustered in. His sight and hearing are certified to, and placed on record, and all these papers, together with other documents, are turned over to the mustering officer, who ships them to the war department at Washington, and there they are sentenced to remain forever.

Preparing discharges is another matter that takes considerable time, and altogether the mustering-out of a full regiment is a large contract that cannot be done in a day.—Oregonian.

Robbed the Grave.
 A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised 'Electric Bitters'; and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c, guaranteed, at Blakeley & Houghton's drug store. 5

An Epidemic of Diarrhoea.
 Mr. A. Sanders, writing from Coconut Grove, Fla., says there has been quite an epidemic of diarrhoea there. He had a severe attack and was cured by four doses of Chamberlain's Cholera, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says he also recommended it to others and they say it is the best medicine they ever used. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.
 by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
 We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.
