and evening are permitted to pass over them, thus damaging the walks and oftentimes making them impassable. This is in a measure the fault of the herders, who seemingly take no pains to keep them in the road, but have been seen to gallop up the walks on horseback as though they had been made for that purpose. Complaint should be made to the marshal and a stop put to the practice.

An Irish priest had labored hard with one of his flock to induce him to give up the habit of drinking, but the man was obdurate. "I tell you, Michael," said the priest, "whiskey is your worst enemy, and you should keep as far away from it as you can." "My enemy is it, father," responded Michael. "An it was your reverence's self that was tellin' us in the pulpit only last Sunday to love our enemies." "So I was, Michael," rejoined the priest, but was I anywhere telling you to swallow 'em?"—Ex.

People returning from North Beach say that the beachers are having a heavier run of crabs and clams this year than in any year in the history of the resort. On the nights of the 23d, 23d and 24th north winds landed thousands of crabs, and each morning following the seashores were out with wagons, baskets and sacks to bring in the fish, and to ship large quantities to friends. Clams also were unusually plentiful, and it was an ordinary matter for a seashore to dig up enough to last for a week with less than an hour's work.

Now that business is somewhat dull during the summer months it would be a fine opportunity to make a general clean-up of the streets and alleys surrounding your places of business. Do not, however, dump the refuse into the street and leave it there, or what is just as bad, set fire to it there and make your neighbors miserable by the smudge created. It is never entirely consumed in that way. There is a man about town who makes his living by hauling refuse outside the city limits. Let him take it to the beach and there set fire to it, not leaving it to litter up the water front, as many are in the habit of doing.

A telephone message was received last night from officers in Portland by Marshal Hughes to stop two men who would be on the freight train which passes through this city about three o'clock. They are wanted in Portland for robbery. He accordingly appeared at the train and found his men—one a negro. The latter is said to be a member of the Twenty-fourth regiment which has been stationed at Vancouver. He showed a light, and also a razor, when the officer attempted to arrest him; but the marshal was too many for him and bringing forth his "dissolver," soon subdued the fellow and made him to understand he did not belong to a New York regiment and wouldn't be walked over. They now "quietly repose" in the city "summer resort," where they will remain until an officer arrives from Portland this afternoon.

Today we were shown one of the most beautiful views of Oregon scenery we have ever seen. It was a picture of Lost Lake taken by Mr. Gifford. In the foreground was the beautiful lake, clear and calm, while mirrored in its waters was the image of old Mt. Hood. So plain that one could scarcely tell whether the mountain in the background was the original or the shadow. Mr. Gifford says he has another view which he considers even better than this. The mountain is smaller, but he has more foreground, and by the side of the mountain is a timber covered peak. To one side of the lake are large fir trees, while on the opposite side are the charred remains of high pine trees. Jutting out into the lake is a large snag, which always makes a good effect in a picture of that sort. They will be splendid additions to his already large collection.

The Astoria people have changed the date of opening the fall term of school from September 25th to October 24, which is a splendid idea. Were the schools of our city to open at least two weeks later, it seems to us it would be much preferable. As it is, they close early in the season when it is yet cool and when teachers and pupils would just as soon remain in the school room a few weeks later, and open during the very warm weather, thus causing families to hasten home from summer resorts much earlier than they would wish, and at just the time when the weather is the most pleasant at the beach. We have heard many parents express the wish that the date of opening change and would suggest that such be the case unless the directors have some reason which we know not of for the present arrangement. The season being later this year will no doubt cause the warm weather to continue during the entire month of September.

THE LAST RIVER CROSSED.

John Irvine, a Pioneer of '52 Dies at His Home in This City.

Yet another pioneer has made the last long journey, compared with which all others are nothing. The final river has been crossed and "sweet fields beyond the swelling flood" burst upon the view of one who was among those who in early years sought the West as his abiding place and to whom the view of the rivers of the Pacific coast must have been as a very oasis after months of weary travel through barren plains. But forty-seven years have passed since that time and in those years John Irvine had passed from a young man of 26 years, with life before him, to the ripe years of three-score and thirteen, for on his last birthday he was 73 years old.

For five years he has been a continuous sufferer from consumption, and for over a year the end has been expected almost daily. No doubt it was hoped for by him who grew weary of the tedious months of pain, and who welcomed the hour shortly after noon yesterday which brought him relief.

Coming from Indiana to Oregon in '52, his first home was what is now known as the Sipes ranch at Rowena, eight miles below this city. A few years afterward he sold it to George Snipes and coming to The Dalles, was married to Miss Catherine Kieth, purchasing from her father a ranch (now the Kelsey place) three miles below town and making his home there. Here they lived, with an interruption of but five years spent at Klamath, until a few years since.

In '54, when the massacre occurred on the Snake river, Mr. Irvine enlisted as a volunteer, but outside of this his life has been comparatively uneventful, for while he watched The Dalles grow from a place which contained only about three families,—those of Judge Laughlin, Dr. Shang and W. C. Keith (not considering a slight scattering population)—to its present thriving condition, his life was spent on the farm in a quiet manner.

To Mr. and Mrs. Irvine were born six children—Frank, Emma, Alice (Mrs. Laurensen), John, Will and Anna (Mrs. Ed. Spencer). Of these three are living—Frank at Antelope, Mrs. Laurensen and Mrs. Spencer in this city. Mrs. Irvine died about three years ago and was buried here.

His life contained much of sorrow and perplexities, but he was ever good natured and pleasant to those about him, while he was honest in the strictest sense of the terms.

Word was sent to his son, Frank at Antelope, who arrived this afternoon. The funeral will occur at 11 o'clock tomorrow from the Christian church.

THE APPENDIX.

The Foreign Bodies That Are Sometimes Found in It.

Dr. Charles Phelps reported this case before the Society of Alumni of Bellevue hospital. He stated, says The New York Medical Journal, that the attack had begun eight days before, but the patient had not come under his observation until three days before the operation. A small abscess had been found and evacuated. A perfectly smooth mass, feeling like a kidney, had been brought into the wound, and had been found to contain the appendix. Within this appendix was a minute piece of bone. The irritation produced by this foreign body had resulted in the production of this mass of inflammatory exudate. Some surgeons, he said, maintained that they had never found a foreign body in their cases of appendicitis; he had found them quite frequently, but this was the most minute one that he had met with.

Dr. Robert T. Morris said that usually the things which are called grape seeds, etc., proved, on searching microscopical and chemical examination, to be ordinary concretions of insoluble salts, mixed, in most cases, with more or less faecal matter. For this reason one should be careful in determining this point. He had found a piece of apple core in one appendix, and it was the only foreign body that he had discovered in his cases. In one of Dr. Wyeth's cases he had seen some lemon seeds.
