Linden Garretson, who was injured Saturday evening, is improving rapidly and will soon be able to be up and around.

The attention of the Knights of Macabees is called to their meeting this evening at 8:30, sharp. All members should be on hand.

We learn that a number of members of the militia company contemplate going to Portland next week and enlisting in the regular army.

Staff Capt. Willis, the Sen. Sec. of the North Pacific chief division, will conduct the service at the Salvation Army on Thursday evening, July 27, 1899.

Only three more days to get one of the prettiest novelties in fancy work ever seen in the West. Where do you find it? Why follow the crowd of ladies who go to A. M. Williams' every day.

This morning a special train of four cars passed through this city about 9 o'clock. It was occupied by General Manager Kimberly and party, of the Northern Pacific road.

Walla Walla people are agitating the question of bringing their soldier boys home free of expense. Passenger Agent Harburt, of the O. R. & N., has offered a rate of $15.40 from 'Frisco to that place, which is $8 less than the usual fare. At that rate it will require $1290 to bring Company I home, and they will attempt to raise that amount among the citizens.

Commencing Saturday, July 29th, the O. R. & N. Co. will sell round-trip tickets to Cascade Locks and return for $1.50. Tickets will be honored going on train No. 1, Saturday, and returning on trains Nos. 4 and 2 the following Sunday. JAS. IRELAND, Agent. jly26-aug3

Dennis McColey evidently thought the boys had come home last evening when he saw the militia out drilling, and began to celebrate by getting chuck full, or at least whiskey full. Marshal Hughes reminded him that he was mistaken and Recorder Gates charged him $3 for the error.

An Intelligent West Virginia farmer has discovered that by planting onions and potatoes in alternate rows in the same field, the onions become so strong that they bring tears to the eyes of the potatoes in such volume that the roots are kept moist and a big crop is raised in spite of the drought.

The town is well spread with bills for the appearance of the Shaw Dramatic Company in this city next week. This is rather an out of the way season for a show to visit us, but the Baldwin is cool, and it will be a splendid manner in which to pass the evening. The prices will be 15, 25 and 35 cents.

Rates to the seaside this year are to be exceptionally low. A rate war is now on, and the Astoria and Columbia river road announces a reduction in the one-way rate from $2 to 1.60, and in the round trip from $3 to $2.40. The O. R. & N. will soon follow suit, and everybody can go to the beach.

Astoria is planning to have McKinley attend the regatta this summer and Spokane thinks Bryan will be in that city during the industrial exposition. The former is likely to end in nothing but a plan, for McKinley isn't headed this way; while the latter—well, if we were betting we'd go 10 to 1 that it would end in "gas."

A letter received in Salem from one of the Second Oregon boys says the regiment will come home in a body, and that the boys will stop and parade at Ashland, Roseburg, Eugene, Albany and Salem, and then finally at Portland. They'll certainly be pretty well worn out by that time. What's the use of their stopping at every little jim-crow town in the Valley, why don't they come direct to The Dalles, where there'll be somebody to see them.

The court of discipline has been getting in its work, as the attendance at the regular drill last evening proved. During the warm weather and while the pleasant evenings entice the members away from duty, it is deemed best to hold a court of discipline at which every absentee must give a good reason for non-attendance or be fined. Last night nine fours were at headquarters at the usual time for drill and Company D made a fine showing as they marched about the streets.

Messrs. A. E. Thompson and B. A. Gifford returned last night from their camping place, about seventeen miles up Hood River. They report it an ideal camping place; as perfect a location as they have ever seen, and say their families with that of J. M. Huntington, are enjoying the outing immensely. Mr. Gifford and Mr. Thompson made the trip into Lost Lake and back in two days, although it was a hard trip to make in so short a time. The former obtained what he thinks will be excellent views of the lake.

It is said that fishermen along the Columbia are to ask for an extension of the open season ten days, as the season was so late and the run so light. Presumably these are the lower river fishermen who want not only the earth, but the waters that cover the earth and all that in them is. With their seines, traps, etc., those at Astoria capture all they possibly can entrap and then when the salmon get as far as the Cascades the leads put out by the fishermen there, gobble up the remainder, and the fishermen further up the stream get—left.

A correspondent of the Liverpool Mercury, in a communication to that paper writes as follows: I am willing to risk my reputation as a public man if the worst case of small-pox can not be effectually cured in three days simply by cream of tartar. This is the cure and never failing remedy. One ounce of cream of tartar dissolved in a pint of boiling water, to be drunk when cold, at intervals; it can be taken at any time and is a preventative as well as a curative. It is known to have cured in thousand of cases. It never fails.

Clara Morris, the actress, has written a charmingly poetic story, "The Princess Porcelain," which is published in the August Ladies' Home Journal. It is Miss Morris' desire to become as well known as an authoress as she is an actress, and in the hope of such achievement she has entered the literary field. Two or three other stories from her pen have been published during recent years, and they have been received with the highest approval. Thus far Miss Morris' literary efforts have met with great success, and she finds a place for everything that comes from her pen.

Some time ago the CHRONICLE strongly advocated the idea of the early closing of our business houses during the months of July and August. Later, however, in conversation with some of the leading business men, we were reluctantly persuaded that, under the present circumstances, when there is so much competition for outside trade, it would not be advisable. One thing, at any rate, we can all do to make the burden of clerks and those who are so unfortunate as to be compelled to spend the evening hours in close stores, and that is to either do our shopping during the day, or early enough in the evening to prevent them being kept after the hour set for closing, which, in dry goods stores, is 8 o'clock. None, we feel sure, would intentionally prolong the stand hour, but unthinkingly enter the store near to 8 o'clock and when purchasing a large bill of goods, or often a small one, for necessity prevent the doors being closed. The same applies to other places of business, most of which endeavor to close at 8:30. Let's be unselfish enough to consider this matter.

The pleasant flavor, gentle action, and soothing effect of Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative, and if the father or mother be costive or bilious, the most gratifying results follow its use; so that it is the best family remedy known and every family should have a bottle. A DISGUSTING TRAIT.

Curiosity Displayed Regarding Criminals and Their Victims—Also in Private Life.

For a paper which just hits the nail on the head and attacks wrong in a manner which is commendable, and calculated to show them up in a fearless manner, which should make the guilty parties hide their faces in very shame, commend us to the Telegram.

If there is a trait of human nature which is disgusting to those who have a spark of refined feelings, it is the morbid curiosity which prompts, not only the riff raff, but those who claim to be respectable people, to swarm about a jail where an alleged murderer or other criminal is confined, in the hope of gaining a glimpse at the prisoner. The more heinous the crime he is charged with, the more anxious do they appear to strew flowers in his pathway or heap attention upon him. Equally as revolting is the habit of fairly trodding upon one another in the effort to gain admittance to the morgue where is the corpse of his victim. What possible satisfaction can there be in gazing upon the lifeless features of a poor unfortunate who has met such a fate as did Clara Fitch last week in Portland, and yet the papers tell us that it would seem one-half of the populace of that city visited the morgue in the endeavor to gain a glimpse of her face.

Not alone do we see this trait exhibited in such cases, but the inquisitiveness displayed at a private funeral is only another feature of the same innate curiosity; when many who in life perhaps had never seen the one whom friends are paying the last respects to, or at any rate, had never spoken with, hasten to the home (which perhaps will scarcely accommodate the nearest friends of the deceased) merely through a feeling borne of curiosity. Often have we seen mothers lift the infant child to gaze upon the features of one whom the little one had never seen and could not realize what it all meant, but returned home to have its dreams disturbed by the mystery which had been thus partially revealed to it.

These are unpleasant subjects upon which to dwell, but nevertheless have become so familiar to all that it is impossible to pass them by unnoticed.

Regarding the case now being tried in Portland and touching on the same subject, the Telegram says:

"Morbid and disgusting curiosity, springing from the soil of silly minds and operating in an atmosphere of bad manners, brings a swarm of silly young females to the city jail, eager for a chance to gaze longingly upon the prisoner McDaniel. These mentally and morally unlovely specimens of femininity would hug and kiss him if they could, on the theory that he is a local Durrant and a monster who after injuring one of their sex during her life strangled her to death. This isn't proved yet, by a long way; but these idiotic creatures suppose he is guilty; otherwise they wouldn't be 'stuck' on him. It is a pity the whole swarm can't be locked up for sixty days."

MORE TALK OF OPPOSITION

Which Says the Regulator Line Will Soon Have Competitors.

This morning's Telegram is again talking about an opposition boat line. The Regulator line, however, does not seem to have been frightened off the river by the announcement, and is still doing business at the old stand.

The latest report says "unless there is reason for the contrary the steamer Sarah Dixon will go on the route between Portland and The Dalles between August 1st and 15th, in opposition to the D. P. & A. N. Co. The Dixon is now helping the No Wonder in the towing business, that boat having more than she can handle, but as soon as towing slacks up the Dixon will go on the up-river route.

"The excellent business transacted by the Regulator line has caused talk of opposition from various quarters for many years past, but for some reason the opposition has never developed. This year the talk is more definite, and while information is refused by the companies who are expected to go into it, they do not deny specifically that they are thinking of the matter.

"Jacob Kamm is suspected of having designs on the up-river traffic. The new boiler for his crack boat Larline has been shipped from Chicago, and will arrive in a week or ten days, and but a short time will be needed to install it, when he will have a boat too many. It is pointed out that if he sent the Larline on the up-river route the Undine could take care of the company's Astoria run, and the Mascot could be operated between Portland and Lewis river and could also call at Vancouver on her trips. When Mr. Kamm has any change in view he does not make a practice of talking about it before hand, and no one knows what is coming until the change is made. Hence, if he intends to run the Larline to The Dalles it will be known certainly the day on which she starts."
